Heat Hits 97.2 in D.C., Going Higher Today With No Relief in Sight

Washington's soggy citizenry sweated out the hottest August 26 in the city's recorded heat history yesterday as the mercury bloomed to an official 97.2 degrees.

This was the recorded temperature at the Weather Bureau station at National Airport. And more heat is promised.

If you cared to venture into the sun (you fool) you could have clocked the heat in Post Square at 110 degrees at 3 p. m.

Yesterday's heat, which felled at least 10 persons and resulted in the early release from their jobs of more than 20,000 District and Federal Government workers, set two records, namely:

It was the hottest August 26 on record, topping a mark of 96 for the date that had held good since 1900.

It was the hottest day of the year, exceeding a previous high of 95, reached on three dates, June 24 and 28 and July 5.

Now steel yourself for some bad news: The weatherman forecasts a high of 98 and more sunny weather today.

"There is no relief in sight," he said, "although the temperature may get down to about 92 in four of five days."

He conceded you could call this a legitimate heat wave.

The upward swing of the thermometer also brought unhappiness to hay fever sufferers. The District Medical Society reported at 9 a. m. yesterday the count of ragweed pollen was 177 grains per cubic foot of air. Only 24 hours earlier the count had been 8. Medical men said the count soars in hot weather.

Because of the heat, thousands of District and Federal Government employes were sent home early, some them leaving their jobs as early as 3 p. m.

An estimated 5000 workers in the nonair-conditioned District Building left early, and the Fed-

Heat-Struck Drawbridge Revived by Fireboat

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 26 (AP).—As New Haven's temperature rose today to 97, highest in 11 years, the fire department had to cool off a bridge.

A steel drawbridge carrying U. S. Route 1 traffic over an arm of New Haven Harbor so expanded from the heat, estimated close to 110 at that point, that it wouldn't close.

A fireboat cooled the steel with hoselines until the bridge sections shrank enough to close.

Baltimore Milk Price Hiked; No Indication of Rise Here Yet

Average for 900 Commodities Equals All-Time Peak

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The average wholesale price of 900 basic commodities last week equalled the all-time high record set three weeks ago, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

At last week's end prices were one tenth of one per cent higher than the previous week, BLS said, and 10.2 per cent higher than in August a year ago.

The BLS Wholesale Index stood at 169.2 of the 1926 average—considered to be normal.

At the same time the Commerce Department reported that retail sales of clothing dropped 5 per cent last month and food and drug sales 2 per cent.

However, total sales of all retail stores were still 13 per cent above a year ago—estimated at $10,560,000,000.

Filling stations were the only group among nondurable items that showed an increase in sales over June. Eating and drinking establishments and general merchandise stores showed a 1 per cent drop.

Sales of durable goods went up, the department said. Automobile sales increased 5 per cent and home furnishings 3 per cent. Jewelry stores showed a 7 per cent drop and hardware stores 3 per cent.

Among the durables only jewelry store sales dropped below last year. They were 5 per cent less than July 1947. Automobile sales were 25 per cent above last year, building materials and hardware 17 per cent and home furnishings 15 per cent higher.

The BLS wholesale report showed food prices dropped four

Retail Figure Put At 22 Cents Quart In Producer Jump

The retail price of milk will go up to 22 cents a quart in Baltimore Wednesday, but whether an increase is in store for Washington could not be learned last night.

Baltimore dairymen announced the 1½-cent boost after the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc., said the price of milk for producers will go up 40 cents a hundredweight to $6.43 Wednesday.

Dr. R. W. Shermantine, president of the cooperative, said the price hike is being made because prices have been raised or are about to be raised in the Washington and Philadelphia areas, the Associated Press reported.

Dr. Shermantine told a Washington Post reporter on the telephone, however, that he had not specified Washington in his statement, and did not know of any price changes here. He said he had referred to "other areas" and was thinking of Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

In his statement he said a large number of farmers would ship milk to other cities unless a similar price adjustment was made in the Baltimore area.

The president of a large Washington dairy said last night he had heard of no change in milk prices here, and said any change would depend on the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association. A spokesman for an independent super market also said he had heard no rumor of a price increase.

B. B. Derrick, secretary of the association, a dairy farmers' marketing agent handling about 80 per cent of the Washington area's milk, could not be reached for comment.

De Gasperi Wires Dewey Italy Has No African Designs

Rome, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Premier Alcide de Gasperi said today in a telegram to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey that Italy has no designs on Africa, where it once had three colonies.

De Gasperi said his country was "not looking for adventures in Africa but for work and civil cooperation with an autonomously organized African population."

The telegram was De Gasperi's answer to Dewey's greetings brought here by former United States Immigration Commissioner Edward Corsi and to Dewey's recent advocacy of Italian supervision of Eritrea, Libya and Italian Somaliland under a United Nations trusteeship.

Jews, Arabs Charge Truce Violations

Egyptian Official Urges Resumption Of War in Palestine Area Immediately

Jerusalem, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Jews and Arabs today accused each other of violating the Palestine truce and an Egyptian official said all Arab governments have been asked to resume the war immediately.

The Egyptian was a leading delegate to the Arab inter-parliamentary conference which ended in Beirut, Lebanon, yesterday. He said at Cairo tonight that the conference had sent a memorandum to every Arab government demanding renewed fighting in Palestine.

The conference was attended by prominent representatives from Egypt, Lebanon, Syria, Iraq and Trans-Jordan.

Continue War of Words

Arabs and Jews continued their war of words. The Jews said Arab shells had endangered the British consulate in Jerusalem. The Arabs charged the Jews are running an underground railway from Europe to the Holy Land.

At Stockholm, Sweden, a spokesman for United Nations mediator Count Folke Bernadotte said the Jews had violated the truce by occupying sections of a Red Cross area in Jerusalem. It was the first time U. N. observers had stated positively which side they believe guilty of an alleged truce breach.

Bernadotte instructed his chief of staff, Gen. Aage Lundstroem, to demand immediate evacuation of troops now in the Red Cross area.

Truce Held Ineffective

A combined press dispatch prepared by correspondents in Jerusalem quoted Col. Moshe Dayan, Jewish commander, as saying the truce is ineffective. The dispatch said Dayan complained that U. N. observers have not reacted to constant Arab violations.

Dr. Bernard Joseph, military governor of Jerusalem, sent United States Consul General John J. McDonald, chairman of the Truce Commission, a notice of 52 cases or truce violations by Arabs in the last three days, the dispatch said.

Storm Batters Russian Ship

A tropical hurricane battered a Russian ship 1000 miles southeast of Miami last night and threatened two American vessels, which were believed later to have cleared its path.

Storm warning headquarters at Miami said the hurricane was still more than three days away from the United States mainland at its present speed, with the probability it may veer off to sea altogether.

Berlin Reds Push Way Into City Hall

Communist-Led Crowd Denounced By Anti-Communists In Later Rally

Berlin, Aug. 26 (AP).—A roaring Communist-led throng swept into Berlin's City Hall today and heard their leaders demand a new municipal government to "work hand in hand with the great Soviet Union."

[The New York Herald Tribune correspondent reported the demonstrators demanded creation of an 18-member "action committee" to administer Berlin.—Editor's note.]

In a counter-demonstration three hours later, anti-Communists denounced the invasion as "the putsch that failed."

Slicing through lines of the Soviet-backed East Berlin police, about 500 Communist demonstrators installed themselves in the empty council seats while 10,000 others yelled in the streets outside.

Inside the hundreds shouted "Down with the capitalists" and "Down with the splitters of Germany" while those outside chanted "The International" and waved red banners.

No Casualties Reported

No casualties were reported. The invaders left the chamber after listening to the harangues and the crowd dispersed without incidents.

The demonstration climaxed weeks of Russian attempts—spearheaded by the Soviet-sponsored Socialist Unity Party (SED) — to smash the overwhelmingly anti-Communist city administration.

At the counter-demonstration of Berlin's Socialists, conservative Christian Democratic Union and Liberal Democrat speakers demanded that the council be given "a neutral meeting place" outside the Soviet sector and greater support from the Western occupying powers.

More than 5000 Berliners cheered speakers there who shouted that supporters of democracy in Berlin will stand firm and "turn back the tide of communism come what may."

Clay to Back Government

In Frankfurt Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor, said any attempt by Berlin demonstrators to take over the city government was doomed to failure.

"No action committees are going to take over the government of the millions of people we are responsible for," he told reporters.

Tipped that today's SED demonstration was in the making, the anti-Communist majority of the City Council canceled a meeting which was due to vote on the turbulent issue of sending a Berlin delegation to the constituent assembly of the West-sponsored German government.

Russia is bitterly opposed to the formation of a west German government, born of the recent six-power London Conference.

The executive committee of the city government decided tonight to convoke a council meeting Friday morning.

East Berlin had vainly tried to hold back the demonstrators with shouts of: "There's no point to this—the Assembly is not meeting."

Once installed in the chamber, the crowd was harangued by SED orators.

Girl Shot in Club Is Brave When Told She'll Never Walk

(See Picture on Page B-3)

By Bill Gold
Post Reporter

Somebody had to tell Dorothy Kilmer yesterday that she'd never walk again.

The time was growing short. At 5 o'clock, Dorothy would be leaving Emergency Hospital, and going to the Washington Sanitarium for convalescence.

The doctors had hesitated to break the bad news while Dorothy's condition was still critical. The days since the accidental shooting in a 14th st. club had slipped by without the subject being raised—either by the patient or her doctor.

Groping for Words

And now the time had come, and there was much groping for words and clearing of throats.

"Well," somebody said at long last, "you'll be leaving us soon, Dorothy."

"Yes, I know," she replied. "And I want to thank you all for having been so kind to me, and having done so much for me."

"Dorothy . . . suppose after all we've tried to do, your back still isn't . . . well, suppose in spite of everything, we can't quite get you entirely well again . . . and you find that you can't walk . . . How would you feel about that?"

"I'd feel all right," the girl answered softly. "I'll be happy, and I'll get along somehow."

Dorothy's thoughts seemed to be far away, and nobody said anything for a little while. Then she smiled and said:

"If God has spared my life, it must be for a purpose. I'll be all right."

So they left it at that, and now Dorothy knows that she'll never walk again.

She was paralyzed by a shot accidentally fired from the service revolver of a rookie policeman on July 29, in the Palm Grove Club, 1601 14th st. nw. Subsequently, Privates Roland H. Holifield, 26, and Wayne W. Edmondson, 22, were dismissed from the force. They will go on trial in Municipal Court next week on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Meantime, Dorothy faces long months of convalescence. That's going to mean special nursing care and many expenses.

Public Has Helped

Washingtonians have responded by sending money to Emergency Hospital and to Mrs. Alma Kilmer, Dorothy's mother. The hospital is administering a fund of $818.50, which will be used to defray expenses there.

Mrs. Kilmer has received about $400 more, which will give Dorothy a start along the uphill road to recovery.

But it's only a start. For all her courage, Dorothy will need the help of her neighbors to make the grade.

Life-and-Death Fight

Scrappy Spider Battles Snake Helplessly Ensnared in Web

York Center, Ill., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—A scrappy little spider and an 8-inch grass snake were locked in a life-and-death battle today.

The spider seemed to be winning.

The snake bared its fangs, tarashed back and forth, wriggled and hissed but still could not shake its tail loose from the web that held it fast.

The web was attached to the bottom of a table in farmer Norman Lingenfelter's house and the snake dangled helplessly with its head just above the floor.

Zoologists from Chicago theorized that the spider had caught the snake's tail in its web on the floor and then, by shortening the strands slowly pulled it up by the tail.

From time to time the spider ventured out on the scaly back of the reptile to draw even more strands around it. The snake tried to twist up to attack the spider but never was able to make it.

"I think the spider's going to keep pulling him up until the snake's completely tied up in the web," said Lingenfelder. "He'll be a goner then."

Zoologists told Lingenfelter that the snake could go without food for weeks but had to have water every day.

"Since the spider seems to have the advantage, I gave the snake a little water," Lingenfelter said. "But otherwise I plan to let the law of the jungle take its course."

Communist Leaders Regarded Hiss as Red In 1941, Budenz Says

Ex-Daily Worker Editor Testifies Secretly; Fay Gets Full Record Today

Post Reporter

Testimony by Louis Budenz, former Communist Party official, that he knew Alger Hiss as a Communist in 1940 or 1941 was published yesterday by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

The secret testimony taken here Tuesday revealed that Budenz said, "I do not know him (Alger Hiss) personally, but I have heard his name mentioned as a Communist."

Budenz said Hiss' name came into the discussion of party affairs by top Communist leaders and that his own "constant impression" was that Hiss was equivalent to a member of the Communist Party.

Hiss, former top-policy-making official in the State Department, now head of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace, was not present at the hearing. Budenz, former managing editor of the Communist Daily Worker, is now on the faculty of Fordham University.

Fay to Get Record Today

He was the second confessed former Communist who has told the committee Hiss was known as a member of the party. The first was Whittaker Chambers, $25,000-a-year editor for Time Magazine, who testified that as a Communist courier named "Carl" in the 30s he knew Hiss as a disciplined, dues-paying member of a Communist underground apparatus in the Federal Government here.

Hiss has denied he is or ever was a Communist. He has called Chambers a liar and traitor, identifying him as a man who called himself "George Crosley" during their acquaintance. Hiss has testified he knew Crosley as a free-lance writer who turned out to be a favor-seeking four-flusher. Chambers said Hiss was lying.

A full record of the Hiss-Chambers battle to date is to reach United States Attorney George Morris Fay's office here today. Fay conferred yesterday with Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) of the House committee at the latter's office on Capitol Hill. Thomas has said Hiss or Chambers will be tried for perjury.

Hiss Confers With Attorney

Fay said he would not make any immediate statement about legal moves by his office. The record of testimony by Chambers and Hiss, in public and secret sessions of the committee, runs to hundreds of pages. The record is slated for exhaustive study by Fay's office.

Hiss yesterday conferred with his attorney here, John F. Davis. They served notice they plan an exhaustive effort to break Chambers' story. Hiss was to return to New York last night.

Meanwhile, the committee in a new executive session probed deeper into the question of what happened to Hiss' 1929 Ford.

Representative John McDowell, (R., Pa.) disclosed the committee had questioned William Rosen, 64, of 2020 Shepherd st. ne., owner of the Bunker Hill Valet shop at 2009 Bunker Hill rd. ne.

A "William Rosen" had cropped up as the person who got the Hiss Ford in 1936 in a mysterious transaction which showed the car being handled through the Cherner Motor Co., but for which no sales slip could be found in the consecutively numbered company files.

Rosen Declines Answers

McDowell said Rosen declined to answer every question about Communist affiliation, and every question dealing with the car, on the ground that to do so might incriminate him. He said Rosen was required to write out his own name 10 times, and that this would be checked by handwriting experts for comparison with a signature on the certificate of transferring title.

The car transaction has played a big part in the committee's pursuit of the question whether Hiss or Chambers lied about their association.

Hiss' main recollection was that

Procedure Agreement Expected

Kremlin Accord Prospects Change From Fair to Good

Moscow, Aug. 26 (AP).—The diplomatic forecast changed from "fair" to "good" in Moscow tonight.

Informants who had said previously there was a fair chance of four-power agreement coming out of the Kremlin talks now rated prospects as good.

The informants emphasized that their forecast applied to agreement on procedure for attempting to solve differences between the East and West.

They did not mean that the United States, Britain, France and Russia had settled or were about to settle all the questions discussed at the Kremlin.

U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau and special British Envoy Frank Roberts prepared for another meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, probably Friday.

A four-power announcement on the status of the talks is expected. The wording may be framed at the next meeting with Molotov.

Rumors and speculation were heard from various foreign capitals. One was that the Allied military governors in Germany had been instructed to take over the talks. It can be authoritatively stated, however, that there has been no agreement up to now to justify that report.

(Authoritative diplomatic informants said in London Prime Minister Stalin had agreed in principle to Western demands for taking part in the supervision of Soviet currency in Berlin.)

The Gallup Poll

One-Third of Wallace's Vote Concentrated in New York City

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 26.—One of President Truman's big political headaches is New York State—and all because of a man he fired from his Cabinet two years ago.

If it weren't for Henry A. Wallace the contest for the State's 47 electoral votes would be a dog-fight between President Truman and Governor Dewey. But the Wallace candidacy so splits the ranks of former Roosevelt voters as to put Governor Dewey ahead, although percentagewise he is actully no stronger in the State than he was in 1944.

President Truman leads in New York City, where about half the State's votes are cast, but his lead is slim compared to the Democratic performance in other years. Again the reason is Mr. Wallace. The city is a stronghold of Wallace sentiment.

In fact, an estimated one third of all the votes Mr. Wallace will get in the entire Nation in November will come from New York City alone.

The standings of the candidates in the Empire State are revealed for the first time since the conventions in today's poll on the question:

"If the presidential election were being held today, how would you vote—for Truman, for Dewey, or for Wallace?

The first column below gives the result with all undecided voters included, the second, with the undecided not included.

New York State
Dewey	42%	47%
Truman	32	37
Wallace	14	16

These figures are based on all voters polled who say they plan to vote in November.

In New York City and upstate the poll vote is as follows:

New York City
Dewey	27%	32%
Truman	36	41
Wallace	23	27
No opinion	14
Upstate
Dewey	58%	64%

Tito Takes Offensive in Red Quarrel

By Homer Bigart

Belgrade, Aug. 26 (NYHT).—With the publication last night of its sharp note to Romania, the Yugoslav government assumed the offensive in its grim fight with the Cominform.

Instead of waiting for Russia to make the next move as most observers had expected, the Yugoslav Foreign Office in blistering language, hitherto reserved for western imperialists, raised the quarrel to governmental level by accusing Ana Pauker, Romania's Foreign Minister, of openly conspiring for the overthrow of Marshal Tito.

Romania also was warned that the mutual assistance pact and the treaty of friendly cooperation signed by the two countries last year, cannot survive unless the anti-Yugoslav campaign is halted forthwith.

The Belgrade press carried the text of the note without comment. No comment was necessary since it would be difficult to improve on the earthy and uninhibited language of the text. "Lying, dishonest, vile, insulting, fantastic, rude and disgusting" are some of the adjectives employed by the Foreign Office in describing Romanian machinations.

It is useless, said the note, for Madame Pauker to pretend that she merely called for revolt against the leadership of the Yugoslav Communist Party.

"It is generally known," said the note, "that leaders of the Yugoslav Communist Party are at the same time the most responsible members of the Yugoslav government."

The stern temper of the note would indicate that nothing less than an apology from Madame Pauker will restore cordial relations.

Thus, Romania has temporarily replaced Bulgaria and Albania as the chief target of Yugoslav counterattack. It is for Madame Pauker to decide whether Belgrade is bluffing or is really prepared to denounce the mutual assistance pact unless Romania curbs its campaign against Marshal Tito.

Sees 'Delusion' on Freedom

Czech Theologian Says West Is Declining, Doesn't Know It

Amsterdam, Aug. 26 (AP).—Delegates to the World Council of Churches heard behind closed doors today the plea of a theologician from Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia for "more imaginative thinking in the west on the international question."

The speech by theology Prof. Joseph Hromadka of Prague replied to a statement made in sectional debate of the council's assembly by John Foster Dulles, American Presbyterian layman. This ended the first phase of the church battles here over Soviet policy and communism. The subject was brought before the council on its opening day by the two men.

Dulles argued that the Soviet Union is not devoted to peace. Professor Hromadka declared the West was declining from its position of a supreme world power and did not realize it.

In today's secret debate, reported later to the press by a council spokesman, Hromadka repeated that the West was deluding itself "when it imagined it possessed freedom and others did not."

The Bishop of London, Dr. John William Charles Wand, reported the statement of another speaker in secret session that he had met a good many persons recently "who preferred suicide to going back to the Soviet orbit."

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Stripling, Chief Investigator in Reds' Inquiry, Dates From Dies' Committee Days

"Mr. Stripling, first witness," are the first words you hear when things really get going at a public session of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

INVESTIGATOR—Robert Stripling (nearest camera) as he questioned Alger Hiss Wednesday

They don't mean that Mr. Stripling is the first witness. They mean that Committee Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) is saying "well, here we go" and Mr. Stripling is to call the first witness.

From that point on, the program is pretty much in the hands of Robert E. Stripling, 35-year-old chief investigator for the committee. He functions as a unique combination of master of ceremonies, chief counsel, main interrogator, and front-running guide through the labyrinths of subversive organization.

Stripling is soft-spoken, unobtrusive in his movements. His black hair is always gleaming in place, never tousled. His eyes are blue-gray. Through public hearings, his face is serious, brooding, but in casual conversation he shows an easy-going grin.

Editorials at Breakfast

He had a big grin when he told this reporter that "my favorite pastime is reading The Washington Post editorials which appear almost daily about the committee. I wouldn't enjoy my breakfast without them." (Washington Post editorials have taken frequent, sharp issue with committee actions.)

Republican Chairman Thomas has the highest regard for Investigator Stripling who hales from a town down in Texas called St. Augustine. Stripling quips that its 1800 inhabitants never knew what a Communist, Fascist, or Republican was.

He started in his present career under former Congressman Martin Dies, Texas Democrat, and was the first employe of the Dies Committee when it was formed in 1938. Stripling recalls Dies as the only man he knew who could have put the committee program across. He has equally high regard for the present leadership of Chairman Thomas.

His Job Is Legion

Thomas said of Stripling, "He and I have worked together in combatting un-American activities for the past 10 years. I doubt if there is a person in the United States more able to fight un-American activities than is Stripling.

"He is a combination of counsel, chief investigator, and No. 1 administrator. He is tireless in his efforts. He has seldom had a vacation. He is always overworked. He is the axle which the wheels of all our investigations turn. He has an encyclopedic memory—I've never seen anything like it."

This reporter asked Stripling to explain how his memory worked. With shy, matter-of-factness, Stripling testified to having what is called a photographic memory. He pointed to the bound volumes of 10 years of committee hearings that line his office desk. They run to some 20,000 pages. If a name from even the earlier hearings is mentioned, said Stripling, a picture of the whole hearing comes back to him, and he can recall the witnesses, the content of their testimony, the whole story.

This shows in his technique in public hearings today. He goes before the committee with few documents. He carries most of his prepared material in his head, and deals his questions with quick informality—"shoots them from the hip," he says.

He would not estimate the number of persons listed in the committee's files as people to be watched. But he said that every day 15 to 20 agents from the executive branch of the Government are at work with the committee files. Since the files were opened to investigators from the executive branch, he said, some 14,000 such agents have used them. He said that every card in the file is based on a document. He said there is no card which says simply that a particular individual was seen at a Communist Party headquarters, but if that individual wrote a communist article or made a Communist speech, those would be in the file.

Here Since 1932

In Texas, Stripling attended Texas A and M, and the University of Texas. He came to Washington in 1932 with a patronage job with Dies. While working on patronage, he went to National University Law School and Washington College of Law here. He did not finish, giving up his studies to work for the Dies Committee, and since then he has never had time to complete the law course.

His work with the committee has been interrupted only by service in the Army. He was drafted in January, 1945, and served mostly in the infantry. During the last three months of service he was assigned to the Counterintelligence Corps at Camp Hollabird, Md., and set up and taught a course on Communist activities in the United States. He wound up as a master sergeant, and was honorably discharged in July of 1946. Two months ago former Sergeant Stripling was pleased to address a group at the Army War College with nothing but senior officers present.

His last vacation was a year ago in July when he had two weeks off. His pet hobby is playing gin rummy with 8-year-old daughter Bunny, who wins nine out of 10 times, he says. His wife, native of North Carolina, was employed in the Treasury when they met here, they were married in 1935. They live in Fairfax Village.

His favorite food is lobster. His regular working day—there is no such thing: the job runs to all hours. He thrives on it; from his Army weight of 145 pounds after infantry basic training, he has gone up to 172; his height, 5 feet 10½ inches.

Hearing Set On Radio Time For Atheists

A House committee yesterday scheduled public hearings, to start next Tuesday, on the question:

Should athiests be granted radio time to reply to religious broadcasts?

The Federal Communications Commission held that atheists have such rights in the so-called Scott decision of July 19, 1946. Its findings have been assailed both by radio interests and religious groups.

Chairman Forest A. Harness (R., Ind.) said the hearings of his special House committee t oinvestigate subversive influences in the FCC will be designed to resolve the dispute.

He said the committee has received "strong representations, particularly by religious groups, that the continued broadcast of religious programs has been seriously jeopardized."

"Because of the underlying implications of the vaguely worded decision," he went on, "it is contended that radio stations have become fearful that if they continue to grant time to religious groups, their licenses might be in jeopardy unless they grant time also to atheistic groups to reply to the religious programs."

'Tokyo Rose' Held For Treason Trial

MRS. IVA IKUKO TOGURI D'AQUINO

'Tokyo Rose' Arrested on Treason Count

Tokyo, Aug. 26 (AP).—The woman American-born Japanese woman accused of being the "Tokyo Rose" of wartime propaganda broadcasts was arrested quietly today for return to the United States on a treason charge.

The woman, Iva Ikuko Toguri D'Aquino, 32, is scheduled to sail September 15 aboard the Army transport Gen. H. Frank Hodges, arriving in San Francisco about September 28.

The treason statute provides for legal proceedings at the spot where a defendant first sets foot on United States soil, so a Federal grand jury will deal with her case in San Francisco.

Mrs. D'Aquino, wife of a Portuguese, had been packed, awaiting arrest, for 10 days, since the United States Justice Department finally decided to proceed with prosecution.

Attorney General Tom Clark has said that she actually was only one of six English-speaking Japanese women who conducted disk jockey programs directed at American troops in the Pacific.

Step Is Taken To Citizenship For Teacher

New York, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—The first step to obtain United States citizenship for Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina, who leaped from the Russian consulate to escape Soviet control, was taken today.

The middle-aged teacher was "apparently in excellent condition," Roosevelt Hospital authorities said. She showed no ill effects from her interview with the press yesterday and was free of fever for the first time since her dramatic jump. She probably will be able to undergo surgery on her fractured right knee Saturday, her doctors said.

Garrard Winston, trustee of Roosevelt Hospital, conferred with Mrs. Kasenkina for an hour today to arrange for the services of a Legal Aid Society attorney.

Peter Hoguet, an attorney for Common Cause, Inc., the organization that sought her release from the consulate on a habeas corpus writ, said all legal papers necessary for Mrs. Kasenkina's application for American citizenship had been prepared and were awaiting her signature.

Meanwhile Common Cause announced the formation of the 'Kasenkina Freedom Fund for victims of communism," whose aims would be to:

1. Take care of Mrs. Kasenkina's medical expenses, legal defense and future employment.

2. Provide the same service for other refugees from Communist persecution.

3. Attempt to persuade Soviet officials or citizens, who are abroad or in a position to escape, to choose freedom as Mrs. Kasenkina did.

4. Help publicize the stories of refugees from communism.

5. Aid self-supporting projects for present and future refugees from communism, through which they can establish their own economic independence.

Chairman of the fund will be Arthur B. Lane, former United States Ambassador to Poland.

The State Department's voice of America said, meanwhile, that a recording of Mrs. Kasenkina's statements to the press yesterday will be broadcast to the Soviet Union in her original Russian.

Soviets Press Drive to Shift U. N. Location

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 26 (AP).—Russia intensified her campaign today for the removal of the United Nations from Lake Success.

The Soviet delegate to the U. N. Economic and Social Council, A. A. Arutiunian, declared it is "increasingly evident that the political atmosphere in and around Lake Success is unsuitable, not only for the Economic and Social Council, but for all other organs of the United Nations."

Arutiunian supported a Chilean proposal to hold the council's 1949 summer session in Geneva, which was adopted by 11 votes to 7.

The general conditions of work at Lake Success are "a scandal," the Soviet delegate declared. The work of the United Nations there is done "in a kind of hangar, with artificial light and air," he said.

Referring to New York's weather, Arutiunian said, "the summer is not much more agreeable there than the winter, either from a weather or a political point of view."

Jap Gets 2-Year Term

Tokyo, Aug. 26 (AP).—Takeo Yanaka, former Japanese Transportation Minister, was sentenced to two years in prison today and fined $2592 for running a black market restaurant.

Party Leaders Regarded Hiss As Red in 1941, Budenz Says

he had disposed of the auto by turning it over to "Crosley," throwing in the car with the apartment he says he subleased to Crosley.

Chambers denied ever getting the Ford. He recalled having driven it. His main story was that Hiss wanted to see the car go to some poor Communist organizer, and that the auto went to a lot or service stations where there was a Communist to handle it.

He said he could not recall the final transaction by which he transferred title to the Ford, suggesting that it may have been a technical step long after he had actually got rid of the car.

When Budenz was questioned Tuesday, he was asked by Chief Investigator Robert Stripling for details about how he had heard the name of Alger Hiss mentioned in Communist circles.

Budenz said it was at the time when he had to look after the defense of the party, and the defense of the Daily Worker, and "from time to time we reviewed people who we could call upon to aid us."

He declared Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the Communist Party, now under indictment with other party leaders for advocating violent overthrow of the Government, said that people like Alger Hiss, Nathan Witt and Edwin Smith, who was then a member of the National Labor Relations Board, could not be called upon as they had been in the past to aid the party in its defense in Washington.

Dennis' reported reason was that they were under a certain cloud, that all the people in Governmental positions in Washington who were friendly to the party or under Communist discipline, were in difficulties at that time.

Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) asked Budenz whether in 1940 or 1941 he came to the conclusion that Hiss was a member of the party.

"Oh, yes," said Budenz. "So I regarded him always."

Budenz said that in 1944 or 1945, a Lieutenant Roth, a member of the party, had suggested the possibility of getting Hiss to use some influence for him. (The Government in 1945 dropped charges against Navy Lieut. Andrew Roth highly secret Government files.) of conspiring to remove unlawfully

Representative Nixon asked this question:

"Is it possible that when Mr. Hiss was referred to in Communist Party circles as being under Communist discipline, that it was simply a case of the Communists claiming as their own a person whom they considered to be a liberal? For example, is it possible that they might have referred to Mrs. Roosevelt as being a Communist, or did they refer to, say, Leon Henderson (former OPA chief) as being a Communist? I wish you to point out if there is a difference in the way in which friends of the party were considered, and those under discipline were considered, because I think there is a distinction there that should be drawn"

Budenz replied first that there was a very definite distinction, that "neither Mrs. Roosevelt nor Leon Henderson were ever referred to as Communists."

"No, I am sure they were not," said Nixon.

Budenz went on to say that there was this difference: "The Communists did refer to those under discipline in a different manner than they do to those who were just friendly to them, and whom they wish to use, and whom they think they can influence."

"Of course there is a remote possibility that Mr. Hiss' name might have been used incorrectly, but I have never found that to happen among Communists. When reporting to themselves they are always as exact as possible, sometimes they are painfully exact.

"I regard to the relationship of a certain individual to the party, and certainly so far as the constant impression on me was concerned, it was that Mr. Hiss was equivalent to a member of the Communist Party.

"The phrase 'Communist Party member,' so far as I refer to it was never used, but that he was under Communist discipline was used, and he was associated with Nathan Witt and Edwin Smith. Of course, this impression was strengthened in my mind, in fact—I knew Mr. Smith to be a member of the Party. I had met him as such."

Like Chambers, Budenz named Lee Pressman, former CIO general counsel, and one-time legal adviser in Government agencies; Nathan Witt, former executive secretary for the National Labor Relations Board, now campaigner for Henry A. Wallace's Progressive Party, and John Abt, also a former Government attorney now campaigning for Wallace. He said he knew all three as members of the Communist Party, but knew only Pressman personally.

He said he also had known Elizabeth T. Bentley, a star witness in the committee's spy investigation, as a Communist who was very trustworthy and was engaged in conspiratorial work. He also testified he knew J. Peters, named by Chambers as former head of the United States Communist underground, as a man of many names and one of the busiest men in the party.

Yesterday's first committee move was an executive session, followed by Chairman Thomas' announcement that it would press the spy investigation until a definite conclusion is reached, but would issue an interim report on Saturday about the progress to date.

At the end, Thomas said the complete testimony would be turned over to the Attorney General "with appropriate recommendations."

Meanwhile, Thomas said, a subcommittee will go to New York probably next Monday to question Peters.

Peters has been ordered to appear before immigration authorities for a deportation hearing.

Thomas said the hearing beginning September 7 will deal with "a new espionage case," reported harboring of known Communists in this country, reports of Communist infiltration into Negro organizations, and the case of Dr. Edward U. Condon, head of the National Bureau of Standards.

A subcommittee has referred to Dr. Condon as "one of the weakest links" in the Nation's chain of atomic security. The committee has never questioned Dr. Condon in public although he has repeatedly asked for a hearing, and has denied the subcommittee's charge.

Police to Check Soviet Photos Of 2 Letters

By The Associated Press

Photographs of two letters Moscow said were written by Mrs. Oksana S. Kasenkina before her leap from the consulate window are being turned over to New York police to find out whether they are genuine.

The State Department announced the action yesterday, without stating there was any official suspicion that they were not written by the refugee Russian school teacher.

But Press Officer Michael J. McDermott noted that "their authenticity has not been confirmed." Other officials made plain they expected the New York police will check personally with Mrs. Kasenkina in the hospital where she is recovering from her leap to freedom from the Soviet consultate.

The two letters represent almost the only unexplored angle of the affair of the Russian school teachers who missed the boat which was to have returned them to their homeland.

The letters may hold the key to Mrs. Kasenkina's actual frame of mind when she was at the Reed farm, an anti-Soviet colony in New York, and later when she leaped from the consulate. Lomakin declared he "rescued" her from White Russian "kidnapers."

After Probe

Secretariat Of U. N. Gets Clean Bill

Lake Success, Aug. 26 (N. Y. HT)—An investigation of charges of subversive activities by United Nations secretariat members found the accusations "were in many instances factually incorrect, vague; represented personal opinions or prejudices; were based on an inadequate or unjudicious interpretation of existing legislation; and contained a series of serious contradictions," Admiral Ellis M. Zacharias, U. S. N., retired, reported today.

At the same time, the Staff Association, representing the secretariat, noted at a general meeting of 600 employes this afternoon that it had "achieved the maximum cooperation with the administration in denouncing attacks upon the secretariat by authoritative governmental representatives of the host nation."

Admiral Zacharias, former deputy chief of Navy Intelligence, made his report for the magazine United Nations World, based on, investigations here and in Washington. The accusations had been made before a Senate subcommittee by Robert C. Alexander, assisting chief of the visa division, and two other subordinate State Department officials.

Alexander, Admiral Zacharias said, had estimated at "several hundred at least" the number of persons who were "undesirable from the standpoint of the best interests of the United States," but indicated these involved only nationals from "the iron curtain countries."

But Admiral Zacharias countered that "the total number of employes from the so-called iron curtain countries is 113.

When pressed for "even partial or nonspecific evidence" that secretariat employes engaged in espionage or other subversive activities, Alexander said he had "some indication" in "one or two instances," Admiral Zacharias related.

These, the State Department official said, were journalists accredited to U. N., rather than secratariat members.

Rogge Hits Soviet Attacks Against U.S.

Wroclaw, Poland, Aug. 26 (AP).—An American struck back tonight against Russian attacks on the United States with the declaration that "no state or political party has any right to tell human beings what to think."

John Rogge, former Assistant U. S. Attorney General, in a speech prepared for delivery to the World Congress of Intellectuals, said "human beings should be taught to think for themselves." He said he was opposed to "authoritarianism of any kind."

He said there were no panacea for the world's ills but most of them could be cured through understanding and cooperation.

Prof. A. J. P. Taylor, a British delegate, told the Congress tonight it is "a congress for hate and war."

The Oxford University history professor said "this congress has not served the purpose of bringing people together. It has been a congress for practcing hate, a congress for war and not peace."

Most of the American and British delegates appeared shocked by the violenee of Russian attacks against the United States and Britain.

Today, for instance, Ilya Ehrenburg, a Russian journalist, told the congress that the United States is preparing for a "barbaric war." He labelled Americans as representing everything from bourgeoise barbarism to savages.

Peace resolutions are slated for adoption Saturday. From the tempo of the congress thus far, however, it is unlikely anything other than a peace program advancing Russian views will be adopted.

'All Legal Means'

Chile Head Warns Reds He'll Fight

Santiago, Chile, Augf. 26 (U.P.)—President Gabriel Gonzales Videla today served sharp notice on the Communist Party that he will 'apply with maximum energy all legal measures at my disposal to nullify" its subversive activities.

Commenting to reporters on yesterday's resignation of Interior Minister Alfonso Quintana Burgos as the result of a series of Communist provoked incidents in Congress, Gonzales said he accepted the resignation "to show the Communist Party that the Government is determined to counteract with all energy every one of their attacks."

The president said he had again called Rear Admiral Immanuel Holger to the Interior Ministry. As previous Minister of Interior, Holger headed the government's anti-communism campaign to end crippling strikes in the coal, copper and nitrate mines last year.

Gonzalez disclosed that while he was away last week, Quintana granted a request by several Communist congressmen for release of 40 or 50 party leaders banished to remote regions of the country.

U. S. Imports From Russia Rise Sharply

By Raymond J. Blair

Despite the "cold war," United States imports from Russia jumped sharply during April, May and June, although our exports to the Russians fell to a fraction of the total shipped in the same period last year.

This was revealed yesterday in a hitherto unpublished Commerce Department report on "U. S. Trade With the U. S. S. R. During January-June, 1948."

The document showed that:

1. United States imports from the U. S. S. R. during the first six months of 1948 exceeded exports by $11,600,000. This, the report said, "is a marked reversal in the traditional pattern of trade between the two countries."

2. The value of all Soviet goods imported into the United States during the first half of 1948 totaled $36,548,000. This exceeded by $4,027,000 the value of our imports from Russia during the first half of 1947.

3. Imports from Russia, including increased quantities of strategic chrome and manganese ore, used, in hardening steel, jumped during April, May and June by 50 per cent over imports during January, February and March of this year.

4. However, as a result of a tougher policy of licensing exports to Russia and its satellites, this Nation's exports to Russia dropped to $24,946,000 during the first half of 1948. During the first half of 1947, the United States shipped $45,370,000 worth of goods to the Russians.

The slump in exports in June—the latest month for which figures have been tabulated—was particularly great. Exports to Russia then were only $23,000, as against $6,262,000 in June of 1947.

5. While exports to Russia were dropping, there was a change in their nature—toward an increased proportion of machinery. More than 90 per cent of all goods shipped to Russia in the first half of this year was in the "machinery and vehicles" classification, as compared to 70 per cent in the first half of last year, although the dollar value dropped sharply.

The department said the emphasis in Soviet procurement during the first half of 1948 shifted somewhat away from machine tools in favor of construction and conveying machinery.

Included in the first-half exports was $89,000 worth of aircraft parts and components.

6. Undressed furs continued to be the leading import from Russia, but there was a slight increase during the first half of 1947.

However, the value of chrome ore imports nearly doubled over last year and this became the leading metallic ore in imports from Russia. Manganese ore imports increased somewhat, also.

7. The first sizeable quantity of asbestos from the USSR since the end of the war was imported in the first half of 1948. Imports of crabmeat and caviar rose sharply but imports of tobacco dropped.

8. Because steel pipes, sheets and railway car wheels—commodities Russia is particularly interested in—were placed under tight export control in mid-1947, the dollar value of American "metals and manufactures" exports to Russia dwindled in the first half of 1948. It slumped from $12,854,000 in the first half of 1947 to $266,000 in January-through-June of this year.

9. Small quantities of tobacco, sisal rope, carbon electrodes, abrasives, scientific instruments and books made up the bulk of our non-machinery exports to Russia during the first half of this year.

The department said $38,000 worth of books, stamps, pictures and other printed matter went to Russia during this period, but gave no clew as to its nature.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the Commerce Department recently granted an export license to the Overseas Mercantile Co., Inc., of 381 4th Avenue, New York, for the shipment of about seven million steel balls worth approximately $19,000, to Czechoslovakia, a Russian satellite. The balls went to the Czech metal and engineering works—the government combine under that nation's system of nationalized industries.

Greeks Launch New Offensive Against Rebels

Athens, Aug. 26 (AP).—Greek army forces have opened a new offensive against 800 to 1000 Communist-led guerillas along the Greek-Yugoslav border northwest of Salonika, a communique said today.

Initial fighting took place in the area of Mount Kaimaktchalan, which lies astride the border.

Other battles with guerillas were reported in the Roumeli sector with 25 guerillas killed and in the Suli area south of Ioannina where the Greek forces captured a mountain position and killed 19 guerillas.

In the Vichi area only a few miles from the Yugoslav border another height fell to the army forces. It is in this region northeast of Katoria where Markos Vafiades, the guerilla leader, may make another strong stand against the army forces.

(The Greek guerilla radio, head in London, said guerilla "light mobile units" are still holding out against government troops in the Grammos area. The broadcast said the guerillas drove off attacks by four government battalions).

Catholic U. Alumni To Hold Reunion

Graduates of Catholic University will hold their first reunion in at least 10 years on the campus here October 22-24. For the past 10 years reunions have all been held in New York City.

Richard W. Galiher, Washington attorney, has been named general chairman of the reunion committee.

Other committee members are Charles P. Maloney, businessman, vice chairman; Nicholas Chase, attorney and president of the Washington chapter of the alumni association, and John L. Schroeder, national alumni secretary.

COUNTER-DEMONSTRATION—Raising their fists and shouting "freedom," anti-Communists in Berlin demonstrate against the Reds in front of the destroyed Reichstag Building. The gathering followed by three hours the Communist-led invasion of the German capital's city hall. Pro-Allies denounced the Communist's action as "the putsch that failed"

Berlin Reds Demonstrate

talk," Karl Litke, a SED leader in the council, cried out. "The hour has come to act."

The crowd roared its approval. He went on:

"Since October, 1946 (when the SED took a heavy beating in the city elections) not one action was taken in this chamber in Berlin's popular interest."

"Put an end to the Assembly," the crowd shouted.

"The Socialists (who got the strongest vote in Berlin) only brought reaction back to power," Litke said. "We demand the workers get a voice in ruling the city.

"There must be an end to this bankrupt city government. We must establish a new democratic adminstration to work hand in hand with the great Soviet Union and the countries of eastern Europe."

Placards Are Carried

Demonstrators carried placards reading "One Adminstration, One Currency," "We Want Potatoes," and "Out With All the Occupation Forces." The last slogan is a cardinal point of Soviet policy and some western observers believe withdrawal of all military forces would set up the country for a Prague-type Communist coup.

Headquarters of SED categorically denied reports that the Communists planned to establish a city government of their own. SED officials said they did not plan to withdraw from the city parliament. A spokesman declared they planned to push through their program in the present parliament.

Acting Lord Mayor Ferdinand Friedensburg told reporters:

"I do not think they planned a real putsch to try to seize the city hall. They aimed at panicking us and scaring us out of the building. Then they could say we deserted and could not be relied upon to run the city."

Tattered Symbol of Unity

The city hall represents the last tattered symbol of unified rule in Berlin since the Russians walked out of the four-power Kommandatura which had supervised the Germans for three years.

The anti-Communist demonstration was held outside the bomb-scarred Reichstag.

"It was a putsch attempt which failed and we will smash any new attempts," cried Hubert Schwennicke, liberal democratic leader, to the crowds standing in the rubble.

Ernst Charnovsky, anti-Communist trade union leader, said "let's finish with this Communist policy of seeking power by illegal and forceful means. If there is no other way we will grasp extreme measures. We won't shrink from a political general strike."

The crowd clamored for Ernst Reuter, Socialist whom the Russians refused to let take over the mayorship after he was elected. He told them:

"Come what may, here in the heart of Germany, we are working for Berlin's unity. We know it is going to be a hard, long fight. We do not underestimate our foes.

"The Communist cripples who stand in front and debate with us we don't fear. But behind them stands an aggressive, ruthless and imperialist Russia which seeks to force us to our knees. We have said 'No' and we will continue to say 'No' as long as we have a single breath left in our bodies."

Elsewhere in Berlin the British military government revoked the "no leaves" order for their personnel in the blockaded city. It had been in effect since early in July.

The United States Air Force announced that in two months of the airlift operation, American planes had flown 100,598 tons of supplies, including 54,428 tons of coal.

The Soviet-licensed news agency ADN reported that two policemen from Berlin's western sectors who were seized in Potsdamer Square last weekend were released today.

Gen. Hodge Leaves Command in Korea

Seoul, (Friday) Aug. 27 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, who for nearly three years symbolized American power and friendship in Korea, took his leave of this divided, fledgling nation today.

With Hodge's departure, American political interests in Korea are in the hands of John J. Muccio, President Truman's special envoy to President Syngman Rhee's government.

The American troop command is taken over by Maj. Gen. John B. Coulter.

U. N. Adviser For Kashmir Truce Urged

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—The Special United Nations Commission for India and Pakistan today urged immediate appointment by the U. N. of a military adviser with the rank of general for truce duty in the disputed state of Kashmir.

The commission also asked the U. N. to prepare to name "on short notice" 40 military observers composed of 20 senior and 20 junior officers who would make up 20 truce teams similar to those operating in Palestine.

(Reliable sources in New Delhi said the U. N. Commission has agreed to accept Indian suggestions for a cease fire in Kashmir. They said also that the commission had agreed to Indian suggestions for a plebiscite to determine whether Kashmir will join India or Pakistan.)

Revolt Flares In Burma Hills; Mines Raided

Rangoon, Aug. 26 (AP).—Sima Duwa Sinwa Mawng, president of the frontier areas, today confirmed an insurrection had broken out in the Kerenni Hills, 70 miles northeast of Toungoo.

Rebels reportedly attacked the Mawchi mines yesterday and took a mine official captive. Martial law was reported declared in Karenni.

Thurmond Asks Probe Of Negro Voter Beating

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 26 (AP).—Governor Thurmond ordered the State constabulary today to investigate a Negro preacher's charge that he was beaten and stabbed by white men after voting August 10 at Calhoun Falls.

The Negro, Archie Ware, said he was attacked near the polling place where he voted in the State's first Democratic primary. He has filed an affidavit with United States Attorney General Tom Clarke.

Bullitt Sees War Possible This Year

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—William C. Bullitt, former United States Ambassador to Russia and France, said today in the current issue of Life magazine, "We may be forced into war this year."

In an article entitled "How We Won the War and Lost the Peace," Bullitt laid "our insecurity" to President Roosevelt's "failure to demand pledges from Stalin in return for lend-lease aid."

Bullitt, Roosevelt's personal ambassadorial representative abroad, wrote:

"In the summer of 1941 we could have laid down the terms on which we were prepared to give aid to the Soviet Union and Stalin would have been obliged to accept our terms."

Then, and until V-E Day, he said, "we held the power to direct the destinies of the world."

Bullitt said the late President's "hunch" was that he could get Stalin to accept "Christian ways and democratic principles" by showing him Russia had nothing to fear.

Bullitt also laid the following to Roosevelt:

"The policy of appeasing Japan which led us by devious paths to the disaster at Pearl Harbor."

The Navy's new 82½-ton Mars, largest flying boat in operation, was being primed at Honolulu yesterday for a weekend nonstop shakedown flight to Chicago.

Taking off from Pacific headquarters today at about 9 a. m. Hololulu time, the mammoth ship is scheduled to make the 4200-mile hop in 23 hours, for an average ground speed of 182.6 miles per hour.

Under this schedule, the four-engine Mars should alight on Lake Michigan at about 1 p. m. (CDT), Saturday. In lake front ceremonies on Sunday, it will be christened the Caroline Mars.

The Navy said the new Mars, which has a gross take-off weight of 10 tons more than the four earlier versions now flying the Pacific, will carry a 13,000-pound payload on its final shakedown mission.

Soon afterward, the double-deck ship will go into service on the San Francisco-Honolulu run, carrying a combination cargo-mail-personnel payload of 38,000 pounds on each flight.

To illustrate the size of the ship, the Martin company points out that its flight deck alone is larger than the entire interior of a 21-passenger DC-3 airliner; that it has two dozen telephones, 7½ miles of wiring, a wingspan equal to the height of a 20-story building, and that its cubic content equals that of a 14-room house.

Pacific Hero

O'Donnell To Command 15th Air Unit

O'Donnell

Maj. Gen. Emmett A. (Rosie) O'Donnell, 41-year-old Pacific bomber hero, has been appointed commanding officer of the Fifteenth Air Force at Colorado Springs, Colo.

O'Donnell succeeds Maj. Gen. Leon Johnson, who recently took over the three B-29 groups now training in England.

O'Donnell led the first B-29 raid on Tokyo. After the surrender he tried to fly nonstop from Japan to Washington, was forced down

In 1941 he took the first squadron of B-17s across the western Pacific.

Puerto Rico Riot Quelled

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Violence broke out on the campus of the University of Puerto Rico today. Police and rebellious students clashed in a free-for-all during which several shots were fired and blackjacks used. No casualties were reported.

An undisclosed number of student leaders were arrested.

Police had been expecting trouble since the new semester opened four days ago. Rebellious students had threatened to strike unless Chancellor Jaime Benitez resigned at once and other student demands were met.

Chief grievance against Chancellor Benitez was his refusal to allow Nationalist Leader Pedro Albizu Campos to speak from the university auditorium. Albizu served a term in Atlanta Penitentiary

Trade Unionists Near Revolt At British Pay-Price Policy

London, Aug. 26 (NYHT.).—British trade unionists have prepared a revolt against the Labor government's wages and price policy. Publication tonight of the agenda of the eightieth annual conference of the Trades Union Congress (September 6-10) disclosed at least 10 resolutions critical of national economic policy. Approval of the resolutions would constitute a challenge to the government leadership.

The resolutions complain the government in effect has ordered a wage freeze while permitting prices and profits to creep upward.

Resolutions demand greater worker representation in management; legislation to make it compulsory for all employers to accord full trade union recognition; publication by the government of an index of business salaries, commissions, and profits, similar to a wages index; immediate nationalization of the iron and steel industry by "special government decree"; and nationalization of the rubber manufacturing industry.

Russian Food Prices Dropping, Radio Says

London, Aug. 26 (U.P.). — Radio Moscow said tonight that food prices in the Soviet Union have dropped sharply, in contrast with those of the United States and other countries.

The broadcast said milk prices are down 25 per cent from July quotations on the collective farm market, and that meat prices are down 40 per cent.

Draft Board Aides Briefed on Duties

Upward of 700 volunteer workers for the District's draft registration Monday took their final cue yesterday for recording data on some 50,000 men.

Chief registrars and helpers met in two groups at Departmental Auditorium with William E. Leahy, District director of Selective Service, and Frank D. Norton, deputy director.

After the orientation discussion, volunteers were sworn in, given necessary forms for registration and handed forms for waiving pay.

At the same time, District Commissioners approved the nomination of two new draft board members to round out their roster for the city.

George A. Parker, 4604 Kane pl. ne., formerly of Local Board No. 10, was named to replace R. Frank Jones at Local Board No. 3. William F. Thompson, 654 Girard st. nw., was appointed to No. 10 Board.

Deputy Director Nordon emphasized the necessity of veterans having discharge papers if they must register under the Draft Act of 1948.

Under the act, male residents of the United States between the ages of 18 and 26 as of August 30 are required to register. Exceptions include men already in various elements of military and certain Federal services.

At the morning session, Director Leahy said he doubts if the District will draft many men in the age groups between 22 and 25, because about four out of five of them served in the armed forces during World War II.

Local boards will mail to registrants notices of classification, notices to appear for physical examination, notices of the result of physical examinations and orders to report for induction. Mailing of any order will be considered due notice to registrants, whether they actually receive them or not.

Arlington County officials said eligible men may register at the local board office, 3150 Wilson blvd.; John Marshall School, 4751 N. 25th st., and Nellie Custis School, 712 S. 23d st. On September 11 and 18, additional schools, to be announced later, will be open.

In the Bethesda, Chevy Chase and Potomac area of Montgomery County, registration will be held in the local board office, 4700 Norwood dr., Chevy Chase.

At Rockville, an office will be set up on the second floor of the Postoffice Building. This local board, No. 52, covers Poolesville, Boyd, Gaithersburg, Clarksburg, Damascus, Sandy Spring, Hyattstown, Garrett Park, Brooksville and Olney.

R. Granville Curry is chairman of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Board, No. 54, which includes these members: John D. Sadler, James H. Pugh, F. Archie Meatyard, jr., and Mrs. O. Nile Harkins. The last two are appeal agents.

Stephen C. Cromwell is chairman of local board No. 52 in Montgomery County.

Ochs Urges Return To Old Beliefs

Philadelphia, Aug. 26 (AP).—The world today needs Christian young people with "a willingness to sacrifice in service for humanity," Elder Daniel A. Ochs of Washington told 5000 delegates to the Seventh Day Adventist Youth's Congress tonight.

"Politically the world is crumbling," Elder Ochs added. "Its social structure is giving way and religiously there is a deplorable trend away from the teachings of the word of God."

Quantico Tour

D. C. Scouts Learn Life of Leathernecks

Two hundred senior scouts from the Greater Washington area are learning first hand about the rugged life of a leatherneck at the Marine Corps School at Quantico, Va.

On a three-day visit at the invitation of Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., post commander, the scouts are experiencing an active round of target practice with small arms, sailing skiffs and witnessing demonstrations of amphibious landings.

Highlights of the visit, which started Wednesday, included trips through the Marine Corps Amphibious School, Museum and docks. At the FBI Academy on the reservation, the youths saw G-men demonstrate trick shooting with mirrors and diamond rings as reflection surfaces to aim pistols.

Safely seated in specially erected bleachers, the scouts today will witness an onslaught on fortified positions, with attackers laying down heavy barrages and advancing with flame-throwers. The group returns home Saturday morning.

Lovelace Given Life Term

Marion, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—Edgar Lovelace, Troutdale, was sentenced yesterday in Smyth County Circuit Court to a life term in the penitentiary. He was charged with fatally shooting his wife, Hazel Short Lovelace, a supervisor at Southwestern State Hospital, on March 13.

China Accuses Siam

Nanking, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—China charged formally today that Siam violated the Sino-Siamese treaty of amity and demanded the immediate release of Chinese nationals who have been raersted in Siam.

The United Spanish War Veterans yesterday folded their tents on their fiftieth encampment here after installing a former Marine as national commander for the first time in the organization's history.

Charles R. Barefoot, 64, a lawyer from Toledo, Ohio, who served with the Marines during the Philippines Insurrection from 1899 to 1902, was chosen to succeed 48 former Army men and one former Navy man who have served as commander in the past.

Barefoot and Henry H. Hunt of Hartford Conn., named senior vice commander in chief, were elected without opposition.

The post of junior vice commander in chief went to Harry E. Williams of Portland, Oreg., who won over three other nominees.

Tampa, Fla., was selected for the fifty-first encampment.

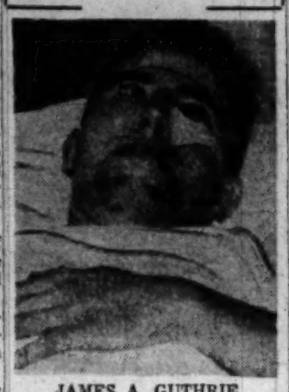
The women's auxiliary elected Mrs. Mary Ross McKay, Avon Lake, Ohio, president; Grace M. Alexander, Phoenix, Ariz., senior vice president, and Lillian E. Baumann, Michigan City, Ind., junior vice president.

Edward S. Matthias, Columbus, Ohio, a past national commander and a justice of the Ohio Supreme Court for 33 years, installed the new officers.

Resolutions adopted by the veterans indorsed universal military training, urged legislation to curb communism and demanded an adequate national defense.

Crawls 585 Feet

Veteran Hit By Train Saves Life



JAMES A. GUTHRIE
Recovering in hospital

A young Army veteran was credited with saving his own life yesterday when a train mangled the lower part of his left leg near College Park, Md.

Police said he applied a tourniquet to the crushed leg, then crawled 585 feet to summon aid. His leg had to be amputated above the knee at Leland Memorial Hospital.

Last night at the hospital, the veteran, James A. Guthrie, 25, of 5818 Ruratan st., Berwyn Heights, was reported "resting comfortably." He was brought to the hospital about 8 a. m.

Guthrie's remaining leg was severely and permanently injured in 1943, while he was in an Army training camp, resulting later in his discharge from the service.

Prince Georges County police, still investigating the accident, said Guthrie evidenty was struck by a southbound train on a bridge over Paint Creek about a half mile north of the College Park station.

At the time of the accident Guthrie was en route from his home to his job at an electronics laboratory in College Park, police said.

Police said Guthrie, who remained conscious after being struck by the train, took off his belt and fashioned the tourniquet on the stump of his mangled leg. They said he also apparently had dragged himself along the track until his cries for help attracted the attention of employes at the College Park Airport nearby.

Members of the Branchville rescue squad, which took Guthrie to the hospital, said he told them he failed to see or hear the approaching train. He was in too shocked a condition to give further details of the accident, they said.

Loses Little Blood

Police said Guthrie had lost "surprisingly" little blood and that his first-aid action undoubtedly saved his life.

According to Guthrie's father, the Rev. Laurence R. Guthrie, a Methodist minister, the youth usually rode a local train to work, but apparently had missed it yesterday morning, probably deciding to walk, a distance of nearly 3 miles.

The train crew apparently was unaware of the accident and continued into Washington, police said.

Baltimore & Ohio railroad police last night were trying to determine which train struck the man and also to get more exact information as to the time of the accident.

Train Flagged Down

Immediately after the ambulance call was received, a northbound train was flagged down and delayed for about 20 minutes until Guthrie could be removed from the tracks.

Guthrie, employed as a radar and electronics worker at the Maryland electronics Laboratory in College Park, lost his "good" leg. In 1943, while serving in the Army, he suffered a training camp accident to his right knee which resulted in his later discharge from service.

Milk Costlier In Baltimore association, said it was "a policy matter" decided by the board of directors, which meets the beginning of each month.

Food prices generally are substantially the same as a week ago, with pork showing some increase. One store increased its all-pork sausage meat from 53 to 55 cents a pound, as it did skinless frankfurters, and raised ham, veal and pimento bologna from 65 to 69 cents a pound.

Smoked hams were offered at 73 cents a pound by a chain store, this week as compared with 71 cents a week ago.

At other stores spot checked, legs of lamb were selling for 69 cents a pound both weekends, and bacon at 65 cents a pound.

An independent supermarket said it had cut "a low grade 'good' or high grade commercial" steak from 98 to 79 cents a pound, veal from $1.10 to 89 cents, and lamb leg from 89 to 69 cents a pound and still could not sell it because of consumer resistance to high meat prices.

Fruit and vegetables generally remained about the same in price. Lettuce is a little higher, and much of the peach supply is described as not being very good. One store cut California cantaloupes from 12 to 10 cents a pound, home-grown tomatoes from 12½ to 10 cents a pound, and another showed a half-cent price cut in fresh lima beans, now 12 cents a pound.

Judge Anderson Silent on Report Of Resignation

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—Judge Marvin L. Anderson today declined to affirm or deny reports that he will resign as an associate judge of Maryland's Fifth Judicial Circuit.

The Evening Capital said Anderson, whose term runs to 1950, had submitted his resignation from the $8500-a-year job to Governor Lane.

Anderson, who on March 9 succeeded Judge William J. McWilliams, resigned, is a former Anne Arundel County State's attorney.

The Capital said it was "reported in reliable circles" that he "plans to return to the private practice of law."

Anderson, sitting at Annapolis, has cases docketed for the next two weeks, his office said.

DPs Donate Rations To Aid Besieged Berlin

Frankfurt, Aug. 26 (NYHT)—Almost 1000 adult Baltic displaced persons in a camp at Anspach in the United States zone have each donated a full day's ration to assist the population of Berlin "in the struggle for the ideas of Western democracy," they announced today.

The normal DP ration amounts to 2500 calories daily, while German civilians are allocated 1800 calories each.

Police Hunting Bandits Battle 2 Diplomats

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Each side thought it was battling holdup men today until a bystander—who knew better—separated two city detectives and two Dominican diplomats.

The fight started when the detectives were investigating a report of a holdup. Spotting two men talking to a taxi driver on West 5th st., they leaped out of their car.

"I'm a cop," one of the detectives said. But Rafael Perez, Consul General of the Dominican Republic, says he "thought it was a holdup."

In a slugfest that followed, the other detective and Col. F. A. Feliz Miranada, Dominican Military Attache, became involved.

A garageman who knew the diplomats stopped the fight and there were apologies all around.

However, Perez said he would make a report to his Ambassador.

The holdup? It was only a false alarm.

Vermont Man Sees Mayoralty Job Sewed Up

Barre, Vt., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Harley Walter Kidder announced tonight that he was a candidate for mayor and said he would ask the state Supreme Court to order an election so he could take over the job.

Kidder, who is 47 and a graduate of the University of Vermount Medical School, said he was sure he could win because he apparently is the only one who knows an election should be held.

The incumbent, Chauncy M. Willey, was elected in March, but Kidder says his term is about over since the city charter, as amended in 1945, provides for bi-annual elections.

The lawmakers might have meant biennial elections—one every two years, he said, but they said bi-annual.

As a result, Kidder already has filed his papers and no one else has although the leagle deadline has passed.

British Units Plan Mock Sea Battle

London, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—British planes and a large naval task force will stage three days of mock sea-air warfare in the English Channel starting September 23, the Admiralty announced today.

The battleship Duke of York, three aircraft carriers, three cruisers and more than a dozen destroyers and auxilary vessels will join submarines, motor torpedo boats and heavy bombers in the operations.

The fleet exercises will come less than three weeks after British American planes "raid" Britain in four days of mock attack starting September 3.

U. S. Seeks Cause Of 2-Plane Crash

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—Federal inspectors today studied the wreckage of two Piper Cubs in an effort to determine why the planes crashed head-on in a wide-open, cloudless sky.

Four persons rode to death yesterday when the tyo yellow two-seaters locked wings, tore apart and fell like rocks half a mile apart. CAA Inspectors H. G. Meyers and R. G. Reckner declined comment pending the completion of their investigation.

Meanwhile funeral services were set for 3 p. m. Friday for Mrs. Helen Schmidt McGilvery, 31, manager of the Annapolis Airport, whose charred body was found in one of the broken planes. She will be buried here

Funeral services also were being arranged for Navy Mechanic George C. Barnett, 24, of Meade, Kans., student pilot with Mrs. McGilvery; Philip Mihaltian, 33, of Essex, Md., mechanic of nearby Lee Airport, and Navy Rarioman Charles T. Hydrock, 25, of Kingston, Pa.

Kaiser Experts Go To Disputed Plant

By the United Press

Henry J. Kaiser yesterday dispatched his steel-making experts to Cleveland to arrange "continued operation" of the 28-million-dollar blast furnace which Republic Steel Corp., claims he acquired in a "stinking deal" with the War Assets Administration.

Kaiser said his employes will arrive there today to "plunge into work" at the furnace and coking plant. The party is headed by F. M. Rich, operating chief of Kaiser's iron and steel production.

Kaiser's acquisition of the furnace was given a 14-hour airing by a joint congressional committee Wednesday, with Republica President C. M. White bitterly attacking the transaction.

The furnace, built by the Government during the war, now is operated by Republic. Kaiser's lease becomes effective September 1.

Kaiser countered White's attack by asserting that War Assets Administrator Jess Larson asked him about taking over the furnace only after Republic said it had decided to stop making pig iron at Cleveland.

Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.), chairman of a Senate subcommittee looking into the affair, said members would keep a close watch on the final lease drawn up between Kaiser's auto-making firm and WAA.

Chairman George H. Bender (R., Ohio), of the House group, said "legality" of the lease is still subject to question because Larson did not submit it to WAA's general board.

Senator Bricker (R., Ohio) said that politics "certainly were involved" in the transfer of the blast furnace. He said that Henry Kaiser has been and still is a "fair haired boy of the Administration."

Larson has said that he decided to cut Government red tape after Republic told him it no longer wanted to run the furnace.

Sidney Sachs Joins Faculty of Law College

Sidney S. Sachs, 31, assistant United States attorney here, was appointed yesterday to the faculty of the Washington College of Law.

Sachs

Sachs, who resides at 8712 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, Md., will teach the law of sales during the coming term. He is a graduate of American University and Georgetown University Law School.

As an assistant United States attorney, Sachs is in charge of appeals court work. Prior to becoming a prosecutor three years ago, he was an assistant cashier of the Bank of Commerce and Savings.

Booming Again

Scranton Pulls Out Of Slump

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 26 (AP).—Two years ago this mine scarred city wallowed in a mire of declining business, population and faith in the future.

Today Scranton has boosted its population and owns 11 new industrial plants, each of them either leased or spoken for by new industries.

The buildings were built with bonds, bought by housewives, miners, janitors, bankers, newsboys and the other 140,000-odd citizens, big and small.

The industries the new plants have attracted here have helped to swell the population of the area to 300,100.

Scranton fell into evil days when anthracite, king of Lackawanna Valley, tumbled from his throne. More than 50,000 residents left before the war ended.

In March, 1946, a group of businessmen formed "Scranton Plan Inc.," and "The Scranton-Lackawana Industrial Building Co."

Selling first mortgage, 4 per cent bonds in denominations of $100, $500, $1000 and $10,000, they built a kitty of more than one million dollars and first bought a $3,500,000 defense plant from the Government for less than half its cost. It now is producing stoves, kitchen cabinets and sinks.

The planners, with an eye to declining employment of coal diggers, have gone after companies which employ only men.

Forty and Eight District Unit Convenes Tonight

The twenty-third annual two-day convention of the District Salon Department of the Eight and Forty will open at 8 p. m. today in the Chantilly Room of the Hamilton Hotel, 14th and K sts. nw.

Officers elected tonight will be installed at 8 p. m. Saturday. Only one slate will be presented: Mrs. Frances F. Snow, for Chapeau Departemental; Mrs. Claire Smithson, demi-premiere; Mrs. Mae Hart, demi-duexieme; Mrs. Dorothy Murray, surintendante; Mrs. Irene O'Connor, convcierge; Mrs. Pearl Heagerty, l'archisfe; Mrs. Marie Hargy, l'aumonier; Mrs. Laura Lipscomb; musicienne; Mrs. Amelie Selinger, salon aide; Mrs. Fonda McVicker and Mrs. Estelle Mead, color bearers; Mrs. Thelma Healy and Mrs. Ercelle Quinn, color guards.

The slate includes as delegates to the annual national convention to be held in Miami: Mrs. Eva B. Carrico, outgoing chapeau departemental; Mrs. Snow, Mrs. Virginia McCarthy, Mrs. Rae R. Zaontz and Miss Emily Carey.

Today Set as Deadline For Briefs in CTC Case

Today is the deadline for the filing of final briefs in the Capital Transit Co. fare rate increase case. A decision is expected within three weeks, Commissioner James W. Lauderdale, acting PUC chairman, said yesterday.

CTC has asked a boost in cash fares from 10 cents to 15 cents, two tokens for a quarter and a weekly pass advance from $1.50 to $1.85.

Grand Jury to Hear Evidence AgainstCashier

The District grand jury will meet Tuesday to hear evidence in the $572 shortage in the accounts of Robert A. Cornelius, 34, of 2809 51st ave., Dillon Park, Md., a cashier in the District tax collector's office.

Cornelius was dismissed by the District Commissioners recently after he made restitution but failed to reply to charges of mishandling the tax funds.

Fined for Exposure

Henry H. Stutts, 46, of 1722 21st st. nw., charged with indecent exposure on August 4 in front of three children, was sentenced yesterday in Municipal Court to pay a $500 fine or serve 360 days in jail.

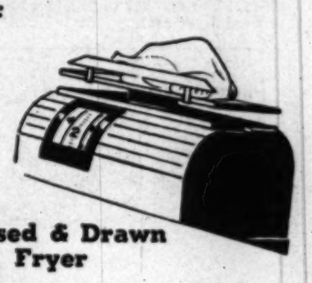
FANCY, GRADE A FRYERS

How can one Frying Chicken sell for 49c a pound and another at 69c a pound, yet both cost you the same? Here's the answer:

N. Y. Dressed Fryer

A chicken that has head and feet on and entrails in and weighs 3 pounds with but the feathers removed, is known in the trade as a "New York Dressed" Frying Chicken.



Dressed & Drawn Fryer

The same chicken when completely dressed and drawn weighs 2 pounds, 2 ounces, a loss of 14 ounces for the inedible parts. This is known as a "Dressed and Drawn" Frying Chicken and is ready for the pan.

The rest is simple mathematics. The 3-pounds New York Dressed Fryer at 49c per pound will cost you $1.47. The 2-pound 2-ounce Dressed and Drawn Fryer at 69c per pound will cost you $1.47.
COMPARE THE CONVENIENCE of buying chicken this way. It's completely cleaned. Requires no additional preparation at home, and no waiting for the meat cutter to prepare your fryer at time of purchase.
COMPARE QUALITY! Each bird is carefully selected for tenderness and flavor. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.

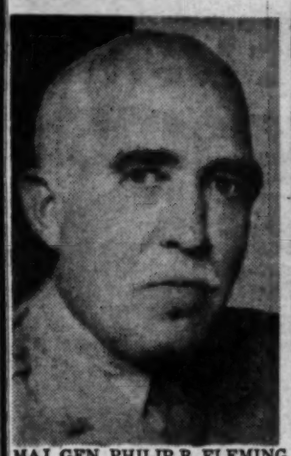
Financier Sought In Partner's Death



MAJ. GEN. PHILIP B. FLEMING, Federal Works Administrator, has been named chairman of volunteer solicitors in the FWA during the forthcoming Community Chest Federation Campaign. The twentieth annual Red Feather drive has a goal of $4,566,790 for continuing Chest-supported agencies in Washington

General Given Red Feather Post

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 26 (AP).—Henry Martin Brooks, 61, a New York financier, was sought today in the death of his business partner, Joseph R. Watkins, in the driveway of Princeton Inn last night.

Mercer County Prosecutor Mario H. Volpe said he had "definitely established that Brooks was at the murder scene."

Volpe said Brooks owed his partner $72,000 as a result of a suit instituted by Watkins and that Brooks had made unsuccessful efforts to have the judgment set aside.

"We know that Brooks telephone Watkins last night and told him to come to the Princeton Inn," Volpe said. "We have an excellent description of Brooks from several witnesses."

Volpe said he had filed a murder charge against Brooks. Volpe said he had "the stories of enough witnesses to warrant making the charge."

Watkins, a lawyer and investment broker, was slain as he sat in his automobile in the driveway of the inn. An autopsy report said he died instantly from two bullet wounds.

Brooks and Watkins operated an investment corporation in New York with several interlocking enterprises.

Watkins, a graduate of Harvard Law School, lived in Princeton and maintained a residence in New York. He was a member of the family owning the Watkins Pharmaceutical Co.

Mother Loses 2-Year Faith That Son Lived

Kenvil, N. J., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Mrs. William Stolz went home to her Michigan farm today, convinced at last that her son is dead.

For two years, Mrs. Stolz had insisted that Jere Baker, 23, a garage mechanic, was her son Vernon, lost in a submarine six years ago.

She had seen Baker's picture in the papers when he was shot down over Tokyo on his thirtieth mission as a B-29 wing gunner. Convinced he was her missing son, she wrote letter after letter.

For two years Baker answered her letters. He pointed out that his fingerprints proved he was not her son. He argued that her son had been lost before he even went into the Air Force.

But Mrs. Stolz was not sure. She said Baker's voice over the phone sounded just like her son's. Their handwritings were similar.

Yesterday she came to see for herself. And Baker gave her the final proof. She saw that his knuckles were perfectly normal. Her son Vernon had scarred the knuckles of his right hand in early childhood.

Mrs. Stolz was convinced. She stayed for dinner with the Bakers, then started driving back to Saginaw, Mich.

When she left, Mrs. Stolz turned to Baker's mother:

"I'm convinced now," she said quietly. "I'll just have to face it."

Costs Jumps 30 Pct.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—State highway right-of-way costs climbed 30.3 per cent in the fiscal year ended June 30, a State Highway Department spokesman said today. The number of projects increased 5 per cent.

Seminary Confers 14 M.A. Degrees On Adventists

Fourteen students of the Seventh-Day Adventists Theological Seminary at Takoma Park last night received master of arts degrees at the school's eighth annual commencement, held in the seminary's chapel on Laurel ave.

The principal address was given by Dr. Frank H. Yost, professor of church history, who spoke on "He That Taketh His Life." Degrees were conferred by Denton E. Rebok, president of the seminary.

The graduates represent the teaching, ministerial and other professions in the Adventists' denominational work throughout the United States, Canada, England, China, India and the Far East. Several are missionaries on furlough, who will return to their foreign posts.

Research 'Chute Lands After Ten Weeks in High Air

Hollistern, Calif., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Air Force officers today recovered the second of 10 huge parachutes that were "released" with secret "upper air research" instruments at high altitudes in mid-June at Alamogordo, N. Mex.

The nature of the upper air "release" was not disclosed. But the 'chute had either drifted or been carried by some unrevealed projectile nearly a quarter the distance across the continent from the territory where experiments have been and are being conducted on atomic bombs, rockets and guided missiles.

The parachute from which secret instruments and cloth and aluminum streamers still dangled came down on a mountain peak

Kindred Bank to Dissolve

Emporia, Kans., Aug. 26 (AP).—The City Finance Co. Inc., which was headed by Herbert J. Kindred was ordered dissolved today by District Judge Jay Sullivan and a receiver appointed to liquidate whatever assets may be available.

Kindred's bullet-pierced body was found near Florence, Kans., a week ago. William Gayer, held on a first degree murder charge, has told officers Kindred offered him $1000 to kill him so his wife could collect his insurance. Gayer said he turned down the offer.

George A. Miller, chief auditor for the State Corporation Commission, said that in his opinion the company was insolvent and the public would suffer if it were permitted to continue to do business.

No English Lazybones, Visiting Chief Finds

London, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—African Chief Micka, Negro leader of 50,000 Kenya natives, paid high tribute today to Britain's production drive.

"Britain is a fine country. I have not seen one lazy man sitting under a tree," said the chief, visiting here to study agricultural methods.

There are only 2 "Best Ways" to color margarine

1. Right in the churn it's made in!

This is the method used when butter is colored. This is the way yellow Nucoa is colored for states where its sale is not forbidden.* This is the way we hope the law will soon permit all margarine to be colored—at no extra cost to you!

2. By NUCOA'S "Bowl Mix"

BECAUSE Nucoa's "Bowl Mix" protects the fine quality, taste, and texture that make Nucoa America's favorite margarine! No halfway measures are tolerated in the making of Nucoa. Appetizingly churned, chilled, made into pounds, and triple-wrapped, Nucoa comes to you with the finest churn-fresh flavor, the smoothest churn-fresh texture any spread can have. It is not melted and poured into a trick coloring package, for we do not believe you would want us to impair the flavor and texture of delicious Nucoa this way. So, until the law frees us to give you yellow Nucoa, you, we think, will want to continue to color it for your table by the nicer "bowl mix" method.

BECAUSE it's as quick as any way—test it! Here's the quick, easy, appetizing way to color margarine: Let Nucoa stand at room temperature until it is soft—not soupy, but soft enough for quick sandwich spreading. Remove it from the package to a large bowl and with a large fork or spoon cream in the coloring shaken from the pure color wafer. It takes less than a minute and a half to mix the color in evenly—and no other method is quicker than this; no other method so well protects the texture.

BECAUSE it brings you the best margarine—cheaper! When you buy margarine in a trick coloring package, you pay extra for the package. When you buy Nucoa you buy its finer flavor, its year-round, churn-fresh goodness, its rich food energy and dependable Vitamin A. You get the best margarine—the margarine you're proudest to put on your table—actually cheaper!

*Obtainable yellow (where not prohibited by state law) at a higher cost, to cover high Federal taxes and license fees.

NUCOA America's Most Popular Margarine

House Auto Probe Gets Specific Cases

Investigators for a House subcommittee probing the gray market in used cars in this area are amassing details on specific racket cases to be made public at open hearings, it was learned yesterday.

Already in a number of cases the investigators have demanded, and received, the books of auto sales firms suspected of price gouging for new "used" cars.

E. R. Ferguson, jr., assistant counsel for the House Subcommittee to Investigate Questionable Trade Practices, said yesterday that the hearings will avoid general accusations and will deal with specific abuses. Date for the hearings was not disclosed.

He emphasized that the "decent, honest dealers" have nothing to fear from the probe. "We will attack the abuses," Ferguson said. "The result will place legitimate dealers in a good light."

Ferguson said the subcommittee plans to look into several phases of the auto sales business in greater Washington area, including the practice of fee splitting on auto insurance.

Ten Years

2 D. C. Men Sentenced in Taxi Robbery

Two Washington men charged with robbery of a taxicab were sentenced in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday to a total of 10 years in prison.

Sentenced to Maryland Penitentiary for six years was Alvie Carlisle Wright, 26, of 1408 14th st. nw. Given a four-year term in the Maryland House of Correction was Charles Robert Bucklew, 40, of Franklin Park Hotel.

The two were arrested, police said, after they hailed a Bonded Taxicab operated by Valentine Ray, 1369 I st. nw., early on July 31 and announced they were "taking over".

In Bethesda, police said, they forced Ray to obtain 5 gallons of gasoline in a filling station and to drive off without paying the attendant. Alternately driving themselves and forcing Ray to take the wheel, the men finally wound up at Laurel, Md., where Ray drew the attention of a town policeman by flashing his brake lights.

Also in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday, three youths were sentenced to indeterminate sentences of not more than six years each in the Maryland Reformatory for Males at Hagerstown, Md., on charges of burglary.

They were Henry Silva, 18, of 4511 Standord st., Chevy Chase; Fletcher Folden, 19, of 7024 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, and John Safford, 19, of 116 Everett st., Kensington.

They were charged with breaking into the home of Donal L. Chamberlin, Kenwood developer of 205 Highland dr., on July 24 and stealing a quantity of guns, ammunition and clothing valued at $1000.

Turkey Prices To Rise, U. S. Says

Your thanksgiving turkey probably will cost you more than ever this year.

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday there will be fewer birds this November, and therefore it expects prices to be higher.

Turkey production is estimated at only 31,710,000 birds, 10 per cent less than last year and the smallest crop since 1938.

2000 to Attend Army Medical Picnic Today

More than 2000 military personnel and their families are expected to attend the 173d anniversary picnic of the Army Medical Department at 2 p.m. today on the grounds of Walter Reed Hospital.

Features of the outing will include athletic events, a soft ball game between officers and enlisted men, swimming and a frankfurter roast.

The event was originally scheduled for July 27, in commemoration of the founding of the Army Medical Department on July 27, 1775, by the Continental Congress. The picnic was postponed until today because of the death of General Pershing.

Other officers include the Rev. Charles O. Sloane, St. Joseph's Seminary, Yonkers, vice president; the Rev. Louis Hartmann, Catholic University, Washington, general secretary, and the Rev. John Steinmuller, Immaculate Conception Seminary, Huntingdon, N. Y., treasurer.

2 Burned in Powder Blast

Elkton, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—Two men were burned today in an explosion that destroyed a powder mixing building at the Columbia Manufacturing Co. here. They were George Jenkins, 26, of R. D. 5, Elkton, and Herbert Pugh, 37, of Elkton.

School Theft Sentence Given

James C. Grice, 55, no fixed address, was given a 20-to-60-month jail term yesterday after pleading guilty to stealing five motion picture projectors, a movie screen and a radio phonograph from three schools here.

Sentence was imposed in District Court by Justice Richmond B. Keech. The value of the stolen equipment was almost $1000.

According to the charges, Grice, a janitor, looted the schools at night. Taken were two movie projectors and a screen from the Jefferson Junior High School, two projectors from Miner Teachers College, and a projector and radio phonograph from the Eetkington School. The thefts occurred last spring, it was said.

Chinese Rebels Raid Johore Rubber Estate

Singapore, Aug. 26 (AP).—Fifty Chinese insurgents raided the Amber rubber estate in south Johore State last night, killing a guard and wounding five persons.

They burned the estate office and rubber stocks and fled into the jungle before British reinforcements got around road blocks to reach the scene.

Indonesians Protest Seizure of Hospital

Batavia, Java, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Indonesian news agency Antara said today a Republican delegation had protested to the United Nations Good Offices Committee against Dutch seisure Tuesday of a Republican hospital in Batavia.

The staff was reported to have walked out, though invited to continue work.

Industries Urged to Aid Stockpiling

The Munitions Board appealed for voluntary allocation by industries in announcing yesterday a new list of 28 items critically needed for the Nation's defense stockpile.

These materials, on its 1948 third quarter procurement program, will be bought between July 1 and October 1, for delivery before June 30, 1949. Purchase will be from the board's current 300-million-dollar appropriation.

Industries which import, produce or process the needed materials are being asked to obtain for the Government a certain percentage in excess of their normal supply. Many industries have indicated their willingness to do so, the board said.

Munitions Board officials emphasized that current supply conditions were kept in mind in setting up the third quarter goals in order to minimize effects of the program on the price structure of the materials covered.

Not included in this list are the long range programs intended primarily to develop new sources for stockpile materials and for which deliveries cannot be expected until after next June 30.

The list follows:

Bauxite, castor oil, chromite, columbite, industrial diamonds, graphite, maganese ore, mica, monazite, nickel, talc, tin, asbestos, beryl, bismuth, cadmium, cocoanut oil, copper, cordage fibers, sisal, corundum, kyanite, lead, palm oil, pepper, quinidine, rubber, shellac and zinc.

AVC Heads Score Move to Increase GI Interest Rate

By the United Press

Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., and other officials of the American Veterans Committee yesterday denounced in strong terms a Veterans' Administration proposal to raise the interest rate on GI home loans.

They accused VA Administrator Carl R. Gray, jr., of suggesting that the Government renege on its wartime promise to fighting men, and lambasted the proposed one-half per cent interest hike as "unnecessary, inflationary and most burdensome on those least able to pay."

The AVC leaders replied to a letter from Gray requesting the views of veterans' organizations on a plan to authorize banks to charge 4½ per cent interest instead of the present 4 per cent on the Government-guaranteed GI housing loans.

World Uncertain, Half-Million Will Names No Charity

Richmond, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—Isaac J. Marcuse, 80, Richmond industrialist, left an estate valued at $500,000, but made no bequests to charities because "of national and international uncertainties."

The will of Marcuse, who died in Middlesex County August 24, was probated today in Chancery Court.

The bulk of the estate goes to Marcuse's three children, John A. Marcuse of Scarsdale, N. Y.; Sadie M. Straus of Richmond, and Rosalie M. Cohen of Richmond.

Two Victims of Polio–East and West

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HOSPITALIZED—Curtis (Buzzy) Boettiger, 18, is transferred from an ambulance to General Hospital in Los Angeles where he is under treatment for a mild case of infantile paralysis, the same disease which crippled his grandfather, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. "He didn't seem very sick, but doctors advised us to take every precaution," said Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, the youth's mother. As a boy, young Boettiger lived in the White House, where he and his sister, now Mrs. Anna Dall Seagraves, were known as Buzzy and Sistie

Tne Washington Post

HOMING—Robert J. Woods, 15, of 510 Varnum st. nw., stricken with infantile paralysis while visiting in Norfolk, Va., is comforted by his sister, Mrs. Frances Gale, upon arrival yesterday at Anacostia Naval Air Station. The Navy agreed to fly the youth to Washington for hospitalization when other facilities became unavailable

4 New Polio Cases Reported In D. C. Area

Four new polio cases were reported in Greater Washington yesterday, raising the total for this year to 92, almost six times as many as the reported 16 at this date last year.

At the same time, a District resident who was visiting in Norfolk was flown here in a Navy flying ambulance after being stricken August 14 with polio there. The boy, Robert J. Woods, 15, is the son of Mrs. Mardy A. Woods of 510 Varnum st. nw.

Woods' half-brother Chief Petty Officer Dennis Vermillion, was unable to arrange for commercial air transportation and medical officials said a boat trip was too long, so the Navy agreed to fly him here. He is now at Providence Hospital resting comfortably, Mrs. Woods said.

The two new District cases were a 3-year-old girl from the 400 block of 9th st. sw., who was admitted to Gallinger Hospital Wednesday, and a 25-year-old woman of the 2900 block of Pennsylvania ave. se., who entered Gallinger the same day.

The new cases raised the District total to 47, as compared with five for this time last year.

The two new nearby Maryland cases were an 8-year-old girl from the 9500 block of Saybrook ave., Silver Spring, who entered Childrens Hospital Saturday, and a 20-year-old of the 5000 block of Branchville rd., Branchville, who entered Gallinger Wednesday.

The two new cases raised the nearby total to 45, as compared to 11 for this time last year.

Joseph A. Polvinale yesterday clarified his statement as to how his 6-year-old daughter Dorothy might have contracted poliomyelitis.

Dorothy is now a patient at Children's Hospital. Polvinale said he believed his daughter might have gotten the polio germ while chewing bubble gum with other children of her own age. He said he did not think Dorothy's cousin, a 15-year-old girl also being treated for polio, had gotten the germ from bubble gum. He said she was not on the scene at the party where Dorothy had been chewing bubble gum with other children.

Mother Dies of Polio After Baby Is Born

Morganton, N. C., Aug. 26 (AP).—A 34-year-old mother who gave birth to a son in an iron lung died early today of bulbar poliomyelitis.

Mrs. Lucy Bell Smith succumbed about 16 hours after a normal 6½-pound son was born under a local anesthetic. Physicians performed a caesarean section as Mrs. Smith lay in an inoperative iron lung.

Total Blood Swap Cures Ailing Kidney

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP).—Successful treatment of a serious kidney disease in adults by giving them new blood for old was reported today by a French physician.

The patients are given a long transfusion, which swaps their blood for new, healthy blood.

The exchange of blood in 180 adults and older children was described by Dr. Marcel Bessis of Paris at the closing session of the International Society of Hematology.

Normal blood donated by healthy persons is fed continuously into the vein of one arm while the patient's blood is drawn off from the other arm, he explained. Ten quarts of blood, or double the normal amount circulating in the body, are used to assure a nearly complete swap in the patient.

This transfusion has been 90 per cent successful in curing nephritis, a kidney disease in which the blood becomes toxic or poisonous, Dr. Bessis said.

Researchers Develop Artificial Kidney

Chicago, Aug. 26 (AP).—Three researchers today reported development of an artificial kidney to aid persons whose kidneys—vital in the elimination of body wastes—do not function properly.

They are Dr. Gordon Murray, Dr. Edmund Delorme and Newell Thomas of Toronto, Canada. They described the project in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Their machine uses a cellulose membrane to filter the patient's blood. This membrane is placed in a chemical bath containing chlorides, salts and dextrose. A pump removes blood from the large vein in a patient's leg, circulates it through the membrane, and back into the body in the opposite vein.

The toxic substances fall through the membrane; proteins and hormones and other large molecules are carried back into the body.

FCC Denies Boosts On Overseas Rates

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday rejected petitions for immediate further increases in rates on overseas communications.

The commission said it will give additional consideration to whether such increases may be indicated at a later date in relation to revenue requirements of the companies handling such communications. The petitions were filed by RCA Communications, Commercial Pacific Cable Co., All America Cables & Radio, Inc., Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co., and the Commercial Cable Co.

Hurricane Batters Russian Freighter

Miami, Fla., Aug. 26 (AP).—A small but vicious tropical hurricane battered a Russian freighter some 1000 miles southeast of Miami today as it churned the sea with winds up to 100 miles an hour.

Storm warning headquarters in Miami said the Russian ship Petmakis Nomikos had reported itself where the "going is tough," but had not been heard from for many hours. It was not believed in distress.

Meanwhile, a disabled American freighter, the John Howard, got under way after encountering engine trouble about 250 miles east of Brunswick, Ga. The 7100-ton vessel—in the path of the storm—had asked the Coast Guard to stand by for towing in the event it was unable to get its motors repaired. The John Howard reported it was steaming toward New Orleans.

A third ship, the American passenger-cargo vessel Virginia, cleared the storm after an encounter with wild seas.

The hurricane increased its forward pace to about 15 miles an hour during the day, but was still more than three days away from the mainland. It was reported moving northwestward or slightly west-northwestward.

American Red Cross officials held a meeting to discuss plans should the storm strike Florida or Georgia, but emphasized that a disturbance so far away could recurve away from land without so much as a rain squall being felt.

Heat Hits 97.2 Degrees Here

eral Government gave an early release to about 15,000 workers.

The Federal Power Commission released its workers at 4 p. m. The State Department let go 820 of its employes working in temporary buildings after checking temperature and humidity.

Others Released

Here are some more: The Bureau of Internal Revenue released 5000; the Army Quartermaster and Finance Offices released 4800; the Government Accounting Office let go 1300; the Immigration Service freed 700, and the United States Engineers at Gravelly Point released 3000.

Hospitals reported treating seven heat victims yesterday. Three persons were taken to Casualty Hospital, two to Freedmen's Hospital and one each to Alexandria Hospital and Gallinger Hospital.

Chester Galbretch, 46, of 1333 5th st. nw., was admitted to Casualty suffering from heat exhaustion after he collapsed at Wheeler rd. and Barnaby st. ne.

Augustus Lyles, 80, of 36 Bates st. nw., a heat prostration case, was reported in serious condition at Casualty. He was taken to the hospital by the No. 1 rescue squad from the Benning power plant grounds.

Another heat exhaustion victim at Casualty was William Scurry, 30, of 1835 Ninth st. nw., who collapsed at Fifteenth and Franklin sts. nw.

Freedmen's treated and released two victims of the heat. They were Jack Wade, 31, of 1518 Olive st. ne., and Carroll Young, 49, of 467 C st. sw.

William Young, 57, of 523 N. Alfred st., Alexandria, was admitted to Alexandria Hospital as a heat prostration victim. His condition was described as "fairly good."

Only 3 Fainted

The Washington Post assigned its prettiest copy boy, Miss Robin Dorr, to check temperatures in certain downtown spots. When she returned and handed in her figures she remarked:

"Nothing happened except that three persons fainted while I was out . . . due to the heat. One collapsed while groping her way up the steps to see Lincoln's statue, one passed out in front of the Navy Department, and one was completely out in the neighborhood of the Washington Monument."

Robin walked in a downtown department store (air-conditioned, of course), and dangled her thermometer. The temperature: 80 degrees.

She tried the store's delivery room. It was 80 there, too. But in the store's pumping station and boiler room it was 90, and (horrors) it was 104 in the department store's main compressing room (whatever that is).

In front of the Department of Commerce she measured a shade temperature of 98. The temperature was 100 near the Washington Monument.

It's Nice in "Basement"

And here's something to know—it was only 78 inside the Monument at the bottom, but a torrid 90 at the top.

Miss Dorr's thermometer hit its high mark of 104 at two places by the Reflecting Pool and in front of The Washington Post. The 110 reading was taken an hour before. None of The Post crew will challenge that latter reading.

In fact, one curious reporter (no names, please) ventured into Post Square, curled like a damp feather under his pith helmet and hastily ducked into a nearby air-cooled restaurant. The temperature there was only 78. Continuing his scientific quest he found the temperature of a tall rum collins was only 32. Quite a range.

As could have been expected, swimming pools throughout the city were jammed.

"It was the biggest day of the month," said an official of Government Services, Inc., operator of a number of pools. "Hot weather like this always brings them out."

The record temperature resulted in a deluge of calls on the weather forecast telephone number, WEather 1212.

A telephone company official estimated about 200,000 calls would be made on the number during the 24-hour period. He said this would certainly be a record number of calls for this year. One day last February 113,000 calls were received. Normally, there are from 60,000 to 70,00 calls a day.

Much of U. S. Swelters In Prolonged Heat Wave

Chicago, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Much of the Nation sweltered today in a prolonged heat wave that sent the mercury soaring to over 100 degress on the East Coast.

Weather forecasters here said the four-day wave probably would last through the weekend before there would be any general relief.

Thousands of workers left their jobs or were sent home as hot, humid air made offices and factories unbearable.

The heat gripped chiefly the Midwest and East. The afternoon temperature in New York City was 101 degrees. Philadelphia reported 101, too, and Chicago had 95.8.

A cool air mass from Canada was delayed by storms there.

Prince Georges Grants 5 Licenses For Sale of Liquor

The Prince Georges County Board of Liquor Commissioners yesterday approved five requests for beer, wine and liquor permits after a public hearing at the courthouse at Upper Marlboro.

The following permits were approved: Roy H. Lester, class D for on sale of beer at the Upper Marlboro Recreation Center, Upper Marlboro; Mary Maude Gray, class B for on sale of beer, wine and liquor at Shady Oak Inn, 7300 Marlboro pike, Shady Oak; Guy Elwin Curtin, class B for on sale of beer and light wine at Cubby's Place, 7101 Central ave., Capitol Heights; Minnie Higgins, class A for off sale of beer at Clear View Market, 9505 Baltimore ave., Berwyn, and Harry N. Robinson, class B for on sale of beer, wine and liquor at Bowie Inn, Bowie.

The commissioners rejected three applications for permits because of the opposition of nearby residents, civic groups and churches.

Deadline Set for Entering Viaduct Floats

Next Friday has been set as the deadline to register floats and groups for participation in the "Avenue of Progress" parade, which will celebrate the opening of the Georgia ave. viaduct in Silver Spring. The parade and opening will take place September 11.

Arthur Burke, parade chairman, said yesterday groups may register with him. About 39 organizations have registered so far Mr. Burke said. He expects about 50 to do so.

Commercial and association floats are expected to carry out the general theme of the day—"A Day of Progress." Many floats will feature comparative transportation methods, showing automobiles of the early 1900s and those of today.

Led by Maryland's Gov. W. Preston Lane, the parade will begin at 2 p. m. and will continue north on Georgia ave. after the Governor cuts the ribbon opening the viaduct, to allow the first car to pass. The parade will end at Montgomery Blair High School stadium, where the Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring will put on a two-hour pageant. A street dance on Georgia ave. will be held from 9 p. m. till midnight, also as part of the celebration.

Vivien Kellems to Move Zone-Violating Plant

Westport, Conn., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Industrialist Vivien Kellems, who refused to bow to Federal withholding tax laws, said today she would obey a court decision and move her business out of Westport.

Judge John T. Cullinan ruled in Bridgeport yesterday that Miss Kellem's cable-grip plant was in violation of Westport zoning laws.

4000 Tire Workers Strike at Memphis

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 26 (AP).—Some 4000 employes of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. walked out on strike here today. Union officials said the strike was caused by a disagreement on supplemental contract negotiations. The strikers are members of the United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America (CIO).

Shooting Tool, War Invention, Finds Use in Homes, Industry

The Washington Post

SHOOTS BOLTS—Andrew Mounce demonstrates "Drive-It"

A war-developed secret "weapon" used by the Navy to repair ships damaged by enemy fire is now being introduced in the construction industry in the Washington-Baltimore area as a time and money saver.

It is a gun-like tool in which a .22, .38 or .45 caliber cartridge literally fires a rivet, stud, bolt or any one of more than 40 types of "projectiles" into masonry, concrete or steel.

During the war, the "Drive-It," as it is now called, was used in naval shipyards to fire studs into new steel ships' plates placed over damaged ones. These studs could be applied with the "gun" under water, saving considerable time previously spent in drydocking ships.

Finds Good Customers

Andrew M. Mounce, Washington area distributor for the Powder-Power Tool Corp. of Portland, Ore., which developed the device for the Navy, said construction firms are his best peacetime customers.

It is useful to them for driving studs into concrete for holding wood sill plates, fixing foundation bolts for machinery, hanging electrical conduits, fastening steel angles to concrete walls, riveting steel plates together, hanging pipe brackets or eye bolts, and similar uses. Threaded bolts can be fired without harming the thread.

Mounce said the tool cannot be fired accidentally, as a spring safety catch on the handle must be kept turned and the tool must be forced against work surface to provide detonation.

A bell-mouth muzzle and guard pad prevent flying particles of steel or concrete from injuring the person operating it, Mounce explained.

Penetration Controlled

Depth of penetration of the bolt or stud fired can be controlled by its length and by the powder load used. The manufacturer distributes cartridges of varying power, marked in different colors.

Mounce has sold one of his "guns" to an interior decorator to drive hangers for drapes through a ceiling into concrete. Another was used at the Capitol to fix air conditioning equipment into walls, while still another is hard at work anchoring electric washers to kitchen and basement floors.

The junior .22-caliber model, which is 10 inches long and weighs 3 pounds, can drive a maximum of 25 tons of pressure, Mounce said. As for the .45-caliber gun, it can punch a hole ¾ of an inch in diameter right through a railroad tie.

Truman Acts to Postpone Rail Strike Set for Saturday

President Truman acted yesterday to head off a strike set for Saturday on the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway.

The White House announced Mr. Truman had signed an executive order setting up an emergency board in the railway's dispute with the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

The order was signed aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg at Yorktown, Va. Under the law it automatically postpones for 60 days a strike which had been set for 6 p. m. Saturday.

J. P. Cahill of Cleveland, international deputy president of the union, said the issue involves a six-year-old dispute over the reemployment of one worker and wages for lost time.

1400 Phone Workers Walk Out at Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—About 1400 CIO communication equipment workers walked off their jobs at Chicago telephone exchanges today to protest the progress of negotiations with the Western Electric Co.

Some of the strikers stormed into the negotiating meeting in a downtown hotel and voiced their objections.

The walkout came as union heads sought to persuade other members on the West Coast to return to their jobs until the union calls a Nation-wide strike.

A wildcat strike of nearly 500 members in New York ended today.

The union has demanded a 31-cent hourly wage increase. The company has offered 6 to 13 cents.

Phone Union Rejects Two-Year Contract

Omaha, Aug. 26 (AP).—A union representing 17,600 employes disclosed today it has rejected a two-year contract offered by the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

J. R. Hill, a vice president of Northwestern Division 45 of the Communications Workers of America, said the contract, calling for pay increases averaging about 3 cents an hour, "falls far short of what we had in mind."

Oak Ridge Strike Injunction Asked

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 26 (AP).—The National Labor Relations Board today asked a Federal injunction to stop a four-week walkout of electricians at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Harvester to Lay Off 2100 Due to Strike

Chicago, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—International Harvester Co. officials said today that another 2100 workers will be laid off at Milwaukee as a result of the 10-day-old United Auto Workers' strike at seven Harvester plants.

The 2100 workers will be laid off next Wednesday, joining 2400 employes laid off last Monday, it was announced.

Union and company negotiators meanwhile sought an agreement on contract terms for employes at the Harvester plant at Memphis, Tenn. The company said that it has abandoned attempts to settle the strike on a company-wide basis. More than 24,000 UAW members are on strike.

Steel Shortage Causes GM to Lay Off 13,000

Flint, Mich., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Approximately 13,000 auto workers here will be laid off Friday because of steel shortages, General Motors Corp. announced today.

GM said 3000 would be idle at Fisher Body and 3500 at Buick Assembly plants and that a combined steel and pigiron shortage would idle 3500 Chevrolet workers. The others affected are in parts plants. Production will resume Monday after the one-day lay-off, the company said.

Work Stoppage Closes 15 Steel Hearths

Youngstown, Ohio, Aug. 26 (AP).—All 15 open hearths at the Ohio works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. here were idle today as a result of a work stoppage which began at midnight last night.

Company officials said the issue is one of seniority. Union officials said they would issue a statement later. Some 650 employes are idle. The Ohio works' 15 open hearths produce a little more than 4000 tons of steel daily.

Adm. Wilkes to Take Over

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 26 (AP).—Rear Admiral John Wilkes of Charlotte, N. C., will assume new duties Friday as commander of United States naval forces in Germany. He succeeds Rear Admiral Roscoe E. Schuirmann who is returning to the United States.

Hoffman Orders CIO Attorney Thrown Out Of Strike Inquiry as Climax to Heated Clash

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 26 (AP).—Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) today angrily ordered a CIO attorney thrown out of his hearing on strike disorders at the Aeroquip Corp.

Climaxing a sharp, fist-shaking exchange, the congressional investigator ordered out Nicholas Roth, associate legal counsel of the CIO United Auto Workers.

At Hoffman's command to "take that man out of here" two State troopers escorted Rothe out of the hearing room. He went peaceably.

The exchange was prompted when Webb Magnor, UAW international representative, jumped to his feet and shouted at a company witness, "It's a lie, just like a lot of this other stuff."

Days of Intimidation Over

Hoffman rose from his chair, shook his fist at Magnor and said: "You can't do that in here. These days of intimidation are over. You have no courage except when you're surrounded by your own gang."

Then Rothe leaped up to declare:

"I object to your challenging the coourage of any man in this room. You have no authority to do so."

Hoffman ordered him out.

Earlier Magnor challenged a statement of Peter B. Hurst, company president, that he was "assaulted and chased" from the plant property Monday by a "mob" of pickets.

"I say that's absolutely untrue," the union official shouted.

Hurst testified then that he was finally able to get through the lines after Magnor intervened on his behalf.

Hoffman asked Hurst, a native of Germany, why he came to America.

The company president replied, "Because I became so disgusted with mob violence that I had to get away from it by coming to America."

About 2000 pickets clashed with a small band of officer workers Monday in a climax to a six weeks strike over wages. There were no serious injuries.

Hoffman, demanding and receiving a State police escort, came here to investigate the disorders.

ITU Accused Of Violating T-H Act Rules

Indianapolis, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—The International Typographical Union (AFL) was ordered yesterday to show cause why it should not be cited for contempt of court for allegedly failing to obey the Taft-Hartley law.

Judge Luther W. Swygert directed the union and four of its top officers to submit a sworn answer by September 7, and set September 15 for a hearing on a show cause order issued at the request of the prosecuting office of the National Labor Relations Board.

Board attorneys yesterday asked Swygert to cite the union for contempt. Specifically, the ITU was charged with violating an injunction issued by Swygert, which directed the union to comply with the law in its dealing with newspapers.

Swygert ordered the union to make answer, under oath, to the petition and admit or deny each allegation or answer the petition by affirmative defense.

"If good faith requires that they neither admit nor deny any of the allegations, they shall set forth in detail the reasons why they cannot do so," Swygert ruled.

"Or, if good faith requires that they deny in part or qualify their admission of any allegation in the petition, they shall specify so much of it as is true and deny or qualify their admission only as to the remainder," the judge said.

The petition charged that the union and its officers have continued to demand a closed shop in contracts with publishers, even though closed shop contracts are banned by the Taft-Hartley law.

2 Governors Review Troops at Pendleton

Virginia Beach, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—The Governors of Virginia and Pennsylvania forgot political party and the Mason-Dixon line at Camp Pendleton today and heaped each other's Commonwealth with colorful praise.

Together to review troops of the Fifty-first Anti-Aircraft Artillery Brigade, Pennsylvania National Guard, here for their annual training, the two governors stood flanked by high ranking National Guard officers from both States.

"It is a compliment to the Commonwealth of Virginia to have you here," Virginia's Gov. William M. Tuck said to Pennsylvania's Gov. J. F. Duff.

Magazine With Hitler Picture Is Sellout

Frankfurt, Aug. 26 (NYHT.).—The first magazine in Germany to carry a postwar cover picture of Adolf Hitler was a sellout on the Frankfurt newsstands today.

Weekend, a privately owned American publishing venture, printed in Germany by former members of the staff of Stars and Stripes, published a 1933 picture of Hitler on its cover today to illustrate its story, "Is Hitler Still Alive?"

Boys, Eldest 8, Derail Packed Train With Rock

Boston, Aug. 26 (AP).—Police today blamed three small boys for the derailment of the engine and two cars of a Worcester-bound Boston and Albany train during the rush hour last night.

None of the train's 330 passengers was injured. The six passenger cars stayed on the track.

Police said three boys—aged 6, 7 and 8—picked up near the scene admitted they had placed a rock on the rail near the Back Bay Station.

United Wallpaper Omits Dividend

Chicago, Aug. 26 (AP).—United Wallpaper, Inc., announced that it was taking no action on payment of a common stock dividend. Previously, one annual dividend was paid, amounting to 25 cents a share last August.

The company said a preliminary report on the company's fiscal year ended June 30 showed a net loss of $52,000 compared with a net profit in the previous year of $1,142,344.

Opera Critic Attacked By Enraged Soprano

Milan, Italy, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—An enraged soprano attending the opera spied a harsh critic in the La Scala Opera House last night and began raining blows on his head right in the middle of a performance.

The singer, Elena Nicolai, played the role of Amneris in "Aida" night before last. The critic, Giovanni Abbiati didn't like her.

Net of C. & P. In July Rises To $322,651

By S. Oliver Goodman

Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday reported net income of $322,651 for July, compared with $130,351 in the same month last year.

For the first seven months this year, net income aggregated $2,235,706 against $1,596,337 in the like 1947 period.

Despite the seeming sharp gain in earnings, a C. & P. spokesman emphasized that the company's return on investment decreased to 3.30 per cent in the 12 months ended July 31, 1948, from 3.49 per cent in the previous 12 months. The company's investment in plant rose to $96,575,890 at the end of July, more than 10 million dollars higher than on the same date last year.

Number of telephones in service here expanded to 434,007, as compared with 394,041 on July 31, 1947.

The rate increase, approved by Public Utilities Commission, accounted for a part of the July upturn in operating revenues. Gross last month was $2,844,539, against $2,459,838 last year. Operating expenses including taxes, jumped to $2,519,910, up $191,529 for the month.

PEPCO DIVIDENDS: Directors of Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday declared quarterly dividends as follows: 22½ cents a share on common stock and 45 cents a share on 3.60 per cent preferred stock. The common dividend is payable September 30 to stock of record September 7, while the preferred is payable October 1 to stock of record September 7.

ODD LOTS: Northwest Airlines will drop its five-month-old program of giving 5 per cent rebates to passengers whose arrival is delayed more than 30 minutes, effective September 1 . . . Political note: A Philadelphia smoke shop reports Dewey campaign cigars are outselling Truman stogies two to one . . . Auto output this week was estimated by Automotive News at 103,914 units vs. 107,600 last week . . . Venezuelan Ambassador Gonzalo Carnevali announced his government is offering for sale 115,000 barrels of oil and said bids must start at $2.70 a barrel f. o. b. Caribito . . . Teletone Radio Corp. is introducing a new table model television set with 10-inch picture tube selling for $249.95 . . . Quaker Oats Co. has issued employes profit-sharing checks totaling $906,000, estimated to be an average of more than three weeks' extra pay for each for the fiscal year ended June 30.

LEANER DAYS—Two movie makers yesterday reported their results for the first six months and neither was in technicolor. Radio-Keith-Orpheum netted $1,901,863 or 49 cents a share, against $5,107,347 or $1.31 a share in the same 1947 period. Paramount Pictures showed net of $13,570,000 or $1.96 a share against $17,407,000 or $2.45 a share in the corresponding 1947 period.

SIXTY-CENT DOLLARS: The consumers' price index of the National Industrial Conference Board reached a record high in mid-July for the fourth consecutive month, at 165.5 per cent of the January, 1939, base. The board, an independent research organization, said the increase over mid-June was 0.7 per cent and over July, 1947, it was 9.1 per cent. Expressed in January, 1939, dollars, the purchasing power of the dollar stood at 60.4 cents in mid-July, a drop of 0.7 per cent from June and of 8.3 per cent from a year ago. The board's index is based on prices paid in 62 cities by moderate-income families for food, housing, clothing, fuel, house furnishings and sundries.

NEW MAIL RATE: The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday fixed a temporary mail rate of 66 cents a mile for American Overseas Airlines and Pan American Airlines on their Transatlantic routes. The pay will be based on an average daily mileage of 20,600, making the daily average pay for carrying the mail $12,360.

Minors on Poll List For 'Bar Licenses'

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—Hundreds — perhaps thousands — of teen-agers and other ineligibles may have voters' identification cards entitling them to cast ballots in Maryland elections, employes of the board of supervisors of elections said today.

Board Chairman Daniel Chambers, jr., explained that under the present law the board has no authority to investigate applicants or require proof of age or residence.

He said the board has agreed to ask the General Assembly for authority to have the police department investigate any "suspicious" applicants.

Chambers added, however, that anyone convicted of making a false oath to obtain a card may be sentenced to prison and would automatically lose the right to vote under laws governing perjury.

Four cases of minors who allegedly registered to obtain the cards have come to light here recently. Three involved the flashing of the cards in taverns as "proof of age." The other case was that of a minor who obtained a card in order to get a job that required the applicant to be 21, authorities disclosed.

Chambers said he believed many of the minor-registration cases came about from a desire of teen-agers to obtain "drinking licenses."

3 Virginians Named To Service Academies

Two nominees for the Naval Academy and one for West Point were announced yesterday by Senator Robertson (D., Va.).

Walther George Maser of Virginia Beach, Va., and Lewis Dale Harwood, Alexandria, Va., were nominated for the Naval Academy. Frank Cornelius Gorham, Alexandria, is the West Point nominee. They will take entrance examinations next spring.

O'Dwyer and Marcantonio Assail Each Other in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Mayor William O'Dwyer today declared open warfare on Representative Vito Marcantonio, American Labor Party Congressman and titular head of the party here.

Marcantonio

Marcantonio was elected with Democratic Party backing. He is opposed for re-election by both Democrats and Republicans.

Describing the ALP as "Communist-led," O'Dwyer announced he would dismiss all city appointees recommended for employment by the party, beginning September 1.

Marcantonio, in reply, called the mayor a "double-talking, double-dealing, double-crossing hypocrite."

"The reason he is removing these innocent people, some of whom are veterans, is because I refused to accede to his request to nominate (General Sessions) Judge (John A.) Mullen in place of O. John Rogge for surrogate."

Television Permit Asked

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday received an application for a new commercial television station from the Cumberland Broadcasting Co., Cumberland, Md.

The Gambino Case

Just as the controversy over whether the Shakespeare plays were written by Shakespeare or by some other fellow has begun to subside, comes another controversy about whether Mr. Lucien Gambino ought or ought not to be permitted to play another season of football for the University of Maryland. Mr. Gambino, as you probably know, is the accomplished halfback who scored 16 touchdowns last year, with the help of which the Maryland team astonished themselves, the rest of the Southern Football Conference, and the world in general by winning seven games.

Since then, it appears, the boys and girls at College Park have actually been dreaming dreams of a conference football championship in 1948. The other day, however, the dreams were abruptly punctured by the president of the conference, Col. William Couper of the Virginia Military Institute. Colonel Couper ruled that the great Gambino will not be eligible to play again this year. Mr. Gambino, it seems, has already played three years of varsity football—two at Maryland and one at the University of Indiana, which, under the conference rules, is the limit.

However, it also appears that the rules permit exceptions to be made in the case of veterans receiving benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights, and that such exceptions have been made in the cases of several other players in the conference, some of whom have been playing varsity football even longer than Gambino. Now, the point here is that Gambino himself is a veteran, with a record of three years service as a gunner in the Air Force. Some of it overseas.

Whether Gambino does or does not play for Maryland again this year will probably make no great difference to the destiny of Western civilization or to the future of higher education in a free society. However, from the facts as we have them, a point of justice seems to be involved: it looks very much to us as if Mr. Gambino were being made the victim of a technicality, and for no better reason than jealousy of his prowess.

Teachers' Lives

Whether or not American communities meddle too much in the lives of teachers is something that needs to be investigated more fully in view of the continuing teacher shortage. For the idea that teachers are patron-ridden in their personal affairs still prevails widely and is keeping young people out of the teaching profession. A recent survey at the University of Indiana showed that community social restrictions were a stronger factor than low pay in causing students to decide against teaching careers. The students surveyed felt generally that dancing, dating, playing cards, smoking and drinking (in private) were personal matters, and that such habits would become subject to community dictation if they became teachers. They also listed as disadvantages of teaching—low pay, politics and lack of tenure, monotonous routine work, low social standing, restricted opportunity for advancement, rudeness and insolence of children, parents' interference, too much supervision and too much responsibility.

However, the two professors of education who made the survey decided that the chief cause of prejudice against teaching was ignorance of the profession. For example, the students estimated beginner salaries to average around $1900, when the Indiana State minimum is $2400. It is likely that the students' views on other phases of teaching were colored by exaggerated reports of teachers' difficulties. The teacher shortage has brought into the open many shocking facts about teachers' pay and working conditions. Yet in many communities now teachers are well paid and highly respected. Many find their occupations most satisfying. While it is true that rural American communities have a traditional reputation for being dictatorial and narrow minded about teachers' conduct, yet throughout most of the country there has been in recent years a growing tolerance concerning social behavior.

It may be that many young people are staying out of teaching because of the traditions concerning blue-nosed school patrons that have been handed down to them. If that is so, a truer picture of the American community should be presented to young people. If it is not true, then communities should do something about themselves. For with seven million more children expected in the schools of the Nation in the next seven years, a great recruitment of trainees for teaching is necessary. And it is evident that money alone won't draw these recruits.

Unity In Europe

It is axiomatic that there will be no federation in Europe until the Europeans surrender some of their national sovereignty to a European organization. In other words, the issue is political rather than economic. In this respect the French government has taken the lead by sponsoring the suggestion for a European Assembly to lay the plans for federation. The inspiration came from the foreign affairs committee of the French Assembly, though there are several members of the new government who are ardent federationists, notably MM. Reynaud and Ramadier. Both were present at The Hague Conference of the European Unity movement where a scheme was formulated for attention of the governments of Europe.

Where this initiative will take Europe depends upon the British. For France, whose polity is based precariously on a constitution which insures government instability, has for the time being lost its influence in Europe. It is to Britain that free Europe looks for leadership. Yet the British, who till the Marshall Plan was launched talked eagerly and imaginatively about Western union, seem to be hanging back. It is the fault not of the people, but of their government. No member of the cabinet seems to have the stature or the vision either to grasp the conception or to assume the task of realizing it. That is shown by Premier Attlee's reply to Mr. Churchill's invitation to Mr. Attlee to adopt a policy of federation. Mr. Attlee, whose pre-Marshall Plan contribution to the spate of words on federation was "Europe must federate or perish," shrank from the responsibility. "This is not the right time," he said, adding the weird remark, as if the suggestion had to do with a local bazaar, that the movement must be left to private individuals. The answer will disappoint millions of Europeans who know in their bones that no occasion is more "right" than the present for the organization of a new Europe. Is this going to be another example of a great hope meanly lost, as Mr. Stimson would put it? The question is pertinent in view of our feeling that the Attlee answer would be forthcoming from all Mr. Attlee's colleagues. One possible exception is Sir Stafford Cripps, but Sir Stafford allowed his interest to evaporate when he encountered negativism among his associates in the Labor government.

However, aside from the deficit in leadership in England, there is a real obstacle in Britain to federation. It is the split personality in the British makeup which has become pronounced as a result of their weakened condition. The British have three affiliations which they wish to keep in balance: with the Dominions, with the United States, and with Europe. They feel that any tightening of one affiliation might be at the expense of the others. No doubt a peacetime Churchill could fuse what may seem at present divergent interests, but Mr. Churchill is in the political wilderness, and has to be content for the time being with the role of John the Baptist. The task calls, anyway, more for a genius for organization than for a gift of tongues—an organization involving an immense unscrambling and an immense rescrambling. With full recognition of what is entailed, however, at least a start could be made by bringing the nations together in conference, and the promotion of it would redeem British officialdom from the charge of hypocrisy which is courted by the Attlee statement. Unfortunately both will and statesmanship are lacking.

The fact must now be faced that British do-nothingness will rivet the British to their status quo till the Commonwealth and the United States show the way. The way is Federal Union, a jointure of all free nations, no matter where situated. With fear in the saddle in Europe, and most of the world's power locked up in the United States, the initiative to Western union really belongs to the United States. Economics and strategy alike put the onus upon this great country to draw all the free nations into a political partnership under the authority of Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations. Federation in Europe is a political question, and the destiny of the United States is wrapped up in it. Both times and challenge make even Western union look puny, and nothing will suffice short of bringing the whole of the free world under one great and encompassing banner which would impart to each the strength and spirit of all.

China's Money

The currency reform in China follows a plan that was prepared several years ago when General Marshall was making his quixotic effort to restore peace to China. It was to have come into effect on the heels of the demobilization of the swollen armies. Alas, the civil war broke out, and the armies were increased instead of demobilized, so that any currency reform was bound to fail. Why the reform has been introduced while the civil war is still raging is probably to show good intent to the good fairy in America. There can be no other reason. Aside from the civil war, other conditions are absent which are desiderata of success for currency reform—a strong government, a balanced budget, and a tax system which brings results. All that can be expected, all that the Chinese themselves expect, is a currency that will be usable for a while, now that the old currency has gone irretrievably to perdition.

The new currency is called the gold yuan, or dollar, and it has a fixed rate of four to one United States dollar. By way of contrast, the old Chinese dollar had tobogganed to a rate of 12,000,000:1. How does the Chinese government hope to keep the currency stable? In the old days the criterion used to be metallic backing, and Nanking has released figures to show that the new yuan has assets by way of support of 100 per cent of circulation. But the assertion falls far short of the facts. In the list of assets, after gold, silver and foreign exchange, there come all manner of items under the head of state-owned properties totalling about 60 per cent of available backing. The properties are to be sold for hard money. But who is going to purchase them, at what price, and with what money? This kind of backing is in the realm of the imponderable. That is the situation with respect to the other prerequisites of currency reform. It is evident that China has put up the new facade with the view of trying to attract the money that the United States has allotted for aid to China for a purpose that was never contemplated—namely, the balancing of the Chinese government's budget.

Hiss Vs. Chambers

The great confrontation scene, staged Wednesday in the Caucus Room of the old House Office Building, ended, as was to be expected, altogether inconclusively. Whittaker Chambers stood firm in his accusations. Alger Hiss steadfastly repeated his categorical denials. The members of the Committee on Un-American Activities and of the public who listened to the conflicting testimony or read newspaper accounts of it are left to judge for themselves the relative credibility of the witnesses, with very little more to go on than before the spectacle was arranged.

It appeared to be the committee's theory in prosecuting Mr. Hiss—and prosecution, not investigation, was indubitably the course it chose—that if it could show him to have been inaccurate in any detail of his testimony, it would follow that his denial of the charges made by Mr. Chambers would not merit credence. This is a theory generally accepted, of course, in criminal trials. The application of it in the present procedure, however, is open to objection on three grounds.

First, the theory has not been applied to Mr. Chambers who, as an acknowledged former Communist, can scarcely be considered a person of uniform or unchallengeable veracity. The committee, which grilled Mr. Hiss mercilessly for six hours, questioned Mr. Chambers (to whom one of its members has referred as "our witness") for only an hour and 40 minutes without anything resembling a comparably exhaustive inquiry into the details of his past.

Second, the matters in respect of which Mr. Hiss was questioned when he was on the stand Wednesday concerned incidents which occurred 13 or 14 years ago—incidents which could not have seemed important to him then and about which, considering the lapse of time, faultiness of memory would be understandable. Mr. Chambers had ample opportunity to consult records and to bring his account of events which occurred so long ago into conformity with those records. Mr. Hiss was obliged to testify on short notice, on the basis of mere recollection and without access to the records which might have refreshed his memory.

Third, the committee dealt exclusively with the minutiae of Mr. Chamber's allegations concerning Mr. Hiss, according no attention at all to the overriding substantive issue—whether or not Mr. Hiss was ever a Communist. Mr. Hiss' plea for a hearing on the charges and for an opportunity to present affirmative testimony as to his loyalty and integrity from outstanding American citizens seemed thoroughly justified. The American people want to know whether Mr. Hiss was part of a Communist apparatus, as Mr. Chambers charged, not whether he can remember what he did 13 years ago with a 25-dollar Ford automobile.

If the committee thinks it can resolve the vital issues it has raised by a mere report based upon the hearings held to date, it is greatly mistaken. Its approach has been too biased, its investigation too cursory to warrant any faith in its findings. And there are far too many ends left loose. Other persons than Alger Hiss—his brother, Donald, for example—were accused by Mr. Chambers and have not yet been accorded an opportunity to confront their accuser. In the last analysis, it will be found, we think, that the committee is simply not equal to this task. It is a task to be performed in accordance with established American judicial procedures by impartial juries and by courts of law.

Talking Dummies

We are happy to learn of another significant step in the humanizing of robots. Clothes dummies in department stores are now able to talk. One Philadelphia store is using talking manikins for the sale of bathing suits. The dummy, by being hooked to a phonograph record, or to an interoffice telephone transmitter, can describe the costume it is wearing, even give a sales talk, meanwhile moving its lips and rolling its eyes. This, like other inventions of our wonderful scientific age, holds great possibilities for saving human energy. Since no doubt the talking dummies will soon be able to walk, they may be modeling in fashion shows, demonstrating gadgets in stores, even answering doorbells. We can scarcely wait to see them—with their smiling, eager-to-please expressions—installed at information desks, while their bored, superior, or testy Svengalis remain out of sight. But one of their greatest possibilities lies in social life. An assorted supply of beauteous, smartly gowned women manikins, and square-jawed, well-tailored men dummies, equipped by phonograph for conversation, should in these apprehensive, finger-pointing days be the answer to prayer of any hostess who wanted to augment her number of decorative and socially and politically orthodox guests.

Wrong Impression

In The Washington Post's August 19 account of the one-day "make-over" of the Thrasher farm in Frederick County, Md., through the cooperative efforts of 500 men and contributions of citizens interested in combating soil erosion, Governor Lane of Maryland is quoted as saying:

"Before the end of the month, this story of cooperation will have been carried to all sections of the globe by our overseas press and radio . . . and the State Department's 'Voice of America,' . . . also . . . by the civil affairs division of the Army to the occupied areas of Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea, as a specific example of democracy in action.

"Such an example will help to combat some of the distorted propaganda which certain countries disseminate regarding life in this country."

Now, what is it but "distorted propaganda" to try to leave the impression upon the citizens of occupied areas that such an event is a common occurrence in the USA and that the American Government comes to the assistance of citizens in need, and prepares them to function in its competitive free enterprise system?

Doubtless, many a struggling farmer wishes it were so. But instead, he would have to mortgage his farm to raise the funds for such extensive improvements.

If we believe in and desire a cooperative economy (socialism), we can have it by voting it in at the polls, but as honest Americans, we should not endeavor to leave the impression abroad that our competitive economy (capitalism), is also, normally, cooperative.

Licensing Bridge Clubs

It was news to a group of local duplicate-bridge enthusiasts when on August 24 they saw themselves classed as "gamblers." "The District's 30 public bridge clubs must eliminate gambling and take out licenses or go out of business," read a front page article in The Washington Post, quoting License Superintendent C. T. Nottingham.

Licenses for what? To conduct a duplicate game, already sanctioned by the American Contract Bridge League, which is a nonprofit organization of players, run by players, for players?

Duplicate is not played for stakes but for "master point awards," or fractions thereof. These coveted certificates are issued by the national organization for the purpose of rating its members' ability by the number of times they lead a field. The points have no monetary value whatever; on the contrary, a small fee is charged for recording them in national headquarters.

In duplicate the element of chance has been eliminated since all entrants play the same hands. The Superior Court so ruled in New York when a test case was tried there recently.

Washington's alleged 30 public clubs, to attain that total, must include all duplicate groups in the city. This writer has covered the bridge front for the past 12 years but couldn't name more than a dozen places where duplicate is played; and of this number the majority are organizations with restricted memberships. There are no "public" clubs admitting unknown individuals. When transients in the city want to play they identify themselves as members of some ACBL unit, or present letters of introduction.

This city has never been able to support more than two rubber bridge clubs; at the moment I know of three, two being of very recent origin. Unlike most large cities, Washington entertains "at home." The only publicity rubber bridge clubs receive is when, and if, they break into the duplicate field. It is difficult to see why such spots could be called "public" when they exist without benefit of advertising.

The present investigation is a real disservice to a game which, minus ill effects, provides entertainment for hundreds of men and women who are unable to take part in active amusement.

League officials could cite figures to show what became of the entry fees: "war orphans scholarships," a cancer ward for children, the blood bank at Children's Hospital, started by the Washington Bridge Bank and The Washington Post, and annual contributions to the Community Chest.

Delayed Recognition

Hurrah for Mrs. Hiss! It is apparent from the chastened attitude of the committee that she had a field day!

This whole one-sided affair where the committee is prosecuting instead of investigating, certainly does not redound to the credit of the committee or enhance the prestige of the United States.

And why do you newspapers keep saying Mr. Hiss "admits" he once knew Mr. "Chambers" as though he had concealed the fact? Who of us would or could have known who Mr. "Chambers" was after a lapse of some 13 years and under another name? Even when face to face with a man so vastly changed as his pictures indicate, would one not be pardoned for some doubts—some lack of memory of all the details connected with an old and at the time apparently quite unimportant acquaintance?

Disarmament Impasse

Among more dramatic events, the complete stalemate of the U. N. commissions on disarmament did not find the attention it deserves. The majority of the Commission on Conventional Armaments tentatively adopted a report saying that disarmament is impossible until the international picture is one of confidence. True, lack of confidence makes the work of the commission difficult. Nevertheless, the commission should by all means continue with it. In an atmosphere of complete confidence, as between Canada and the United States, no question of disarmament would arise.

The mutual distrust between Russia and the Western powers which poisons our whole international situation, is caused by feelings of insecurity. The only possible cure for this evil consists in establishing a system of security by general disarmament in connection with a world police force. Whether such a plan can be put into effect now is not for the commission to decide. Its task is to prepare a plan for disarmament so that it is available when there is opportunity to make use of it.

The task of the commission is by no means impossible.

What is needed is a great deal of patience, understanding, and imagination.

Third Party Mascot

With reference to Nature Lover's suggested Third Party mascot (The Washington Post, July 27), isn't he missing the most logical selection of all?

Clearly, the most appropriate mascot for the party is the monkey, perched on the limb the Wallacians occupy. As to type of simian beastie, the Rhesus is probably the most logical, for he seems to be the greatest chatterer of all. I recommend, therefore, that the mascot be: a Rhesus monkey rampant on a limb, chattering to all comers the Wallacious "arguments" to which the party is so addicted.

San Martin's Victory

On August 17, Argentine celebrated the death of her great revolutionary military hero, General Jose de San Martin. It was this general who, among other things, accomplished the remarkable feat of leading a full-sized army across the Andes by way of the Uspallata Pass (at one point 14,000 feet high), and who, with no time to rest his troops once on the other side, routed the Spanish army assembled there, thus liberating the area now known as Chile.

He had several famous victories against the Spanish to his credit before he succeeded in what would appear to be the impossible. He took that inadequately equipped, straggling group of raw recruits across a series of mountains which even today, with modern means of transportation, presents a formidable barrier to rapid communication between the eastern and western coasts of South America.

It is unfortunate that in this day of worldwide political and economic instability and insecurity such emphasis is placed upon his military exploits and only passing mention is made of his greatest victory—a personal victory of self-denial for the good of the whole.

After freeing the territory west of the Andes—what is now Chile—he marched and sailed north with his Army of the Andes and, in Guayaquil, Ecuador, met the great Simon Bolivar who had victoriously worked his way south from Venezuela and Colombia (at the time, all one viceroyalty). Both men were at the height of their careers and backed by armies flushed with victories and ready on any pretext to do battle for their respective leaders.

It had been originally planned that Bolivar and San Martin would join forces and march, at the head of their respective armies, against the Spanish who were camped nearby. San Martin realized that if it ever came to a showdown between the two of them, their armies would be split into opposing factions, the revolutionary movement would be weakened and the Spanish would gain the time they needed to pull their resources and forces together to change their defeat into victory, thereby either ending or prolonging the revolution indefinitely. To avoid this San Martin relinquished his command and returned to his homeland.

Bolivar continued his campaign and his lieutenant, General Sucre, soon after won the battle of Ayacucho which, for all military intents and purposes, ended the wars of the revolution of South America. San Martin, after a few years of watching the internal wrangling and disputing that were an aftermath of the revolution in Argentina and which he had hoped to avoid by renouncing so much, went to France where he died in poverty, a saddened, broken old man.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Northwestern Resources

PORTLAND, OREG.—The discovery of oil in southern California marked the beginning of an industrial revolution that transformed the Southwest into one of the most populous areas in the country. Cheap hydroelectric power promises to work the same kind of revolution here in the Northwest.

That is the belief, at any rate, of those who have watched the extraordinary migration into this State. The Census Bureau estimates a population increase of more than 40 per cent in the past seven or eight years. That is to say, more people have come into Oregon in the past decade than during the previous 90 years.

THIS IS A significant fact in connection with the centennial of the founding of Oregon Territory now going on here. The next seven or eight years will see an increase of at least another 40 per cent, according to perfectly rational observers.

But if there are to be jobs for these thousands of new workers, drastic changes must occur. Today roughly 55 per cent of the economy is based on the forests and forest products. Lumber is bringing fantastic prices with apparently no end to the demand.

For most of the cutting, however, the end is in sight. Fly-by-night outfits, in response to the boom, are taking down the last of the easy timber.

These cut-and-run loggers, as they are called out there, leave nothing behind. The big lumber firms have developed a conscientious policy of planting for future timber crops. But this is for the distant future and these firms cannot take up the employment slack left when the cut-and-run loggers are finished.

The answer lies in the full and integrated use of the water resources of the Columbia River system. That means not merely more dams. In the opinion of serious students of the problem such as E. B. MacNaughton, chairman of the First National Bank of Portland, it means management of these water resources by an authority similar in pattern to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

There is, however, powerful opposition to the authority plan and relatively little organized support for it. As a substitute, separate State authorities are being pushed. This concept is believed to have the backing of private utility interests.

But the turbulent Columbia is not confined within the borders of a single State. To release the vast power that is now wasting as it flows to the sea, management would have to cross Oregon and Washington boundaries and go into British Columbia, as well.

The present boom undoubtedly owes a great deal to the millions that were poured into this area in Federal spending during the war. It is possible that it is being sustained in the face of present sky-high prices by those who are being compelled to spend surpluses accumulated in the war years.

SIGNIFICANT FIGURES show that for the first six months of this year the purchase of Federal Savings Bonds was running considerably behind the redemption of those bonds in Portland, and in the Twelfth Federal Reserve District. Thus, in Portland in the six months ended June 30, $20,116,000 in E bonds were bought, while owners of those bonds turned them in for cash in the amount of $31,465,000.

For the country as a whole, purchase is still running ahead of redemption—the figures for the six-month period being sales $2,588,000,000 and redemptions $2,220,000,000. But for the month of June in Portland redemptions were nearly twice as large as sales.

There are other signs that point to a drying up of purchasing power indicating a recession or perhaps even a depression. But a depression would be criminal folly and stupidity.

You realize this more and more here where the potentials are so great. It is not alone new dams that need building. The whole highway system must be rebuilt for modern needs.

For example, Highway 101 from Portland to San Francisco is one of the most beautiful scenic highways in the world. But along its innumerable twists and turns are huge log trucks, and the accident rate is appalling. From the point of view of national defense the North-South highway system is perilously inadequate.

Perhaps modern, safer highways could be constructed on which motorists and truckers could be charged a modest toll. This has worked successfully in the East. If fear and traditionalism do not bear down too heavily, imagination and inventiveness will find a way to release the forces for growth inherent here.

Coffee Price

While you were perfectly correct in stating in an August 24 article that the coffee market declined, it would certainly be helpful if you would mention in the future that this is the option market and not the actual market. As a matter of fact, the market of Colombian coffees has advanced about 1½ cents per pound on actual sales in the last five weeks.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Permanent Crisis

THE COMPLETE uncertainty hanging over the Berlin negotiations is illustrated by a single simple fact. The most recent Moscow meeting of the Western ambassadors with Generalissimo Stalin was expected to prove decisive. The State Department prepared a series of alternative releases, announcing failure, announcing compromise and announcing success, in order to be ready for any imaginable outcome.

None of the releases was needed because Stalin made it possible for the Moscow talks to continue. There the Berlin crisis drags on. Yet the urgency and vital importance of the crisis have not been lessened by the length of the Moscow talks.

It is time, therefore, to set down the relevant facts about the air lift to Berlin, concerning which there have been so many wild misstatements. It is the possibility of supplying Berlin by air which has permitted such prolonged negotiations in Moscow. Curiously enough, this crucial possibility was not grasped until the last minute in Washington, London or Paris. At the beginning of the interminable crisis, the American and other policy makers assumed that if the Soviets would not lift the Berlin blockade, we should have to choose between appeasement or war within a little more than a fortnight. In these circumstances, the choice might possibly have been war.

FORTUNATELY, Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, now head of the Operations and Plans Division of the War Department, is the former commander of the China theater. He remembered the 100,000 tons carried into China by air each month over the "hump" of the eastern Himalayas. He insisted that every one else was wrong to suppose Berlin could not be air-supplied. From his insistence originated the serious attempt to organize the air lift to Berlin.

As to the present facts about the air lift, they are relatively simple. The talk of unbearable expense is nonsense. The present expense of the air operations, over-all, is about $250,000 a day. About half of this sum is for maintaining aircraft that would have to be maintained and paying pilots who would have to be paid in any case. All-out, year-round operations to supply Berlin would probably cost the Treasury somewhere around 100 million dollars annually in special appropriations.

Furthermore, the air lift can do the job of keeping Berlin alive, even in winter. The pessimists among the planners agree that Berlin can be provided with a daily average of 4000 tons of supplies. This will be enough to feed and warm the population of the western sectors of the city. The optimists—and the optimists were always right about the "hump"—believe that an average of 8000 tons daily can be laid down in Berlin. This will be enough to keep the economic life of the city going and give us a dividend of air exports by Berlin's industries. The higher figure is the target, both for political reasons and to reduce the additional heavy, but not unbearable expense of keeping the city on the dole.

THESE FACTS constitute the ace which is now up the sleeves of our three Moscow negotiators, America's Ambassador W. Bedell Smith, France's Chataigneau and Britain's Roberts. If the Soviets so choose, they can endure the political penalties of their Berlin blockade being frustrated by the massive Anglo-American air operation. They can also endure other, accompanying penalties, such as continued suspension of the desperately needed steel shipments from the western to the eastern zones of Germany. The political penalties alone will be very great.

Whether this will be Stalin's choice, or whether the blockade will be lifted, no one can now foresee. The questions now being negotiated are immensely technical—such matters as the control of Berlin's currency. The negotiations themselves are bound to be slow. All negotiations in Moscow are troublesome. And in the present case, Smith, Chataigneau and Roberts must send identical messages to Washington, London and Paris, and then wait until the three Western capitals have agreed upon new instructions by telephone debate.

Two points are already fairly clear, however. The fear of war, that was once widespread, has now diminished almost to the vanishing point. And the equally widespread fear of another appeasement of the Soviets has now vanished altogether.

Dewey Helped By Wallace

pared with the 1944 presidential election in New York State, the devastating effect of the Wallace candidacy on the Democratic Party is plain.

The Truman and Wallace votes if combined would total 53 per cent, or just about what the Democrats polled when Mr. Roosevelt carried the State in 1944.

	N. Y. City	Up-state	Whole State
Roosevelt	61½%	42½%	52½%
Dewey	38½	57½	47½

In 1944 New York City cast 3,300,000 votes. If the Wallace party ends up with 27 per cent of the vote this year, it would poll about one million in New York City. Nationally the Wallace percentage today is 5 per cent among voters expressing a choice. If the Wallace ticket were to qualify on the election ballot in all 48 States that would mean about three million Wallace votes, assuming that the national turnout is 58 million.

Mr. Wallace's strength in the city is more than twice the American Labor Party vote for Roosevelt in 1944. That third party, which indorsed the Roosevelt ticket, rolled up 12 per cent of the vote under its banner, as compared to Mr. Wallace's 27 per cent today among voters expressing a choice.

It is clear from today's report that Mr. Wallace's low national percentage does not give a good indication of the extent of his threat of President Truman's re-election chances. The Wallace vote in the big key cities of the Nation spells out the importance of the threat.

As far back as last January the Institute pointed out the importance of the Wallace vote in New York, on the basis of a "trial heat" matching Mr. Wallace against President Truman and Governor Dewey. This test gave Mr. Wallace 15 per cent for the State—almost exactly what he has today—and declared that he would hold the balance of power in the State.

Truman Boat Sets Course For Home

Yorktown, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—President Truman, tanned and cheerful, headed for home today on the last leg of his nine-day pre-campaign cruise on the presidential yacht Williamsburg.

During the leisurely sea trip Mr. Truman has handled official papers flown to him by amphibious planes, and has worked on campaign speeches.

He has kept abreast of diplomatic talks at Moscow but has made no official comment.

Greets Newsmen

News correspondents who visited him for an hour-long social get-together today said they got the impression Mr. Truman is optimistic over his chances of election.

Officially, today he headed off a strike set for Saturday on the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway and approved a 1948 price-support program for rice. The proposal was submitted to him by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

The Williamsburg docked last night at the naval mine depot near here. Except for brief walks the President stayed aboard.

On Eastern Shore

The yacht is anchoring tonight off Sharpes Island on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

It will pull out tomorrow for Blackstone Island. Mr. Truman expects to be in Washington Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Truman discussed history, particularly military history, with newsmen this morning.

Housing Law Hit By AFL as Aiding Builders Chiefly

Chicago, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—The American Federation of Labor charged today that the 1948 housing law passed by Congress aids only private builders and families in the upper and middle income brackets.

A statement released by the AFL executive council, in a 10-day meetting here, said that the present law "cannot and will not result in any additional housing for the average worker and his family, nor the average veteran and his family."

The AFL said a survey by its own housing committee showed that 20 per cent of urban families are doubling up, living in overcrowded conditions, in rooming houses, trailers and even tents.

It said 10 million more homes were needed to meet the current shortage, but that only 950,000 were being built this year, and most of these were for sale at high prices.

Hoffman to Take Over Economic Aid to Korea

President Truman yesterday instructed ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman to take over United States economic aid to Korea within a few months.

The program has been administered by the United States Army since Korea's liberation in 1945. United States military government in southern Korea recently was abolished with creation of a native government.

Truman Candidacy Faces Two-Way Attack in South

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

The candidacy of President Truman for a full term will be under fire from both the left and the right in the Southland this coming week.

Henry Wallace, nominee of the Progressive Party, is heading into Dixie on Sunday, and is expected to continue his hammering at Mr. Truman's "war program" and his "demagogue's promises."

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, presidential candidate of the States' Rights (Dixicrat) Party, already is on the ground denouncing Mr. Truman for trying to set up a "police state" through his civil-rights program.

The South Carolina Governor despises Wallace, having accused him of seeking to give America the "new Russian look." Wallace could hardly feel any differently about Thurmond.

Dewey Seen Beneficiary

Yet, in this strange political year, the two men are allies in the sense that both are trying to drive Mr. Truman from the White House. Generally, their attacks on the President are coupled with attacks on Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, but virtually all political observers are agreed that the Republican nominee will be the beneficiary of their efforts.

President Truman is expected to take on Governor Thurmond when he starts barnstorming in the South, probably after his Labor Day visit to Michigan.

Whether Mr. Truman will cross swords with Wallace is debatable. Some of his political advisers feel that he should ignore him, since the Iowan appears to be losing strength all the time. They grant that Wallace will hurt the Chief Executive in New York and some other large industrial centers; but whereas they once expected that he would poll something like five million votes, they now think he will be lucky to get three million.

Mr. Truman made a clear-cut statement about Wallace in a St. Patrick's Day speech in New York. He said he would rather go down to defeat than "accept the political support of Henry Wallace and his Communists."

Wallace Due Here Sunday

Wallace is scheduled to arrive at the National Airport here Sunday morning in a chartered plane. He will pick up some Washington correspondents, part of a press entourage of 16, and then fly on to Norfolk.

After addressing a Progressive Party convention in the Virginia city, he will fly to Durham, N. C. He will make speeches there and in Greensboro and in Winston-Salem.

Thereafter, traveling on a special train, Wallace will visit Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham and Tuscaloosa in Alabama, Jackson, Miss.; New Orleans, La.; Little Rock, Ark., and Memphis, Nashville and Knoxville in Tennessee.

He is scheduled to fly back to New York from Knoxville on September 4.

Dewey Leader Plans to Woo Independents

By D. Harold Oliver
Associated Press Reporter

Dewey-Warren campaigners said yesterday they are going after the independent vote in a big way.

The "independents" include strays from party regularity, ballot scratchers and young persons eligible to vote for the first time.

In recent years they have been a fertile field for the Democrats.

Victor A. Johnston of Madison, Wis., national director of the GOP volunteer division, said approximately 75,000 volunteers in the preconvention "Citizens for Stassen" organization are being asked by circular letter to enroll in Dewey-Warren Clubs and committees.

Young campaigners who worked for Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio under the name of "Twenties for Taft," also will be approached.

Johnston also will attempt to corral many Democrats who are unwilling to joint the Republican Party but may be "willing to work for Dewey."

There are more than 75 minerals which are regarded as of sufficient commercial importance to be mined extensively.

Draft Repeal Pickets Are Led by Ministers

Boston, Aug. 26 (AP).—Three Protestant ministers marched in the van of 10 pickets of the Federal Building today with placards calling for repeal of the draft because, one said, young men are "tumbling over themselves" to enlist.

The Rev. Wolcott Cutler, rector of St. John's Church in old Charlestown (Episcopal), identified the marchers as members of the "fellowship of reconciliation." He said the fellowship is a Pacifist organization with members from "different Christian churches."

'Amber' Authoress Wins Alimony From Shaw

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—A Supreme Court justice who termed their marriage a "fiasco" today ordered Bandleader Artie Shaw to pay $150 temporary weekly alimony to Author Kathleen Winsor Shaw.

Shaw is seeking an annulment of their marriage, claiming Mexico divorces obtained by each in previous marriages were void.

Explosion of Package Panics Subway Riders

New York, Aug. 26 (U.P.). — A small package dropped by an unidentified man exploded in a Brooklyn subway train during the rush hour today.

As the parcel hit the floor, red and blue flames spurted from it and the passengers shoved and pushed to get clear. Two men obtained a fire extinguisher and put out the blaze.

The man who dropped the package disappeared when the train reached a station.

Gov. Thurmond Opens Drive In Arkansas

Marianna, Ark., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the State's Rights candidate for President, appealed for votes in Arkansas tonight with a warning that the alternative is "a second reconstruction era."

Attacking the Democratic and Republican Party promises of Federal antilynch, antipoll tax, anti-segregation and FEPC legislation, Thurmond told an Arkansas audience in a prepared address:

"A vote in November for either Dewey or Truman would be an invitation for passage in January of all those vicious bills . . . Every vote for either Dewey or Truman is a vote for a second reconstruction era."

The idea, he explained, is to prevent President Truman and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey from getting a majority in the electoral college and thus throw the presidential election into the House of Representatives, where each State would have one vote.

"Then the States which vote with us will then have the balance of power," he added.

Thurmond accused the Democratic and Republican parties of indorsing the so-called civil rights program to "buy" the votes of minority blocs in the big cities of the North.

If the so-called civil rights bills ever became law, he said, it will be a step in the direction of a centralized, police state dictatorship. It would permit Federal police intereference in elections, local law enforcement and private business practices.

Dixiecrats Claim Louisiana Gains

New Orleans, Aug. 26 (AP).—States Rights Democrats now claim they have enough petition signatures to place a Thurmond-Wright slate of presidential electors on the November 2 ballot in Louisiana.

Writer Says 'Fala' Speech Won 4th Term

One of the late President Roosevelt's closest political advisers credits his famous "Fala speech" with turning the tide of the fourth-term campaign.

The story was told yesterday by Robert Sherwood in connection with his Collier's magazine articles on the secret papers of the late Harry L. Hopkins. Sherwood, like Hopkins, was a White House intimate at the time.

Mr. Roosevelt delivered the Fala speech" before a boisterous convention of the International Teamsters Union in the Statler Hotel here in October, 1944. He said his dog, Fala, was furious over Republican stories that Mr. Roosevelt had accidently left the dog on an Aleutian island and sent a destroyer back to find him at a cost of millions of dollars.

Prior to that speech, Sherwood wrote, the men around Mr. Roosevelt had been worried about apparent lethargy among Democratic voters. They feared that unless the voters steamed up the President would be beaten in November by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

"The teamsters speech—or that speech about Fala, as it was sometimes called—accomplished its objectives," Sherwood recalled.

"It put the needed excitement into the campaign; it simulated the over-confident Democrats with a will to rush forth and register and vote. And above all it disrupted Dewey's carefully cultivated self-assurance and caused him to start swinging wildly against the most artful dodger of them all."

Soldier Denied Right to Tort Claim on U. S.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—The nited States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals today split two-to-one to reverse the Charlotte (N. C.) District Court and rule that a soldier cannot sue the Government under the Federal Tort Claims Act.

Dobie

"As far as we know," the majority opinion noted, "no Federal Appellate Court has decided this question."

Circuit Judge Armistead M. Dobie and District Judge Harry E. Watkins joined to reverse the trial court, which had awarded damages to Welker B. Brooks and the estate of Arthur L. Brooks. One had been killed, the other seriously injured, when the car in which they were riding while on furlough was struck by an Army truck driven by a civilian employe near Fayatteville, N. C.

Senior Circuit Judge John J. Parker, dissented from the majority opinion, declaring that:

"The principal question in the case is whether the court shall read into the act an exception excluding soldiers from the right to recover under its provisions. I see no basis for reading such an exception into the act . . ."

The majority opinion declared the law definitely excludes soldiers. It asserted: "If . . . Congress did intend to include soldiers within the scope of the act, every dictate of common sense would seem to require that Congress would manifest this intention not by inference or inplication but, on so important a matter, by emphatic, positive expression to that effect, in words so clear that they could readily be understood even by Federal judges."

Parker

At one point the majority opinion made this observation:

"It is easy to conjure up the unfortunate results, including the subversion of military discipline, if soldiers could sue the United States for injuries incurred by reason of their being in the armed service of their country . . ."

Cuts in Farm Price Supports Talked Here

By The Associated Press

Talk of cuts in farm price supports was heard here yesterday. It stemmed from the prospect that the Agriculture Department may have to put up around $1,500,000,000 to keep prices on 1948 crops from falling below levels fixed by law.

Any changes would have to be made by Congress, however, and the lawmakers are not due back until January.

The Agricultural Department is mapping a 1949 farm production program. Its goal is to get farmers to cut back from high wartime levels in some crops—particularly wheat, potatoes, oilseeds, and possibly corn.

A proposal that 8 per cent less land be planted to wheat already has been announced. But field reports indicate growers will ignore it and plant another big acreage.

Extension in June of the wartime price supports for another year was said to be influencing farmers' plans for wheat and other crops.

The Truman Administration had urged lower price supports for next years' crop.

Department officials say privately they believe the next Congress will find it advisable to trim the support levels to prevent an accumulation of big surpluses.

F. C. Squire Reappointed

President Truman yesterday reappointed Frank C. Squire of the District of Columbia to a new term as member of the Railroad Retirement Board. Squire will serve under recess appointment until the next session of Congress.

Farmer to Rebuild After Mystery Fire

Macomb, Ill., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Charlie Willey said tody he has decided to go back and build a new farmhouse on the spot where hundreds of little mystery fires burned down his old one.

He told Deputy Fire Marshal John Burgard he didn't "believe in spooks."

Willey and his wife fled the farm after the mystery fires burned down his house and two barns, one after another.

"We were getting scared," he said as he moved to a vacant farm nearby.

No one has been able to explain the fires, which started as brown spots on the wallpaper and burst into hundreds of small flames.

Burgard believed the house fire was accidental, but that the barns were touched off by an arsonist. He was authorized by the State to launch a complete investigation.

Willey said he was "plenty mad" at the suggestion that some of the fires may have been set.

"We don't have an enemy in the world," he said.

Rome, Italy, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Henry Morgenthau, jr., former U. S. Secretary of the Treasury, was received in private audience today by Pope Pius XII at the Papal summer residence at Castel Gandolfo. He was accompanied by Edward Corsi, New York State industrial and labor comissioner, and Corsi's son.

On the Town

FOR the past few weeks a bunch of young hopefuls have been running around town with their minds on nothing but footlights and cues. The event that's causing all this is the ninth annual "Going Native" week which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theater.

Gene Ford

One week every year Gene Ford, managing director and producer of the Capitol, auditions a few hundred young people, picks a few who he thinks have talent and builds a stage revue around them. Earlier this week we sat around the Capitol stage until 4 a. m. watching the first dress rehearsal of this year's show. Of the 325 people auditioned, Ford chose 34 to participate in this year's extravaganza. Big production numbers of the show are a scene at 14th and F at midnight and another in the Blue Room at the Shoreham, complete with an impersonation of Maestro Barnee Breeskin.

Members of the cast include everything from athletes at Maryland University to amateur models and magicians. The athletes from Maryland U. call themselves the Equilibrists and their names are William Harris, David Field and Harold Buckley. Their balancing and tumbling is a treat in rhythm. Town Crier Ted Laurie does a couple of different songs throughout the show. The boy is good and should do well.

"Magical Moments" are taken care of by James Spear, a young magician who's done some 2000 hours entertaining servicemen for the American Theater Wing. He's a student at Maryland and has a taste for television.

One of the outstanding acts is Russ Jondreau, a 19-year-old who has been in show business for 2½ years already. Russ has a deep rich voice that should help him up the ladder after he's completed his training. He has had a couple of weeks at the Roxy in New York.

Weldon Bass, who in 1941 starred in the Twenty-ninth Division's famous show, which incidentally was staged by Gene Ford, is also in the revue. As soon as "Going Native" closes Weldon will be opening a dance studio here.

Barbara Browning, a Silver Spring girl, hopped out of the "Miss Washington" contest right into the Capitol with an acrobatic dance that surpasses many an act that's been through this town lately.

A FASHION SHOW featuring locally designed costumes takes the spotlight for a bit. One of the models (Mari Conover) spent her first wedding anniversary on the stage in rehearsal while hubby Willis (who announces over WWDC) sat out front in the audience. Mari has been doing some modeling over television for a few months.

A return engagement has been put in by Coke Holeman, a 260-pounder who was in the "Going Native" 10 years ago. Coke is doing pretty much the same routine.

Ford even reached into the Far East for one of his acts. Two traditional Philippine dances are done by a group of American students. Mrs. Maria Abatoon, a teacher in the Philippine Embassy, directed the dance. One of the dances is the Pandango Sa Haw, depicting a fella wooing a coy girl.

De Graffenried Wooley does a number with some well-trained puppets that is very amusing.

A couple of jitterbugs named Ruth Roberts and Tony Glin, who by the way haven't missed a local jamb session in years, burn up a mean bit of floor to a hot tune.

That's about all we have space for here. The rest of the folks are all just as important in the show, even if we couldn't mention them. The show is a good one and if you'll remember that for the most part these people are not "pro's" in the strict sense of the word we know you'll enjoy watching them work.

British Fascist Injured In Attack During Talk

London, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Jeffrey Hamm, deputy leader of Sir Oswald Mosley's British Fascist movement, was hospitalized today with head injuries and severe cuts received when he was attacked last night during a speech.

A group of men, not identified by police, rushed Hamm, knocked him unconscious with a brick and slashed him with a razor. Five of the attackers were arrested.

O'Daniel's Son-in-Law Goes to Court Over Baby

Waxahachie, Tex., Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Henry Ford White, Midlothian, Tex., rancher, today asked a court order to compel his estranged wife, Mrs. Mollie O'Daniel White and her parents, Senator and Mrs. W. Lee O'Daniel to let him visit his year-old son, Henry Ford White, jr.

Mrs. White filed suit for divorce early in July.

White said he had been denied the right to see his son since Mrs. White sued for divorce.

The Federal Diary

Langer Not Called 'Wild Bill' Without Sufficient Reason

This is a story about the Senate's most unpredictable, colorful, and interesting member—William Langer. As you'll realize as you read this, they don't call him "Wild Bill" out in his home State of North Dakota without reason.

The Senator, as you know, is chairman of the Senate Civil Service Committee. As such, he's usually invited and feted at almost all conventions of Federal workers since his committee handles legislation affecting Government people.

But the independent and potent National Rural Letter Carriers Association had a convention last week in St. Paul. The chairman wasn't officially invited since Minnesota's two Senators had been lined up to speak. However, a last-minute verbal invitation was arranged and Langer appeared at the gathering to put on one of the best shows outside of Broadway.

The blunt-spoken legislator began his remarks by frankly stating that he had to invite himself to the convention. Inferentially, he bawled out the union's leaders for the snub.

But if the chairman was peeved, it wasn't for long. He pointed out that the North Dakota chapter of the union had made him a member a few months ago and that a quick study of the organization had convinced him some changes were in order. Said he:

"Look here, you fellows pay only $3 national dues. That's not enough money to finance an aggressive and hard-driving national organization. Your representatives in Washington need money to do the things expected of them."

So, right then and, there, Langer moved that the dues be raised from $3 to $6 a year. He got a fast second and with a big hoop and a holler he declared his motion carried.

Then the Senator brought up his second reform plank for the union. He cried that "our" union needs a full-time paid representative—a lobbyist—in Washington to look out after the interests of the rural carriers. He looked around and saw B. A. "Barney" Winquest whom he affectionately calls "Big Boy," and said how sorry he was that "Big Boy" would retire as president of the union.

The chairman lavished praise on "Big Boy" and his abilities and told of what an effective Washington representative he would make for "our" union. And all the while, Winquest, whom Langer had indirectly taken a verbal poke at a few minutes earlier, was getting a bit embarrassed and uncomfortable by the unexpected and flowery superlatives.

Langer suggested that "we" pay Winquest a $15,000 annual salary—the same as a Senator—since he knows more than most legislators and lobbyists in Washington. He assured the delegates that the $15,000 would be a bargain for them, although the union president isn't paid anywhere near that figure.

He put his suggestions in the form of a motion; he got another quick second, and the flabbergasted delegates approved it with a roar. The chairman then solemnly promised the delegates:

"Big Boy Barney and I will have some fine legislation for the rural carriers by the time Congress convenes—he'll be my good right arm."

Langer continued his rip-snorting speech, demanding higher salaries and other benefits for postal employes. He was the hero of the convention. But the next morning the convention met again in a more serious session. Langer was en route to another employe gathering.

Winquest explained that Senator Langer was merely an "honorary" member of the North Dakota local, and that, therefore, his two motions of the previous day were ruled out of order. Anyway, he said nothing would interfere with his plan to go back to Nebraska to take back his old rural route. However, the convention did vote to raise dues from $3 to $4 a year—so Langer won a "moral" victory. Also, the new president, Willard Manning of Florida, promised to work closely with Langer.

After it was all over, the biggest laugh was had probably by Langer himself. The Senator is a master at putting on a show to gain a serious objective. He's dumb like a fox.

A Cool Number, Miss Washington . . .

Woman Is Burned In Wastebasket Fire

Mrs. Roy, 42, Wife Of House Aide, in Critical Condition

Mrs. Hilda Roy, 42, wife of William T. Roy, assistant parliamentarian of the House of Representatives, was critically burned yesterday by a fire from a metal wastepaper basket in her fourth-floor apartment at 4550 Connecticut ave. nw.

She was discovered unconscious, lying on a bed, her pajamas burned off except for a pajama string around her waist, about 2 p. m., by a neighbor and the janitor. A wastepaper basket was still smoldering, they reported.

With first, second and third-degree burns of the face and body, she was in critical condition at Emergency Hospital last night as relatives sought to locate her husband, reported to be on vacation.

The janitor, Cleades Melvin Johnson, 42, said he was called in his basement apartment by the switchboard operator and told to investigate a report by Mrs. A. S. Wiltsie, of Apartment 306, of "water running and someone moaning in 406," Mrs. Roy's apartment.

"We found the place full of smoke and Mrs. Roy lying horizontally across the bed, her feet doubled up against her," Johnson said.

Johnson said he and his wife dumped the metal basket into a partly water-filled tub and opened the windows.

Before the Fire Rescue Squad ambulance arrived, Mrs. Roy regained consciousness, repeatedly moaning what sounded like her husband's name, Mrs. Ford, a neighbor, said.

Auto Sales Firm Sued for $1500 In 8-Year-Old Deal

A Washington auto sales company yesterday was sued for $1500 in damages for alleged failure to deliver a new car contracted for eight years ago.

The suit was filed in Municipal Court by Irving Wolf, of 313 Taylor st. nw., against Torrey Motor Co., 1137 Nineteenth st. nw.

William A. Torrey of the firm denied the allegations. He said he offered to deliver the new car shortly after he had accepted Wolf's old auto and had given him a $350 credit toward the new car. Torrey said that because of the war scarcity, and gas shortage, Wolf refused to accept delivery, and not until the war was over and new cars hard to get did Wolf demand delivery.

Besides the damages, Wolf seeks $225 plus interest from Torrey Motor Co. He stated that the company had returned $125 of the credit on his old car. Wolf asked for a jury trial.

2 Held for Grand Jury

Two persons charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips were held for the grand jury yesterday under $1500 bond each. They are Bessie J. Fields, 30, of 1115 6th st. nw., and Joseph Robinson, 43, of 1433 S st. nw. They appeared before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Crab Feast Set Saturday

A crab feast will be held by the Silver Spring Memorial Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Saturday from 3 to 8 p. m. at the Memorial Post home, 2425 Hayden dr., Silver Spring, 2 miles north of Colesville rd. In case of rain, the feast will be held Sunday at the same time and place.

Near Manassas

Va. Convict Shot Fleeing Road Gang

A Virginia road gang worker was shot and critically wounded yesterday afternoon as he attempted to escape from a prison crew working at Lake Jackson near Manassas.

He was taken to Arlington Hospital, where he was tentatively identified as Leonard Gillenwater. Doctors there said the bullet had struck him in the side.

According to M. C. Russell, supervisor of State Camp 30 in Fairfax, the wounded man was one of three prisoners of Camp 13 at Woodbridge, Va., who attempted to escape while working on a bridge. The shooting was said to have occurred about 2:30 p. m.

Gillenwater was shot while escaping, Russell said. The other two fled a short distance from the work place but were rounded up within 30 minutes, he said. G. G. Jefferson, supervisor of Camp 13, could not be reached for further details.

U. S. Nolle Prosses Child-Lashing Case Against Man

The United States Attorney's Office yesterday nolle prossed a child-lashing case filed against Edward A. Tyler, sr., 36, a plumber, of 1650 U st. se.

Assistant United States Attorney Andrew Howard said that the assault case was dropped because both the child, Edward, jr., 11, and the mother, Mrs. Orris E. Tyler, 35, declined to prosecute.

According to Howard, Tyler had recently been released from the hospital after an appendectomy and was nervous when his son came home late in the evening. The son refused to take a bath and the father took an electric cord and dog leash and whipped him, raising a mass of bruises and welts in his back, it was charged.

5¼ Million Bonds Sold by Alexandria

'Political Squabble' Kept Interest Up to 2.93%, Broker Says

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

The Alexandria City Council yesterday sold $5,250,000 in bonds at interest rates averaging 2.9307 per cent. One broker, however, thought it might have done better except for a "political squabble" within the city.

At a special afternoon session of the council, the bonds were sold to the syndicate of Phelps, Fenn & Co. and Ferris & Co. and Associates, a group of New York, Washington and Richmond brokers. Their bid, including a premium of $9450, was the lowest of six received by the noon deadline yesterday.

According to their bid, the bonds, which will be spent on schools, streets, sewers and recreation facilities, will be paid off over a period of 36 years. The interest rate obtained was slightly lower than the 2.99 per cent at which Montgomery County, Md., sold three million dollars in bonds last Tuesday, and Mayor William T. Wilkins said he thought the city had "done well in view of the ascending market."

Says Firms Dropped Out

But one Washington broker, who would not allow use of his name, said several firms had decided not to bid and others had raised their interest rates because of recent attacks by Councilman-Elect Marshall J. Beverley against city departments and because of the size of the issue.

Beverley had charged inefficiency in several different departments in six public statements issued during the past two weeks.

The broker said two New York firms had decided not to bid because of what they thought was a first-class political row.

He stated further that he had pulled out of a syndicate that he represented at the opening of bids because Washington banks showed a lack of interest for the same reason.

Councilman R. Samuel Luckett said "there is no question in my mind but that Mr. Beverley's remarks hurt the bond issue."

When Councilman John W. Tulloch cast the lone dissenting vote, the broker asked a reporter, "Is that Beverley?"

Hero Names Entered for VA Hospital

The projected Veterans Administration hospital on Arlington's Nevius tract would be named after two Arlington County soldiers killed in World War II under a proposal to be submitted to the Arlington County Board Saturday by its chairman, Daniel A. Dugan.

Dugan said yesterday he would propose that the hospital be called the MacDonald-Madigan General Hospital, for Capt. Lawrence R. MacDonald and Lieut. John Francis Madigan, and that the county board so petition Congress.

The Veterans Administration said yesterday all its hospitals must be named by Congress.

Captain MacDonald, commander of a company of the Seventy-eighth Infantry Division in Europe, was killed in action in 1944 during the Battle of the Bulge. A former accountant with Washington Gas Light Co., he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. MacDonald, 1600 N. Fort Myer dr. His widow, Mrs. Marie MacDonald, and 4-year-old son live at 1039 N. Daniel st.

Lieutenant Madigan was navigator of an Air Corps B-17 which crashed near Frankfort, Germany, on May 12, 1944. He was the son of John F. Madigan, 3115 N. 9th rd., and the husband of Mrs. Mary Madigan, 3010 N. 7th st. Before entering the service, he was a printer with the Government Printing Office.

As authorized by Congress, the hospital, to be built on the Nevius site at Lee blvd. and Ridge rd. near Arlington Cemetery, would cost 15 million dollars. Preliminary plans have been completed

Travel Builds Good Will for U. S., Editor Tells Lions

The good will effects of international travel "will parallel those of the Marshall Plan," members of the Friendship Lions Club were told yesterday.

Guest speaker at the club's weekly meeting was Walter W. Hubbard, managing editor of the American Motorist, who talked on the topic, "World Travel Makes World Peace."

He cited figures to show that more than 300,000 Americans have gone to Europe on vacations or on business this year.

Tamm's Pay Rights Are Again Upheld

Comptroller's Second Decision Follows Ouster Move by Bar Association

The United States Comptroller General yesterday again ruled that District Court Justice Edward Allen Tamm is entitled to draw his $15,000-a-year salary.

The decision was made public one day after the District Bar Association's board of directors had voted to seek the ouster of the jurist and recover any salary paid to him.

It was the second time in recent weeks that Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren came up with a decision okaying Tamm's pay.

Two Other Judges Affected

The first decision declared that Tamm's recess appointment to the local Federal bench on June 22 was clearly valid, and that therefore Tamm was entitled to his salary.

The latest ruling, in effect, states that the June 22 appointment is still good, despite the fact that Tamm's nomination was presented to the Senate in the recent special two-weeks session and not acted upon.

The Comptroller General's decision also favorably affects the pay rights of two other Federal judges, Paul P. Rao of Customs Court and Samuel H. Kaufman of Southern New York District Court, whose appointments were similar to that of Tamm.

Yesterday's ruling did not specify for how long Tamm's appointment was valid without Senate confirmation. Nor did the decision clearly determine for how long Tamm was to be paid.

The Constitution provides for the President to make certain appointments without the approval of the Senate when the Senate is in recess. A Federal statute, however, controls the pay rights of recess appointees. Situations have arisen whereby the presidential recess appointee has failed to draw any salary.

The question as to Tamm's pay was raised twice by the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, which handles the salaries of Federal judges.

150 Students To Train Under Red Cross Plan

Nearly 150 junior and high school students have been selected by their schools to participate in the second annual Junior Red Cross Leadership training program which will be conducted next week at Camps Lichtman and Kahlert, Lester T. Walter, chairman of the District Junior Red Cross, announced yesterday.

Leaving from the 12th st. YMCA at noon Sunday will be 75 boys and girls who will go to Camp Lichtman for a training period of one week ending September 4. Another 75 will leave Wednesday, Sept. 1, at 9 a.m. from Walsh House, 2020 Massachusetts ave. nw to participate in the Junior Red Cross leadership training at Camp Kahlert, West River, Md. during the period ending September 8.

The trainees will be given a review of the entire scope of Red Cross services and aims through lecture and discussion periods, interspersed with recreational and sports events also closely related to Red Cross activities.

Moonlight Loses Charm for Area Reserve Marines

Camp Lejeune, N. C., Aug. 26 (Spl.).—The Carolina moon holds little romance for members of the Marine Corps Reserve Fifth Battalion now in training here.

Members of the unit from Greater Washington and Virginia cities have been rising by moonlight every morning for target practice with rifles, carbines and pistols. Reveille on the range is 4:30 a. m.

Trainees returned to the main camp yesterday to prepare for a dawn amphibious landing on Onslow Beach on Tuesday.

ALICE JEAN STONER

WILLIAM JOHNSON, Jr.
Skull fractured

A boy and girl, both four, were in critical condition last night after falling through a bedroom window screen into a paved alley three stories below.

The children, William Johnson, jr., and Alice Jean Stoner, both of Apartment 3, 1209 N. Capitol st., lay in the alley for 15 minutes before an ambulance arrived to take them to Sibley Hospital, about half a block away, neighbors said.

Sibley Hospital has no ambulance and police reported they had no ambulances available at the time. Bystanders did not dare move the children. The ambulance finally came from Freedmen's Hospital for the trip to Sibley.

William and Alice Jean, who are first cousins, were in the house with the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, and the Johnson's 19-month-old baby, David Scott.

Alice Jean's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Stoner, who is Mrs. Johnson's sister and lives with the Johnsons, was at work in the Whelan drug store, 14th and H sts. nw. She is a clerk.

Mrs. Johnson said the children were playing on a bed in the back bedroom when she went into a front room. The bed was 3 feet from a window.

A moment later, she said, she heard neighbors shouting. She rushed to the bedroom and found the screen broken out. The children were in the alley below.

A former merchant seaman with two years' service on the Mediterranean run, Johnson is now a taxi driver.

William, who was reported more seriously injured, suffered a fractured skull and other injuries. Alice Jean received multiple cuts in the head and body and a broken left leg.

Robbery Attempt, Assault Charges Hold Man for Jury

John E. Kirby, 27, no fixed address, was held yesterday under $10,000 bond for grand jury action on charges of attempted robbery and assault with intent to kill.

Kirby waived preliminary hearing before Judge Armond Scott in Municipal Court.

According to charges, on Wednesday afternoon, Kirby held up with a loaded revolver Mrs. Edmund B. Ault, 36, of 1409 Nicholson st. nw. He ordered her to give him the keys to her car in which she was sitting in the 6600 block of Georgia ave. nw., police related.

She left the car and called bystanders. Police Pvt. Temple J. Dykes gave chase when Kirby ran from the automobile. Dykes said Kirby turned and pressed the trigger of his weapon, which did not fire because the safety catch was on. Dykes pulled his own revolver and Kirby surrendered.

Musical Program Put Off

A musical variety program sponsored by the Grace Church Cooperative Nursery School, scheduled for today at 8:30 p. m. in the Woodside Methodist Church, Silver Spring, Md., has been postponed. Tickets already purchased will be valid when the event is held, according to Mrs. R. L. May, committee chairman.

D. C. Hospital Worker Dies In Collision With Truck

Bantam-Sized Sedan Dragged 259 Feet By Gravel Truck In Prince Georges

Pictures on B-2

A 40-year-old St. Elizabeths Hospital attendant was killed yesterday when his bantam-type sedan collided with a gravel-laden truck in nearby Prince Georges County.

The victim, identified from papers and personal effects in his possession, was Lewis E. Williams, 720 Virginia ave. se.

The small Crosley sedan was dragged 259 feet by the truck, Prince Georges County police said. The collision occurred at Military hwy. and Naylor rd., near Silver Hill at 12:40 p. m.

Driver of the truck, according to police, was Leonard F. Robinson, 26, of 312 50th st. ne., employed by a contractor on a nearby construction job. Robinson, who was thrown from the truck's cab as it careened down an embankment following the crash, was uninjured.

Police said the collision occurred when the small car started across Military highway after it approached the intersection marked by a stop sign. It was not immediately determined whether Williams had stopped before proceeding across the road, they said.

Robinson told Police Pvt. Lawrence Riddlebarger he did not see the small automobile until it reached the intersection. The driver, who also told Riddlebarger he was travelling at about 35 miles per hour, said he was unable to stop the truck before it left the highway as he was tossed from the cab at the moment of impact.

The small sedan, crushed by the impact, apparently lodged on the front bumper of the truck and was carried down the embankment and across the grass parkway paralleling the road to the edge of a wooded area, police said.

At some moment after the impact Williams was thrown from his car and when police arrived his body was pinioned in back of and under the front wheels of the truck, which remained upright.

The fatal accident occurred about 150 yards from a loan office where Williams borrowed $300 the day before. Employes at the office, Lenders, Inc., 3109 Naylor rd., said he obtained the money through an application in which he stated it was to be used for his vacation. Williams leaves his wife and two children, a girl, 4, and a boy, 12.

Technical charges of manslaughter and reckless driving were placed against Robinson who was released late yesterday afternoon under $1100 bond. Hearing was set for 10 a. m. today in Marlboro Police Court.

Show Window Smashed

The show window of a gasoline station at 1933 Bladensburg rd. ne. was smashed early yesterday morning when a sleepy driver, police said, continued through the "T" intersection of New York ave. and Bladensburg rd. ne.

The motorist, Reginald F. Brandon, 26, of 5100 Warder st. nw., told police he had "dozed off" momentarily. He was uninjured, but damages to the gasoline station and automobile were estimated at $1200 and $400 respectively.

Brandon was charged with failing to give full time and attention to his driving.

Child's Death Accidental

The death Tuesday of 2-year-old Doris Jean Kennedy, struck by a truck at 10th and C sts. sw., was ruled accidental yesterday by Acting Coroner Christopher J. Murphy.

The child, who lived at 1015 Maryland ave. sw., reportedly was following her 8-year-old step-sister, Hazel Shirley Brown, across the street when she was struck. The older girl was going to buy some bubble gum.

The truck driver, Lewis W. Creel, 35, of 422 10th st. nw., was exonerated of blame by Dr. Murphy's action.

Mother's Reassurance to Lampheres

Virginia Boy Faces Life Minus Bladder

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 26.—A Virginia mother would like to reassure Mrs. Irene Lamphere that she is doing the right thing in permitting an operation on her 22-month-old daughter to correct a bladder abnormality.

The Virginia mother, who lives in the Leesburg vicinity, has asked The Washington Post not to reveal her name to protect her 4-year-old boy from any embarrassment he might suffer through public knowledge of his abnormality.

Today, at Mrs. X's rural home, her son (whom we shall name Johnny) was playing with other children as happily as though he had not spent nearly four months of his young life in a hospital recovering from surgery.

"He knows he isn't like the other children, but it doesn't seem to bother him. No one outside the family and the doctor knows, and we think Johnny will be happy in school and have an even chance as long as other children don't find out and tease him," Mrs. X said.

"If I had known Mrs. Lamphere's address, I would have written to her," she said. "But I thought perhaps you could tell her the operation should be performed. I know what she is going through now, but I know also that Johnny has a chance to live to be 30 or 40, and if he hadn't had the operation, his chances to live very long would have been very slim."

Reconciliation of Fred and Irene Lamphere, and their agreement to permit the operation on Pamela within 60 days, was announced yesterday. The operation was recommended by a group of physicians appointed by Illinois Superior Court Judge Walter R. O'Malley.

"When Johnny was born," Mrs. X said, "I thought nothing worse could have happened than for him to have had his bladder outside his body. But I've found out differently since.

"He's an intelligent, tender boy. He could be a lot worse off than he is.

"Of course, my husband and I had a terrible time deciding whether Johnny should have the operation. Our own doctor told us it would be all right to wait until he was 3 or 4 before the operation was performed.

"But when he was 16 months old he became ill with influenza and went to the University Hospital in Charlottesville. The doctors there urged us to let them operate for the boy's own good. And two months later, after he had recovered enough strength, the first, and most serious, operation was performed."

By means of surgery, the boy's bladder was by-passed by diverting tubes inside his body to connect with his rectum, she said. In two more years, he must return for another operation, removal of the useless bladder. When he was born, the bladder was lying open on his abdomen. It has never closed.

"I thought it might comfort Mrs. Lamphere to know that the operation can be successfully performed," Mrs. X said.

"When I was trying to make up my mind about Johnny, a woman came to me who had a child with this same type of bladder. She told me she had waited until her child was 8 before she permitted the first operation. That child is dead now. I thought Mrs. Lamphere would like to know that.

"And I think, she also might like to know that once the operation was over, Johnny was just like any other boy. We simply have to be sure he has enough to eat and drink. We send him to the doctor for regular checkups.

"If Johnny hadn't had the operation, he would never have been able to go to school. In another two years now, he will start his classes. We want to give him every chance and make things as easy for him as we can.

Area News in Brief

Toe Blister Starts Better Road Drive

A blister on the toe, suffered by Mrs. Justin McCarthy, 1249 Valley ave. se., has started a chain of events which may result in improved roads and bus service for Wheeler Terrace residents.

Mrs. McCarthy, wife of John L. Lewis' publicity man, decided last week to walk across a ravine as a shortcut to the nearest bus service a mile and a quarter away on Alabama ave. se. En route she took on the blistered toe and a good case of determination, she explained yesterday.

She collected the signatures of 200 of her neighbors on Valley ave. and Wheeler rd. se. and yesterday presented them on a petition seeking road patching and bus service to Acting Engineer Commissioner L. E. Cox.

Cox assured her the roads would be repaired immediately and the Public Utilities Commission said it would schedule a hearing on her bus service complaints after she furnishes information on existing service.

City Hall Face Lifting

Alexandria's City Hall will get a $6980 face lifting in the next few weeks in preparation for its 200th birthday celebration next year.

City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto yesterday announced he had let a contract to the Jaffe-New York Decorating Co. to paint all exterior woodwork on the building, which covers half a city block, and accessories such as fire escapes and drain pipes.

Also to be painted are the civil and police courtroom, court offices, the police cell block, detention rooms and front offices. Work is scheduled to start immediately.

Optometrist Honored

Dr. Edwin H. Silver, Washington optometrist, last night received the gold medal of the Distinguished Service Foundation of Optometry in recognition of his achievements for highway safety during 21 years as chairman of the Motor Vision Commission of the American Optometric Association.

The presentation was made at Town Hall in Philadelphia as part of the commencement program of the Pennsylvania College of Optometry.

Dr. Silver, who was the first president of the District of Columbia Optometric Association, was credited with launching a campaign for visual standards for motor vehicle operators and eyesight tests for prospective drivers. He also was credited with perfecting a short eye test formula for driver examinations which is now used by many cities and States.

Radar Saves Plane

An F-51 Mustang plane, its pilot blinded by oil on his windshield, was brought down safely at Andrews Field Wednesday afternoon through the efforts of radar, direction-finding units, and a control tower operator.

Lieut. Col. G. A. Stell, USAF, en route from Turner Air Force Base, Albany, Ga., to Bolling Field, was 60 miles south of Andrews Field when a leaking propellor governor splattered his view with oil, an Air Force spokesman said. He was brought by instrument to within a mile or so of the field, when he notified the field he couldn't make out ground controls through the smeared windows. Staff Sergt. Glen D. Tigner then took over from the control tower and brought the plane safely to through the smeared windows. the ground. Tigner is the son of L. M. Tignor, 1616 Montana ave., ne.

Marihuana Charge

James Marvin, alias William L. Boyd, 22, of 1610 11th st. nw., was placed under $500 bond yesterday and held for grand jury action on a charge of illegal possession of marihuana cigarettes. He appeared before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Petition States 'Axis Sally' Is Held Illegally

A petition seeking release of "Axis Sally" on grounds she is being held illegally was filed in District Court yesterday.

Axis Sally, the Nazi-sponsored radio actress who broadcast to American troops during the war, is in District Jail on a treason charge. Her real name is Mildred E. Gillars, 47. She was born in Portland, Me.

According to the writ of habeas corpus, which demands a hearing in the court to determine whether the defendant is being held legally, she cannot be charged with treason here since she is a citizen of Germany by reason of having married a German national.

Attorney John M. Holzworth of New York, filed the petition. Justice Richmond B. Keech refused to act on it yesterday because of failure of Holzworth to obtain local counsel.

Meanwhile, the District grand jury is to hear introductory evidence today in the Axis Sally case.

Framework Laid For Industrial Editor Unit Here

Editors of 11 employe newspapers for local business establishments last night laid the framework for the Washington Association of Industrial Editors at a preorganization meeting held at the Friendship Hot Shoppe, 4110 Wisconsin ave. nw.

The group received advice and encouragement from Robert Breth, management consultant of the American Association of Industrial Editors. The local editors plan to affiliate with the AAIE after they are organized.

Martin Buxbaum, editor of the Southern Dairies publication, was named temporary chairman. Permanent officers will be elected at the next meeting, September 23.

Harry C. Wiess

Houston, Tex., Aug. 26 (AP).—Harry C. Wiess, 61, chairman of the board of the Humble Oil and Refining Co., died here today. The veteran oilman had been Humble president until last May.

Harry N. Rickey, 77, Founder Of Daily News Here, Dies

Winter Park, Fla., Aug. 26 (AP).—Harry N. Rickey, 77, former Scripps-Howard newspapers executive, died here tonight.

At the age of 16 Rickey went to work for the Cleveland Press, the first newspaper in what was later to become the Scripps-Howard group of newspapers. He rose rapidly, becoming city editor at 21, managing editor at 28, and editor-in-chief at 30.

Rickey left the Press to become editor-in-chief of the Scripps-McRae league of newspapers, a position he held until the entrance of the United States into World War I.

He was also the first director of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, a feature syndicate, and one of the original directors of the United Press.

During the war Rickey served under George Creel as chief of the London office of the Committee of Public Information. Following the Armistice, he became director of the League to enforce peace, a nonpartisan organization working for the ratification of the League of Nations Covenant.

Rickey rejoined Scripps-Howard in 1919 in a roving assignment covering international affairs, including the first Assembly of the League.

He returned in 1921 to become editorial director for Scripps-Howard with offices in Washington, D. C., where he founded the Washington Daily News.

Assault Charge Against Woman Is Dismissed

A charge of assault with a dangerous weapon filed against Mrs. Elizabeth C. Pearson, 40, of 4503 6th st., Arlington, Va., was dismissed yesterday in Municipal Court.

Judge Armond Scott ordered the defendant released when the complaining witness, Rodney Hall, 34, of 934 I st. nw., who claimed he was stabbed in the chest by Mrs. Pearson, failed to appear in court to prosecute. The judge ordered an attachment be issued to force Hall to explain his absence.

When Mrs. Pearson appeared before Judge Scott earlier this month on the stabbing charge, she demanded a "white judge." Judge Scott, who is a Negro, fined her $10 for contempt but then remitted the fine and ordered that she be given a mental examination. She was found not to need treatment.

2 Exporters Held For Jury, Charged With Bribe Offers

Two New York exporters were ordered held yesterday under $2500 bond each for grand jury action on a charge of offering a $2000 bribe to a Government official here in an attempt to obtain an export license.

FBI agents told United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence that the defendants, Orlando Lopez, 27, and Louis Feldman, 41, wanted a license to export $50,000 worth of galvanized pipe to Venezuela.

Bids Asked on Building Aircraft Parking Area

Bids have been asked for construction of an aircraft parking area at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia. They will be received at the Public Works Office, Naval Gun Factory, until 3 p. m. September 15, when the sealed proposals will be opened.

Southworth Funeral Held At All Souls'

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Dix Southworth, 85, widow of the Rev. Dr. Franklin C. Southworth, former president of the Meadville, Pa., Unitarian Theological Seminary, were held yesterday at All Souls' Unitarian Church.

Mrs. Southworth died Wednesday in Emergency Hospital where she had been confined for two weeks since suffering a broken leg in a fall.

She came to Washington in 1944 after the death of her husband and lived at the Westchester Apartments, 4000 Cathedral ave. nw.

Born in Forestville, N. Y., she graduated from Vassar College in 1887. She later taught Latin at Vassar. In 1928 she accompanied her husband to the All-India Theistic Conference at Calcutta. Dr. Southworth was president of the conference. Prior to her husband's death she lived mainly at their seaside home in Little Compton, R. I.

Mrs. Southworth is survived by two sons, Constant Southworth of Washington and Dr. F. Chester Southworth of Buffalo, N. Y.

Rev. Thomas G. Baxter

Philadelphia, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Rev. Thomas G. Baxter, 76, former member of the Pennsylvania Legislature and retired Presbyterian minister, died Tuesday at his home in suburban Upper Darby.

Following his retirement, he was elected to the State Legislature from Bradford County.

Mrs. Thomas E. Griffith

Mrs. Thomas E. Griffith, 60, former Washington resident, died Wednesday in The Dalles, Oreg., where she had made her home for the past 38 years.

Mrs. Griffith, the former Martha Marc Swen, was the daughter of the late Rev. E. Hez Swem, pastor of Baptist churches here for more than 50 years. She attended schools and the old Washington College here.

She is survived by her husband, who is head of The Dalles Clinic and a former president of the Oregon Medical Society, a daughter, Mrs. James H. Bell of Seattle, Wash., and two brothers, Lee Allen Swem, New York City, and John B. Swem, 4307 Albemarle st. nw.

Interment will be in Portland, Oreg.

Helen Lee Worthing

Hollywood, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Helen Lee Worthing, 43, once a famed Ziegfeld Follies beauty, died early today in a tiny cottage where she had lived for 10 years, alone and forgotten.

Miss Worthing's body was surrounded with bulging scrapbooks recalling her debut at the age of 17 on the New York musical comedy stage. There were numerous clippings about her appearances opposite John Barrymore in 1928 in "Don Juan."

Other clippings told of her marriage at the height of her career in 1927 to Dr. Eugene C. Nelson, Negro physician. Dr. Nelson had their marriage annulled in 1935.

Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, Religious Worker, Dies at 82

Great Neck, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP).—Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, 82, cofounder of the Volunteers of America, a religious and charitable relief organization, died tonight after an illness of three months.

Born in England, Mrs. Booth came to this country as the wife of the late Ballington Booth, son of Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army.

She and her husband created the Volunteers of America after a rift in the Booth family 52 years ago.

She was a public speaker and author of many books, mainly juveniles and treatises on penology.

She died at the home of a daughter, Miss Theodora Booth.

A Salvation Army lassie during her youth, Mrs. Booth became one of the best known religious workers of her time.

She came to the United States in 1887 to assist her husband in setting up the program of the Salvation Army. Nine years later a transfer order directing the Booths to go on duty in another country brought a family rift that resulted in establishment of the Volunteers of America.

Mr. Booth died in 1939.

C. W. Good Dies at 77; Supervisor

Charles W Good, 77, retired supervisor in the engraving department of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, died yesterday at his home, 1232 Quincy st. nw.

Born in Harrisonburg, Va., Mr. Good came to Washington 55 years ago to serve with the Federal Government. He was a member of St. John's Chapter No. 11, A. F. & A. M.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Addie C. Good; a son, Norman C. Good; a brother, James E. Good, and a grandson, Norman L. Good, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Monday at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N st. nw., with burial in the Arlington Cemetery.

$10,000 Suit Filed Against Mrs. Hite

A $10,000 damage suit was filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday against Miss Maude C. Hite, operator of a nursery school on Rockville pike.

In the suit, Cyril R. Haas, 1234 28th st. nw., charged his two children, Elizabeth, 2, and Sarah, 3, became seriously ill at the school through the "negligence and carelessness" of Miss Hite.

The boarding school for children last year was the object of a police investigation following complaints by parents that children were "mistreated."

Police investigators found an insufficient supply of food and reported the school was being operated without required State and county permits.

Haas charged in the suit his two children were in the school for 13 days last May. During that time, he charged, one became "extremely sick" and required long and expensive hospitalization and the other became "sickly and in a run-down condition."

Informed of the suit, Miss Hite commented "there's nothing to it." She said the two Haas children, who contracted measles, were already "run down" when they were entered at the school.

'I'll Get Along Somehow . . .'

The Washington Post

SHE CAN STILL SMILE—Dorothy Kilmer, paralyzed by a shot accidentally fired from the service revolver of a rookie policeman in a 14th st. night club, is carried from Emergency Hospital by Joseph Hagen (left) and Richard Nanson, ambulance men. She was removed yesterday to Washington Sanitarium for convalescense. After being told she will never walk again, Dorothy said, "I'll be happy and I'll get along somehow"

U. S. and Mexico Fail to Reach Pact On Air Transport

By the United Press

The United States and Mexico last night announced temporary failure to negotiate an air transport agreement.

Talks have been suspended, but officials did not abandon hope for an eventual agreement.

The announcement said "because of different views with respect to certain air routes to be mutually operated by both countries on a permanent basis, the conversations did not result in complete and final agreement in spite of compromises made by both sides in an effort to meet each other's views."

The disputed routes were not identified.

Money in Circulation Off $14 Millions in Week

Money in circulation dropped off 14 million dollars during the week ended August 25, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

That left the total in circulation $27,965,000,000. It was 337 million dollars less than at this time last year.

Theater Planned If It Can Get Plays

Court Calls

D. C. Board Enters Row Over Phones

The District Commissioners yesterday entered the row over who is going to pay for the telephone calls of the Corporation Counsel's office in Municipal Court.

The Commissioners' reaction to the refusal of court authorities to let the Corporation Counsel's staff make outgoing calls through the court switchboard was expressed by Commissioner Guy Mason. It was:

"The courts are not running the District government."

But, according to a statement made Wednesday by Walter F. Bramhall, clerk of Municipal Court, the courts aren't planning to pay the District's phone bills, either.

Court officers emphasize that the Corporation Counsel's office actually is a part of the District Government.

Bramhall, who ordered a halt on all outgoing calls, also directed five out of eight of the telephones in the Corporation Counsel's office removed.

The reason is to prevent a deficit in the court's expenditures for the year, he said.

Mason said he talked to Chief Judge George P. Barse, who promised to investigate.

Meanwhile, if anybody in the Corporation Counsel's office wants to make a telephone call, he asks the court operator to flash the District operator who dials the number.

Construction of a $600,000 legitimate theater on Wisconsin ave. at Newark st. nw., is being planned by Garfield I. Kass, Washington builder, and Theodore Granik, attorney.

The project hinges on a franchise being obtained from the United Booking Office, in New York City, which books stage productions, a spokesman said.

If the franchise is secured, construction of the theater, which would seat 1200 to 1500, can be completed in nine months, at an estimated cost of $600,000 to $650,000, according to Arthur C. Katims, an associate of Mr. Granik, who announced the plans.

The president of United Booking is Marcus Heiman, operator of the National Theater here, which closed its doors recently rather than yield to an Actors' Equity ban against its members appearing in theaters barring Negroes. The National is being converted into a movie house, leaving the city without a legitimate playhouse.

The proposed new theater would observe a nonsegration policy but the issue is not of primary concern to Kass and Granik, Katims said.

"The important problem is to get a legitimate theater for Washington," Katims added.

Granik, a prominent attorney here, is director of the American Forum of the Air. Kass, president of the Kass Realty Co., built the Chevy Chase Ice Palace, the Beverly and Sheridan Theaters and currently is engaged in projects amounting to some 15 million dollars, Katims said.

The theater would include radio and television studios and would form the nucleus of a projected shopping center. Kass owns the land, part of the old McLean estate. Plans call for plays 36 weeks of the year, with concerts or other entertainment the rest of the time.

Franco Reported In Sea Talk With Spanish Pretender

San Sebastian, Spain (Friday) Aug. 27 (AP).—Monarchist soures said today Don Juan, pretender to the Spanish throne, and Chief of StateFrancisco Franco rendez voused in yachts Wednesday off the French coast.

The sourses said a three-hour meeting betwen the two took place aboard Franco's yacht in the Bay of Biscay.

The Spanish Cortes (Parliament) approved a "law of succession" last year making Spain "traditionally a kingdom" and naming Franco chief of state for life. The law also gave Franco the right to select his successor if he chooses to retire before his death.

The Spanish throne has been vacant since 1931 when Don Juan,s father, King Alfonso XIII reliquished it. Alfonso died in 1941.

Skill at Skillet To Count in This Beauty Contest

Timonium, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—A beauty contest—no bathing suits, please!—will be staged at the fairgrounds Saturday to pick Maryland's Farm Queen for the Timonium State Fair, which opens Wednesday.

The judges will be looking for more than pulchritude. Ability with a skillet will count, too. Other qualifications are the amount of home economics studied and standing in 4-H Club work.

The Maryland Farm Bureau is sponsoring the contest. Entries include Joan Sandlin, 17, of Mutual, in Calvert County; Ethel Rae Hill, 18, of Hampstead, in Carroll; Hilda Marie Bowling, 18, of Wicomico, in Charles; Patsy Himes, 17, of Walkersville, in Frederick; Donna Reckner, 17, of Accident, in Garret; Avis Selby, 17, of West Friendship, in Howard; Carol Schaeffer, 18, of Germantown, in Montgomery; Mary Mueller, 18, of St. Inigoes, in St. Marys, and Thelma Hockenberry, 17, of Sharpsburg, in Washington County.

Assembly to Get Draft Of Rights Declaration

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 26 (U.P.) The United Nations Economic and Social Council voted today to forward to the U. N. General Assembly without recommendation a draft declaration on human rights.

The declaration, as drafted, would provide additional freedoms in the fields of religion, nationality, marriage and information.

Willard L. Thorp, assistant U. S. Secretary of State and American delegate to the council, lauded the declaration.

Argentine Community Isolated by Snowstorm

Esquel, Argentina, Aug. 27 (U.P.) Five hundred inhabitants of the south Argentinian community of El Coyte were isolated today by a violent snowstorm. All communications were out and roads and highways blocked.

The government was reported preparing to drop food and medicine by air to the snowbound community.

U. S. Darien Consulate Is Left Isolated

Nanking, Aug. 26 (AP). — The United States consulate in Soviet-controlled Dairen today was left isolated by the curtailing of consular ties batween Russia and the United States.

American Embassy officials said with the closing of the United States consulate at Vladivostok, Russian permission for periodical courier trips into Dairen via Vladivostok would likely be withdrawn.

Jap Rail Workers Jailed Over Strike

Sapporo, Japan, Aug. 26 (NYHT). About 200 striking railroad workers on the island of Hokkaido are now in jail and warrants have been issued for the arrest of about 400 more in the struggle of the Ashida cabinet to enforce its ordinance prohibiting strikes by government employes.

'Scooting Around Malta'

London, Aug. 26 (U.P.)—The Admiralty announced today that five unarmed Russian trawlers have been "scooting around Malta, doing nothing in particular, for quite a while."

Picture of young man being grim about it all. You can't see her, but Lizabeth Scott is spying on Dick Powell here, which probably accounts for his discomfiture. They're playing in "Pitfall," now at the Warner Theater

Near-Starving Diet Lowers Blood Pressure

Chicago, Aug. 26 (U.P.)—Persons suffering from high blood pressure can get relief by going on a near-starvation diet, three University of Minnesota scientists said tonight.

The finding, based on a survey of the starved peoples of Europe during World War II and a study conducted in the university's laboratories, was reported by Josef Brozek, Carleton B. Chapman and Cancel Keys, in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The European studies, they said, showed a decrease in blood pressure was a characteristic symptom of semi-starvation.

During a severe food scarcity at Leningrad in 1941 and 1942, they said, Russian physicians found blood pressure was reduced to normal or nearly normal in a large number of patients who had chronic hypertension, which causes high blood pressure.

Symptoms such as dizziness and headaches had decreased or completely disappeared, they said, and heart disaase had decreased. Similar observations were made in Holland and in concentration camps in France and Germany.

The scientists warned, however, that the diet must be followed carefully and that refeeding must not be done rapidly.

German Editors To Study American Press Methods

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Fifteen western German editors have been invited to America to study "the function of a free press in a democratic society". They will stay six weeks, starting next month.

The trip will be financed by the Rockefeller Foundation at the request of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University.

Half their stay will be spent in discussion seminars at the American Press Institute at Columbia, conducted by leaders in the American jounalistic world. Each editor also will pass two weeks as an observer on an American newspaper or magazine.

Not for the Literal-Minded

You Need to Be a Bit Loopy to Love Saroyan

By Sonia Stein

IT IS SELDOM I am inspired to run up and hug the screen after seeing a movie. Fortunately, you might say, since it's rather an unwieldy gesture and hard to explain.

But when "The Time of Your Life" had faded from the Palace screen after the last reel, I just wanted to hug it—all those wonderful slices of life.

The William Saroyan play is full of weird and unexplainable people and incidents, yet it won a Pulitzer prize and a Critics Circle award. The William Cagney film production which stars his brother, James, and his sister, Jeanne, follows the play closely enough to have much the same magic.

For the very literal it will be a big bore. For the highly imaginative, it must be a delirious experience. For the mugwumps, like me, it gives quite a lift.

Why? I can't say. When somebody in the picture wants to describe a vicious, rotten police tipster he says he has "toenails on his fingers." I tried to reason this out (that's what throws me in the mugwump class) and couldn't. Yet it radiates a feeling that has meaning for me.

So much for the power of the language used. The philosophy it intends to convey goes something like this: "I want to lead a civilized life—the kind that doesn't hurt anybody else."

"I believe dreams sooner than statistics."

"Living is an art, not bookkeeping."

A Guy Named Joe

These sentiments flow from the main character, Joe. A man of some means, Joe sits in a waterfront saloon in San Francisco, drinking champagne and confusing the manager. At his side is a dumb but amiable lad who runs errands. "Get me a dozen packs of chewing gum, all flavors," Joe commands. Or, "Go out and buy me some toys." Or, "Give a dollar to an old man and to a kid, and bring me some jelly beans, all colors."

Joe is too lazy to walk—"I never got any place walking"—but his mind is wonderfully energetic. His face lights up with interest when a seedy old Westerner starts weaving fancy tales, and he follows every implausible curlique in the stories with enthusiasm.

Joe plays God with his money. When a pitiful little blond walks in and captures the heart of Joe's simple friend, Tom, he fixes things for them. Kitty is a girl whose occupation won't take much scrutiny. She brags that she was once in burlesque—a real show girl, with lines to say, too. This is just the dream she weaves; Kitty had never risen to such tawdy glories.

There is no coherent line of action running through the picture. The characters come together in a mosaic—fragments of humanity crammed into a little square, and forming a pattern whether they mean to or not.

There are moments when you will probably want to fetch Saroyan a resounding crack on the head for his coyness. He has a boy, begging work as a dishwasher, register amazement when he learns he can earn money for playing the piano—something he does "better than Heifetz," as the bartender says.

Unnecessarily Useless

It seems to me that a man of Joe's intelligence has no moral right to sit around not pulling his weight in the boat, but disagreeing with the motivation of Saroyan's characters doesn't interfere with appreciating their delineation. Saroyan paints them with quick, brilliant strokes, and this production gives him good pigment with which to work.

James Cagney seems to understand Joe pretty well, and, except for the fact that he is always a self-conscious actor, he does a fine job. Jeanne Cagney as Kitty, is a mistake in casting; she looks too intelligent to think the way Kitty does. She plays her role well, however.

James Barton, the old cowpoke cadging drinks in the Frisco saloon, does an outstanding job. His presence frequently dominates the picture.

William Bendix is the owner of the bar, who sometimes regrets his invitation to "Come in and be yourself." This is Bendix at his best.

Paul Draper has a small part as a dancer who thinks he is a comedian. No actor, Draper is a terrific dancer in this, as in anything.

Wayne Morris is a superlative choice for the good-hearted errand runner who had best live by somebodys else's wits, and there are a number of other cleanly drawn characterizations which give Saroyan his due.

Richard L. Coe is on vacation. His column, "One on the Aisle," will be resumed on his return.

Gene's Natives Are Very Dressy This Year

EVEN WITH my trusty Webster by my side, I'd soon run out of superlatives for the ninth edition of the "Going Native" revue which opened yesterday on the Capitol stage.

Expense seems no object in dressing the local talent for its annual opportunity. Manager Gene Ford, who manages the production, sees that the show gleams and shines and jumps through its hoops gracefully.

Space forbids mentioning all of the talented people who participate in this show, but there are several unusual items that can't be overlooked. (Detailed report by another observer is in "On the Town" on the nightclub page.)

Lamps and Bamboo

Unexpected but beautiful highpoints in the show are a pair of Philippine dances staged by Mrs. C. V. Batoon, and a fashion show with gowns designed by students at the Magda School of Dress Design.

Of the two Philippine dances in authentic costume, the Dance of the Oil Lamps is perhaps the prettier, but the Bamboo Dance, with bare feet flying and bamboo poles clicking, is the showier and more exciting.

The dancers in the show are all quite wonderful. Weldon Barr seems to have elastic where most people have tendons, and Barbara Browning, shapely acrobatic dancer, is a joy to watch.

Richard Walker, the only "speaking act" in the group, imitates the Indianapolis Speedway radio report in a manner which defies description.

I'm sorry to say that the management tried to put something over on the audience this week. It lists a pretty, sinuous red-headed dancer as one of Miss de Graffenreid Woolley's marionettes. Probably thought we'd be taken in, because the little lady is only about 18 inches high. But nobody can tell me that a marionette can ever be that supple. Nonsense!

An 1865 Skeleton

On the screen this week is "The Southern Yankee," with Red Skelton. Word reaches me that some people don't find Skelton funny even when his material is good. Their loss.

For those who do think he's a clever comedian, "The Southern Yankee" will be a matter of great pleasure.

A bellboy in St. Louis during the Civil War, Red is determined to become a secret service agent and find spies. By a series of inverted catastrophes so prominent in Skelton's professional life, he captures the famous Gray Spider, gets sent through the front lines posing as the Confederate spy and winds up with a girl and his whole skin, which is more than looked likely.

Not to fight the War Between the States over again, or anything, I don't find it particularly fit subject for comedy. Plans to ambush the Confederate soldiers by means of a falsely prepared military map, make even my Yankee blood run cold. But once over that hump, the prospect of bumblewits Skelton playing Mata Hari is all that could be wished for.

The humor is slapstick for the most part, but the scene in which Red carefully returns a flea to the hound which gave it to him is out of that category. And the scene in which Red says he's only 26 and is informed that is a ripe old age for a jackass, seems funny at the time.

Red is assisted in his mishaps by Brian Donlevy and Arlene Dahl. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer tossed the thing together with the help of Director Edward Sedgwick. Harry Tugend wrote the screenplay.

—With Shirley Povich

BERT BELL, the commissioner of the National Football League, has ruled that Harry Gilmer is eligible for preseason games with the Redskins despite his refusal to appear in the Chicago All-Star game. But there is a whistle on the play and Sports Editor Arch Ward of the Chicago Tribune is blowing it. Mr. Ward says that Mr. Bell is offside, out of line and the twelfth man on the field.

POVICH

He's going to have the law on Bell and any of the NFL club owners, including George Marshall of the Redskins, if Gilmer appears in any exhibition game, Ward is saying, and he is flourishing what he calls an iron-clad contract that upholds him.

"They can't pass the buck to Bell and say they will abide by whatever ruling he makes on Gilmer," Ward told this bureau yesterday. "Those club owners can't hide behind any action of Bell. Our contract is not only with the league but with the individual clubs. It's signed on their behalf, and they'll have to take the rap."

THE RAP AS WARD described it, is a suit for damages against the league and the individual clubs who participate in any exhibition game in which Gilmer appears. Chicago Tribune legal counsel has the suit already tidied for prosecution, he says. "It's a breach of contract no matter how they try to wriggle and the penalties are already set forth in it," Ward says.

Ward claims Gilmer was influenced to stay out of the Tribune's All-Star game after originally accepting the invitation. "His demand for insurance to the amount of his long-term contract with the Redskins to cover him in case of injury wasn't Gilmer's idea," says Ward.

Bell called Gilmer's request for full insurance coverage fair and reasonable and pointed out his duty as commissioner to protect the player. Despite the fact that no obligation by the Tribune to cover the invited players by insurance was written into the contract, Bell declares the fact that they have insured the players the last two seasons was an acknowledgment of such obligation.

WARD BRUSHES OFF that claim by Bell by pointing out that the game was played for 13 years with no demands for insurance under the present-type contract and that insurance coverage was a voluntary offering by the Tribune Charities. And he adds rather loudly, "Inasmuch as the individual club owners are party to the contract, they must live up to it regardless of the ridiculous rulings of Bell."

The club that Ward apparently holds over the NFL are (1) the specific penalties set forth for playing an ineligible player and (2) termination of the league's profitable contract with the All-Star game. It is agreed in the contract that any club who puts an individual player on the field can be assessed $25,000 to be held in escrow pending . . . determination of the full fine, and any club that plays against such a player is also subject to the same $25,000 levy.

Ward is prepared to permit the courts to say whether Gilmer is eligible or ineligible. He scorns Bell's ruling as unimportant. What the league is risking aside from the levies against the club is payment of damages for any violation of contract, plus possible termination of participation in the All-Star game.

THE NFL's participation in Ward's games have been profitable. Last week it collected 26 per cent of the $330,000 net gate after the deduction of taxes, or more than $60,000. Included in the expenses was the item for insurance of the players, deducted before the split. Bell makes much of that item as an "expense" of the type that Gilmer demanded. Ward says its arbitrary with the Tribune and no part of the contract.

The first test will come when the Cleveland Rams are scheduled to play the Redskins September 2 in Los Angeles. If Gilmer is on the field, Ward says both clubs will be liable to heavy fines. The Rams may risk it, but Ward is convinced that the three clubs, in his own territory—the Chicago Bears, Cardinals and Green Bay Packers will hesitate to alienate the friendly support of the powerful Chicago Tribune.

Right now, Gilmer is ailing and may not play in the September 2 game or even the later game in Denver. But the Redskins' exhibition in Birmingham was predicated on Gilmer's appearance in his own home town. The Packers are involved in that one. That could be the kick-off of the war between legal counsel.

Nats Rally, 'Squeeze' Out 8-7 Win Over Browns in 9th

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Browns' attempt to pull the old hidden-ball trick on the Nats last night backfired on them, costing them the ball game, 8-7, and the temporary loss of Jerry Priddy who was ejected after shoving Umpire Bill McKinley.

Climaxing and uphill fight, in which they dug out of a 7-1 deficit, the Nats scored four runs in the seventh inning to tie the game. They produced their winning run in the ninth on a perfect squeeze play immediately following the rhubarb which saw Priddy chased and tempers flare.

To set up the winning run and precipitate the disorderly scene in the last inning, Al Kozar singled off Hank Arft's glove and went to second on Gil Coan's sacrifice.

Priddy, who took the throw at first to retire Coan, kept the ball and Al Widmer, the fourth of five Brownie pitchers, stepped on the rubber as if he were set to pitch. Bill Summers, umpiring at third, called the balk, waving Kozar to third.

Immediately the Browns swarmed around him, claiming that they had called time. Summers consulted with McKinley, umpiring at the plate, who said time had not been called and that Widmar balked.

Then's when Priddy and McKinley had it hot and heavy. McKinley waived him out of the game, but Priddy shoved McKinley, twice, freeing him only when Summers intervened and escorted Priddy to the sidelines.

When peace was restored some 5 minutes later, Bill Kennedy, a southpaw, came in to pitch for the Browns.

He made only one delivery, Ed Stewart laying down a perfect bunt enabling Kozar to trot home with the winning run.

Mickey Haefner, who toiled the last two innings after relieving Dick Welteroth, the second Nat hurler, got credit for the victory, his fourth.

Sid Hudson started for the Nats and found the Browns and the broiling heat too much for him, retiring after five innings when the Browns led, 4-1.

Whitey Platt was the big gun in St. Louis' period of domination, slashing out a single, double and triple in the Browns' 13-hit attack.

Coan slammed a two-run triple in the Nat revolt in the seventh. Sherry Robertson punched out a double to drive in the third run and Karl Drews, who had relieved Ned Garver, wild pitched the fourth run over.

D. C. Golfer Helps Navy

Pebble Beach, Calif., Aug. 26 (AP).—Lieut. Jim Kinder of Washington, D. C., scored an 81 in second-round play of the first annual interservice golf tournament here today to rank among the low eight Navy players at the halfway mark.

Macks Finally Win One, 4-3

Philadelphia, Aug. 26 (AP).—Pete Suder's two-run double in the eighth inning gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 4-3 decision over the Detroit Tigers and snapped their five-game losing streak today.

Hal Newhouser, Detroit's ace southpaw, was charged with the defeat although Suder's hit came off relief pitcher Art Houtteman. Newhouser had filled the bases on hits by Elmer Valo and Buddy Rosar and a walk to Ferris Fain.

The Tigers had the possible tying and winning runs on base in the ninth but Bob Savage, who had taken over fo rstarting pitcher Joe Coleman, got Eddie Mayo on a pop fly to end the game. The victory was Coleman's twelfth of the season and his fifth over Detroit.

Lowly Cubs Jolt Leading Braves Twice

Chicago, Aug. 26 (AP).—The last-place Chicago Cubs whipped the Boston Braves, 5 to 1 and 5 to 2, here today in a wild double-header that twice was marked by demonstrations by the crowd of 27,316. It reduced Boston's first-place margin to three games over Brooklyn. The fans turned their wrath against Umpire Bill Stewart in the third inning of the second contest when he called Phil Cavarretta's drive a ground-rule double because it stuck momentarily in the ivy on the leftfield wall.

Fans Almost Riot

They tossed soft rubbish at Stewart and it took five minutes to quiet them down. A threat to forfeit the game was drowned out in the din of the crowd. The violent protest of the crowd seemed to have its emotional effect on the Cubs, for they turned loose a frenzied four-run rally, high-lighted by a triple by "Peanuts" Lowry with the bases loaded.

The four-run rally plus Andy Pafko's homer a little later was ample for Hank Borowy who scattered 10 hits for his fourth victory.

Lade Good in Opener

In the opener, Doyle Lade was just as effective in the pinches to snap a five-game Braves' winning streak.

The Cubs pounded out 14 hits in the curtain-raiser, routing Bill Voiselle in the sixth inning for his eleventh reverse. Vern Bickford was the loser in the nightcap.

The wild third round of the nightcap began after two were out when Emil Verban singled. Verban then stole second and Hal Jeffcoat walked. Cavarretta followed with a drive to left that hit the wall on the bounce. Jeff Heath pawed around for the ball and finally picked it off the ground. Cavarretta meanwhile circled the bases.

After the runners were called back amid the howling din of the fans, with only Verban allowed to score, an intentional pass was handed to Pafko to fill the bases. Lowrey then tripled off the wall in center.

Yanks Whip Chisox, 6 to 2

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—The New York Yankees adanced to within a half game of second place Cleveland and to within a game of front-running Boston in the American League today by beating the last-place Chicago White Sox, 6-2.

Trailing, 2-1, going into the last of the eighth inning, the Yankees exploded for five runs to pull the game out of danger. Billy Johnson's two-run triple highlighted the winning rally.

George McQuinn, veteran first baseman of the Yankees, was struck on the knee by a batted ball during batting practice before today's game.

McQuinn, benched since early in the month because of a dwindling batting average, was throwing to the hitters when the accident occurred. He hobled unassisted to the clubhouse with a painful bruise.

Bell Rules Gilmer Is Eligible for Exhibitions

Philadelphia, Aug. 26 (AP).—In a precedent-making decision, Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League today upheld the action of Harry Gilmer in staying out of the All-Star Chicago Cardinals game August 20, in Chicago.

The game was played under the sponsorship of Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and this organization had demanded that Gilmer, rookie passing star of the Washington Redskins, be barred under a contract rule from playing nonchampionship games with the Redskins this fall.

Bell rejected the Tribune request. He said his "first interest" is to protect the players and the public.

(Bell's decision left the conclusion that Gilmer is eligible to play in nonchampionship (exhibition) games on the Redskins' schedule this fall.

The commissioner, restating the case, said Gilmer had agreed to play for the All-Stars on condition he received $150 plus full insurance coverage of his Redskins' contract.

"Gilmer Demand Fair"

The Tribune "refused to insure him, as he requested," Bell declared, adding:

"Gilmer's demand for full protection against loss under his contract . . . was, in my opinion, both reasonable and fair."

At Chicago, Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago newspaper and vice president of Tribune Charities, said:

"His (Bell's) arguments are absolutely ridiculous and the whole matter is in the hands of the Tribune law department."

In a statement, Ward said all other All-Star players had been insured against injury to the amount of $8000. Ward said he had declined to insure Gilmer against injury for the full amount of his contract, reported to be $80,000.

"There is nothing in the contract between the National Football League and Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., which requires the insuring of any player and, during the 13 years preceding the 1947 game, no such insurance was carried," Ward said.

"This insurance was intended to protect Gilmer from a (possible) very large financial loss in the event of a severe injury," Bell's ruling said.

Must Protect Player

"It is obvious that an injury which is not fully compensated for may seriously affect the livelihood of a player and therefore it is vitally important that a player be fairly and adequately protected."

The contract between the NFL and Tribune Charities, Bell said, provides that a pleyer get $150 and expenses.

"The Tribune has given the word 'expenses' a broad liberal meaning and has interpreted, with our enthusiastic approval, the word 'expenses' to include insurance," the commissioner stated.

"It therefore insured, in 1947 and in 1948, in a limited amount, each college All-Star who was a member of the All-Star squad, but in the case of Gilmer it refused to insure him, as he requested."

The NFL-Tribune Charities contract runs through 1951. Bell said the league is satisfied with the pact but "it is my duty as commissioner to see that NFL football players are adequately protected in any reasonable demand they may make."

Bell insisted, however, that players granted full insurance coverage will be barred from preseason NFL games if they refuse to play in any All-Star game.

Washington plays its first exhibition September 2 against the Los Angeles Rams at Los Angeles.

Gilmer was not available for comment. He was recently injured in practice and underwent an operation for removal of blood clots from his leg.

BELL MAKES DECISION—Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League as he announced in Philadelphia yesterday a decision upholding the action of Harry Gilmer of the Washington Redskins in refusing to play in the Chicago Tribune Charities All-Star game

In Statement

Ward Calls Bell's Ruling 'Ridiculous'

Chicago, Aug. 26 (AP). — Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune and vice president of the Chicago Tribune Charities, which annually promotes the football game between the College All-Stars and the National League champions, today termed the ruling of Commissioner Bert Bell upholding the refusal of Harry Gilmer to play as "ridiculous."

Ward, in a statement revealed that Gilmer, former Aalabama star, had refused to accept an invitation to play in this year's game because Ward declined to insure Gilmer against injury for the full amount of his contract with the Washington Redskins, reported to be $80,000.

Ward said all other All-Star players had been insured against injury to the amount of $8000. Ward's statement:

"THE CONTRACT between the National Football League and Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., provides, without qualification that a college star who refuses an invitation to play in the All-Star game will not be permitted to play in any preseason game in which a team of the National Football League participates.

"An invitation was issued to Harry Gilmer, who answered from Alabama, 'I consider your invitation the greatest honor that has ever been bestowed on me.' Gilmer apparently did not feel, however, that he would make his own decision, for he said in his letter, 'you have been advised, no doubt, or will be, as to whether I can participate.'

"Gilmer's decision was not received by me until after he had talked to his employer, George Marshall, of the Washington Redskins, who had been widely quoted in the press earlier this year that no college player under contract to him would be permitted to play in the All-Star game.

"AFTER CONFERRING with Marshall, Gilmer said he would play in the All-Star game if he was insured against injury for the full amount of his contract with Washington (reported to be $80,000).

Marshall Scoffs at Ward, Will Use Gilmer if He's Well

Special Dispatch to The Post

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.—George Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, today scoffed at the statement by Chicago Tribune Sports Editor Arch Ward, originator of the Collegiate All-star game, concerning N. F. L. Commissioner Bert Bell's decision in the Harry Gilmer case.

"Mr. Ward does not run the National Football League yet," Marshall said, referring to Ward's organization of the rival All-America Conference, of which he is a guiding light. "We will abide by the decision of our commissioner."

Bell earlier in the day had upheld Gilmer's absence from the 1948 All-Star game as his demands for insurance covering his lifetime Redskin contract were denied.

Marshall further dictated this reply to Ward's statement:

"Mr. Ward, as the sports editor of the Chicago Tribune, should learn he is not helping his newspaper or any charity event by his failure to either tell or print the truth. Somebody should read his copy."

Marshall said Gilmer, former Alabama All-America, will play in the Redskin-Los Angeles Ram charity game in the coliseum here September 2, if he is physically sound, and in other pre-season exhibitions. Gilmer suffered a severe bruise on his leg in scrimmage recently and subsequently underwent a minor operation to remove a blood clot. He worked out with the squad today but favored the healing leg.

Welsh Whips Gil Bogley

Barney Welsh, top-seeded veteran, played cagey, consistent tennis yesterday to eliminate young Gil Bogley, 6—4, 6—3, in the quarterfinals of the Middle Atlantic tournament at Columbia Country Club.

Welsh was paired in the Saturday semifinal against Robin Hippenstiel, Air Force champ, who disposed of Don Leavens, 6—3, 6—4, in the other quarterfinals match yesterday.

The outstanding doubles match saw Jim Thackera team with Leavens to down Sam Hayes and Kahl Spriggs, 6—4, 6—3.

Yesterday's singles results—Welsh defeated Bogley, 6—4, 6—3; Hippenstiel defeated Leavens, 6—3, 6—4; Miller defeated Curtis, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2; Cowan defeated Threadgill, 6—0, 6—4.

Doubles results—Miller-Channing defeated Thompson-Nannes, 6—2, 6—0; Thackera-Leavens defeated Hayes-Spriggs, 6—4, 6—3.

Today's singles pairings: 5 p. m.—Thackera vs. Miller, Johnson vs. Lynch.

Today's doubles pairings: 6:15 p. m.—Cowan-Threadgill vs. Miller-Channing; Thackera-Leavens vs. winner of Curtis-Gifford, McNair-Parvin match which was called on account of darkness after a score of 6—1, 4—6, 5—3, favor Curtis-Gifford; Hippenstiel-Johnsen vs. Mertz-Frank.

Graham Easy Victor

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Billy Graham, a one-to-two favorite, looked every bit as good as the odds tonight as he pounded out a one-sided victory over Terry Young, his East Side rival in the 10-round feature bout at Madison Square Garden. Graham weighed 139½, and Young 138½.

Oran McKinney, W. Kentucky Star, Joins Bullets

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—Oran McKinney of last year's highly successful Western Kentucky quintet has signed to play with the Baltimore Bullets, the champions of the Basketball Association of America announced today.

McKinney is 6 feet, 5½ inches and weighs 215 pounds. He was a leading scorer on Western Kentucky which won 21 out of 24 last year and played in the National invitation tourney in Madison Square Garden.

McKinney and other Bullet rookies will report to Coach Buddy Jeannette for practice September 27.

Bobby Doerr Hits 3-Run Homer in 8th To Clinch It

Boston, Aug. 26 (AP).—Unassuming, workmanlike Bobby Doerr, whose fielding is approaching a record, proved once again today he is a dangerous man with a bat as his three-run homer guided Boston's Red Sox into first place in the American League with an 8-4 triumph over Cleveland's Indians.

The loss dropped Cleveland into second place by a half game.

Bobby walloped his circuit clout, his twenty-fourth of the season, over the wall and screen in left, in the eighth inning with two out. Johnny Pesky, who had bunted safely, and Ted Williams, who had singled to right, scored ahead of the Sox second sacker.

The game was deadlocked 3-3 at the time and Doerr's hit, his only one of the extremely hot afternoon, provided Boston's victory margin.

The victory went to left-hander Mel Parnell who withstood the heat—official Weather Bureau reading at 1:30 local time was 95, 4 degrees lower than at noon—better than his southpaw opponent, Gene Bearden.

Tebbetts Poles Triple

After Doerr hit his homer, on Bearden's first offering to him in the eighth, Stan Spence and Billy Goodman singled in quick succession and Bearden was yanked in favor of Russ Christopher.

The lanky right-hander relief pitcher gave up a triple to the slow moving Birdie Tebbetts for two more runs and the game was virtually in the record books.

The Indians came back with one run after two were out in their ninth, when Pesky booted Lou Boudreau's grounder and Ken Keltner hit his second double of the afternoon. However, Joe Gordon flied out to Ted Williams, ending the game.

The Sox were lucky at the start when they scored twice in the third inning although they made only one hit.

After the first batter had grounded out, Tebbetts walked and took third when Parnell's grounder went through Keltner for an error. Dom DiMaggio forced Parnell as Birdie scored and Pesky's line single scored Dom from second. The "Little Professor" had stolen second unmolested as Breadon wound up.

The third Sox run was fashioned on Vern Stephens' two-bagger off the left-center field fence and Stan Spence's single through First Baseman Eddie Robinson.

Jimmy Hegan tripled off the deep center field bleacher wall to score Doby with Cleveland's first run in the fourth. Doby reached first by forcing Joe Gordon, the first batter of the inning, who had singled.

A wild pitch by Parnell allowed the Indians' second run to cross the plate in the sixth. Doby doubled high off the left field wall with one out, went to third on an infield out and then scored when Parnell's pitch hit the ground near home plate and skidded to the backstop.

Doubles by Keltner and Bob Kennedy, batting for Robinson, gave the Tribesmen a third run in the eighth.

Horsemen Buck Change In Barn Rule

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—The receiving barn, which aroused a furor in Maryland two years ago when it was instituted, had the horse racing fraternity buzzing again today, but the shoe was on the other foot.

Talk of "fight" and "threat" greeted an announcement that the Maryland Racing Commission contemplates revising the receiving barn regulations.

Janney Proposes Change

Chairman Stuart S. Janey, jr., announced yesterday the commission would keep the special barn at tracks, but is considering abandoning pre-race saliva tests and putting responsibility for doped horses back on the trainers and owners.

The idea of a special barn for quartering horses prior to a race and giving them a pre-race saliva test was greeted with howls of protest when George P. Mahoney, then commission chairman, proposed it in 1946.

Janney said discovery of three doped horses at Maryland half mile tracks this summer in post-race tests proved someone has figured out a way to beat the saliva samples. He said the commission decided to consider using only post-race urinal tests and making owners and trainers subject to punishment.

Horsemen Oppose Plan

Two officials of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, which represents 95 per cent of the racing people, immediately opposed Janney's plan.

Charles M. Feltner, director of the Maryland division, said "I am sure the HBPA will oppose it. The receiving barn is all right as long as the commission takes the responsibility, but without that, it is to no avail."

Albert Dunn, HBPA vice president, agreed.

"I'm not for or against the receiving barn as it has been conducted in Maryland in recent years," said the trainer for the Bobanet stable. "But if I am going to be responsible for my horses I would rather have them in my own barn where I can watch them and take care of them myself."

Doctors Back Test

Other trainers who talked of a "fight" and mentioned refusal to race in Maryland if the changes are made included J. Bowes Bond, Don Yates, P. Dalee Natts, Jimmy Stewart, Richard Dixon, Anthony Mazzeo, Bernie Bond, Watson Elliott, Merritt Buxton and E. W. King.

Opinion has differed on accuracy of the pre-race saliva test which is made shortly after the horses enter the receiving barn two hours prior to post time. The salvia is injected in a mouse which is supposed to react violently if dope is present.

Dr. J. C. Munch of Temple University upheld accuracy of the mouse test. He said in such tests on 28,000 horses he did not find "a single case" in which they failed to reveal the presence of dope when it was shown by other analysis, either chemical or biological.

Dr. J. C. Krantz of the University of Maryland maintained both types of tests "are essential" to prevent doping.

6-Year-Old Pays Backers $3.40 Mutuel

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 26—Jockey Freddie Kratz, a reformed steeplechase rider, piloted William Finn's Colonel Govans to an easy victory in the Solomons Island Purse, featuring the Thursday program here. E. N. Kratz (no relation) watched his Flying Wise take the place money ahead of R. W. Moore's Tap Lightly in a field of eight.

Colonel Govans, the favorite from the start of the betting, returned a mere $3.40 mutuel. The 6-year-old son of War Hero was clocked in 1.07 4/5 for the five and a half furlongs over a fast track and under a broiling sun that had the temperature flirting with the 100 mark all afternoon.

Roving Moose Early Leader

Roving Moose set the early pace but ran out as usual. Kratz sent Colonel Govans through on the side rail and the gelding took command. From that point to the wire only his margin of victory was in doubt. Flying Wise and Tap Lightly closed gamely but too late to be effective.

Kratz also won the fifth race with J. Borden's Kings Lamp, another favorite. This 5-year-old mare galloped at a $4.20 win pay off. W. E. Baekey's Black Top was second and William Irvine, jr's. Patuxent Belle was third in the test of a mile and a sixteenth. The winner was clocked in 1.55 3/5.

Favorites Score

Favorites were as hot as the weather during most of the program. The choices started well, a pair of them producing a $12.20 daily double return.

Jockey William Billington brought Dr. H. G. Tonkin's Dr. Zimmer from last position to win the first at $4.20 and Sammy Palumbo put up a good ride to score with G. S. Fockler's Sand Rose at the same mutuel in the second.

Musial's Homer Decides It

Cards Beat Giants, 7-5, 7-2; Replace Bums in 2d Place

St. Louis, Aug. 26 (AP).—Stan Musial's thirty-second home run with Erv Dusak on base broke up a 5-5 ninth-inning tie and enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to win the night half of a day-night double-header from the New York Giants, 7 to 5. The Cards also won the afternoon affair, 7 to 2, to snap a six-game Giant winning streak.

While Musial's four-master settled the night contest, it was solid clouting by Enos Slaughter that kept the Redbirds in the running up to that point. Slaughter batted in or scored four runs. His two-run homer in the third tied the score after the Giants, aided b Slaughter's own error in the outfield, had taken a three-run lead.

The double-barreled victory enabled the Cards to take over second place in the National eLague race, only 2½ games back of the Boston Braves who dropped two decisions to the Chicago Cubs today just after taking a pair from the Cards at St. Louis.

Dodgers Win; Must Refinish Pirate Game

Cincinnati, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers humbled Cincinnati for the fourteenth time in 17 meetings today as Lefty Joe Hatten pitched the Dodgers to a 6-1 triumph over the Reds.

Meanwhile President Ford C. Frick of the National League upheld the protest of the Pittsburgh Club involving its game yesterday with Brooklyn at Pittsburgh, and ordered the game replayed from the point at which the Pirates had two men on base and two outs in the last of the ninth.

The replay will be held Tuesday, September 21, at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, with the same players on the field and the situation otherwise identical.

In the last of the ninth inning, with Brooklyn leading 11 to 9 and Carl Erskine pitching for the Dodgers, Erskine ran the count to three balls and one strike on pinch-hitter Eddie Brockman.

At this point Manager Burt Shotten sent in Hank Behrman to pitch, and Brockman grounded into a force play to end the game. Erskine had relieved Hugh Casey and Brockman was the only man he faced.

The protest was based on a violation of the rule that a pitcher coming into the mound shall continue to pitch until the player at bat has either been put out or has reached first base, or the side has been retired.

Bunker Hill Beaten in Legion Finals

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 26 (AP).—Westport Post 33 of Baltimore scored six runs in the bottom of the ninth inning this afternoon to beat Bunker Hill post 31 of Washington, 10-9, and take the American Legion regional junior baseball title.

It was the third victory of the day for the Baltimore team and the second over Washington.

The Westport Post club defeated Durney Post 27 of Wilmington, Del., this morning in the tenth inning of a game continued from last night after darkness halted play at the end of nine innings with the score tied at 7-7.

Early this afternoon Baltimore handed Bunker Hill Post its first defeat of the tournament, 5-3, and necessitated the second game for the championship.

Baltimore was trailing, 9-4, when it came to bat in the last of the ninth by virtue of an eight-run uprising by Washington in the fourth.

Pirates Down Phils, 4-1, 11-4

Pittsburgh, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates, hot as the 96-degree weather, bounced back into the first division today as they swept a duoble-header from the slumping Philadelphia Phils, 11 to 4 and 4 to 1. The Quaker losing streak was stretched to nine.

Ralph Kiner hit his thirty-fifth round-tripper of the season in the eighth inning to give the Pirates their final run.

The title will be decided Saturday when the two teams meet at 2 p. m. on the South Ellipse.

School Six Years Old

Deming's Football Classes Whip Players Into Shape

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Kids out Arlington way love summer school, that's why their Washington-Lee High team plays winning football.

Every year, around the second week in August, Harry Deming, W-L coach, clangs his school bell, and youngsters of all ages, and from all corners of the county scamper to the school stadium for football class.

Deming and the Arlington Recreation Department started the school six years ago when the former George Washington University tackle took over head coaching job at W.-L.

It enabled him to spot the junior high stars who might some day be his players, and in the meantime to teach the area kids his style of play.

It must be paying off for during his six-year tenure, Deming's teams have a better than .700 average, and are improving every year.

Deming is enthusiastic about the school. Every day, regardless of the weather, between 70 and 120 boys turn out for class. For example, despite yesterday's near 100 degrees temperature, about 85 were on hand.

Deming, of course, takes an active part in coaching the youngsters. But in order to give each pupil individual attention, Deming brings in players and coaches who know their football.

For example, helping him coach the young linemen is Ray Hanken, former New York Giants end. Coaching the backs are Billy Earl, Navy's promising halfback, and Ken Baxter, W-L's backfield coach.

Besides helping provide Deming with future polished material, the school is helpful to him in a more immediate way.

W-L usually plays a 9- or 10-game schedule, opening around September 10. Virginia High School League forbids practice before September 1, leaving W-L with not too much time to get in shape.

However, the more conscientious varsity boys turn out for the summer classes, and start to round into shape there.

Many of the area college stars take advantage of Deming's football accommodations, too. Navy's Earl, George Washington's Fullback Bill Spangler and Tackle Clarence Drayer, and Shepherd W. Va.'s, Backs Kelly Ford and Shorty Woolschlager have been regular visitors.

Redskins Guests At Luncheon

Les Arries, president of the Touchdown Club, and George P. Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins, will be main speakers at a homecoming luncheon for the football pros in the Presidential Room of the Hotel Statler on Monday, September 13, at 12:30 p. m.

Gen. George B. Cates, Commandent of the United States Marine Corps, will deliver the welcoming address. The Redskins' players will be introduced.

Tickets for the Redskins' luncheon are available now to Touchdown Club members and their guests at $3 each at the club's headquarters, 1414 I st. nw.

Sponsor Says 'Ridiculous'

the 1947 game, no such insurance ever was carried.

"Last year, Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., having the interests of the players at heart, obtained insurance, up to a maximum of $8000, protecting each against loss of salary for the season following the All-Star game.

"Although Johnny Lujack, Bobby Layne, Chalmers Elliott, Bob Chappuis and the other famous All-Stars of 1948 were willing to play under this protection, Harry Gilmer, at the urging of George Marshall, and apparently with the consent of Bert Bell, insisted on insurance covering the length of his long-time contract. Gilmer's stand was that such complete coverage was part of his expenses for participating in the game.

"IN 15 YEARS of All-Star games, the kinds of guaranteed expenses for the players have been definitely fixed, but Commissioner Bell has ignored all this and held that Gilmer was justified in demanding the reported $80,000 insurance as 'expenses' and is eligible to play in the Washington Redskins exhibition games.

"Presumably, if Gilmer had demanded a new car to drive to the All-Star training camp, Bell would have declared just as solemnly that this was part of his legitimate expenses. Perhaps the fact that Bell was backed by Marshall for the commissionership had something to do with this decision.

"Inasmuch as the individual club owners are parties to the All-Star contract, notice has been served on them that Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will expect them to live up to the terms of the contract, regardless of this ridiculous ruling by Mr. Bell."

Firemen Top Cameo, 6 to 5

Cameo Furniture Co., pretournament favorite to win the city sandlot championship, was first to be eliminated yesterday as District Fire Department applied the crusher, 6-5, on the Ellipse.

Cameo dropped its first two tournament games. The Firemen earned their first victory in two starts. The double elimination continues today with Jet Motor Sales playing Merchandising Plumbers at 4:30 p. m. on the South Ellipse. Jet is unbeaten in two games. The Plumbers have split two games.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, AUGUST 27, 1948

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

DELICIOUS Iowa ham, baked in a blanket, is used by Mrs. Hickenlooper in whipping up a sandwich for one of the many out-of-town guests here this week for the marriage of her daughter, Jane, on Saturday.

The Senator's wife makes the sandwich Iowa style, with rye bread, lettuce, and mustard sauce. Her recipe for the latter follows:

MUSTARD SAUCE

1 tablespoon fat or salad oil
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons prepared mustard

Melt fat in a saucepan over low heat. Stir in flour, salt, and pepper. Then add the milk gradually, while stirring. Continue stirring over low heat until sauce thickens and is smooth. Remove from heat, and add mayonnaise and mustard slowly while stirring. Serve with ham or poached, broiled, baked or sauteed fish. This recipe makes 1½ cups.

Iowa's Favorite Dishes

Tall Corn State Grows Good American Cookery

This is the twelfth in a series of articles on regional cookery in the United States, featuring favorite menus and recipes of congressional wives.

By Lucia Brown

HAM from a prize Iowa porker and corn fresh from the field star on the favorite menu of Mrs. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, wife of the junior Senator from the Hawkeye State.

All Virginia statements to the contrary, the finest hams in the world come from Iowa, says pretty, blue-eyed Mrs. Hickenlooper.

"Our hams are thick, meaty ones from corn-fed hogs," she explains. "They're sugar-cured and hickory-smoked, but not enough to make them dry and hard."

Hogs and corn aren't the only things Iowa has to be proud of in the food line. For years, Mrs. Hickenlooper's home State has been first in the Union in the value of its products derived from the soil.

Wheat, oats and many other grain crops flourish in its rich, black loam, which is unsurpassed in fertility. In recent years, many acres of soybeans have been grown. Great herds of cattle and flocks of sheep also fatten on its lush fields and fine grains.

Food processing plants are important in Iowa, too, Mrs. Hickenlooper says. A special small Swiss cheese has been developed by the dairy department of the agricultural college at Ames. These and other cheeses are made in the State, and many huge cereal and meat packing plants are located there.

"A LARGE part of Iowa is gently rolling farm land, but we do have our rugged, wooded sections, too," says the Senator's wife, in describing her State. "Some of them are along the Mississippi River, not far from Lansing, where I was reared.

"There are many people of German ancestry around Lansing," she continued, "and they cook some dishes in the German tradition. Then, in Cedar Rapids, where I lived after my marriage, there is a large Czech population. They make such delicious things as Kolaches, yeast rolls with fruit in the center, and Hoska, a braided bread.

"In general, though, Iowans just like good, substantial food and plenty of it," she added. "Their cookery is a cross-section of America's, featuring the abundant meats, vegetables, cereals and fruits grown in the State."

Most Iowans like to have a garden and the Hickenloopers grew one, even when they were living in the Governor's mansion. It was a victory garden, cultivated during Governor Hickenlooper's wartime term of office from 1942 to 1944. He was elected to the Senate in the latter year, and now the family lives at 5511 Cedar Parkway in Chevy Chase. They have two children, David, 15, and Jane, who is to be married here Saturday to Charles Howard McCreary, jr.

Mrs. Hickenlooper's favorite menu, and the recipes to go with it, follows:

Baked Ham, with Mustard Sauce.
Corn on the Cob
Escalloped Potatoes
Rolls and Butter
Coleslaw, with Sour Cream Dressing
Roquefort Cheese and Crackers
Custard Souffle. Coffee.

BAKED HAM IN BLANKET

Select a 12-to-15-pound ham. Have the butcher cut off the small end. Trim off the rind, and greater part of the fat. Place in open roasting pan with fat side up, and cover with the following blanket of dough:

4 cups flour (pastry or bread).
1 cup brown sugar.
2 tablespoons ground cloves.
2 tablespoons cinnamon.
2 tablespoons mustard.
1 teaspoon black pepper.

Enough water or cider to make dough.

Mix dough well and roll into sheet large enough to cover ham on top, ends, and sides. Bake 15 to 18 minutes per pound at 325 degrees Fahrenheit.

When done, remove blanket from ham and score top in diamonds with butcher knife. Stick a whole clove in each diamond, and sprinkle brown sugar over the top. If desired, fasten pineapple slices over top of ham with toothpicks. Brown in the oven. During the browning process, Mrs. Hickenlooper sometimes bastes the ham with juice from home pickled peaches.

COLE SLAW WITH SOUR CREAM DRESSING

1½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Speck pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
¾ cup thick sour cream
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons minced onion

Wash cabbage thoroughly, then shred with sharp knife. Chill. Combine all remaining ingredients; add to cabbage and toss until well mixed. This recipe serves four persons.

CUSTARD SOUFFLE

3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup flour
¼ cup sugar
1 cup scalded milk
4 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt

Melt butter, add flour, and gradually hot milk. Bring to boiling point and pour over egg yolks. Beat until thick and lemon colored. Mix with sugar and salt. Let cool. Fold in beaten whites. Place in casserole, in dish of hot water, and bake 30 to 40 minutes at 350° Fahrenheit.

Serve immediately with sauce made by mixing and beating the following ingredients together over hot water: ½ cup butter, 1 cup powdered sugar, 1 egg (well-beaten), and 2 teaspoons vanilla.

This souffle recipe is practically foolproof, Mrs. Hickenlooper says, and will not fall even as it cools.

MRS. HICKENLOOPER'S method of cooking corn differs a bit from the usual kettle-of-boiling-water method. She cooks it in a heavy closed pan or pot, with only about ½ cup of water in the bottom. When the water is boiling, she puts in the corn, covers the pot and steams it for about 7 or 8 minutes. The quicker you get the corn in the pan after it comes from the patch, the sweeter it will be, she emphasizes.

Smart Young Fashions in Make-Your-Own Field

YOUNG America has discovered it is smart to know how to sew. The Nation-wide revival of interest in fashion which has occurred in the past couple of years is reflected in the vast numbers of persons now making their own clothes, either at home or at public sewing centers. The school and college crowds are among the most active participants in this "back-to-the-sewing-machine" movement, which has an economic as well as an occupational value. They have found that by doing their own sewing they can drastically reduce their wardrobe costs, and have fun at the same time.

SIMPLICITY PRINTED PATTERNS, available at all leading department stores, were used in the two youthful ensembles pictured above. At left is a flirt-of-a-skirt and blouse outfit, made of a calico print in bright washable cotton. The over-skirt is styled for flannel or spun rayon in a color to harmonize pleasantly with the print. Pattern numbers are 2483, blouse; 2421 petticoat, and 2466, overskirt. Sizes are 12 to 20.

EVERY WARDROBE NEEDS a good, casual coat and at right is one designed with straight, easy lines to suit a petite size 12, or a hard to fit size 44. It's pattern number is 2613 and it may be finished with slash or patch pockets. You can also make the jaunty little visor hat, pattern number for which is 2597.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Self Reliant Wife Dreads Idea of Living With Husband in the Event He Is Granted Experimental Release From Mental Hospital

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I married Paul four years ago, after a courtship racked by his fits of unfounded jealousy. He was a musician then, who had been exempted from Army service due to emotional instability, and I knew he had been in a state hospital twice, but felt confident that we could have a happy future regardless, as I thought his folks were responsible for his morose slant on life.

He is the youngest of four children and the most doted on, although his mother has always made a doormat of herself for all of them, and still does for her two unmarried daughters, one of whom hasn't worked for two years because of emotional disturbance. His brother, the eldest, is happily married and lives cross-country, visiting home rarely.

Now Paul and I have two small daughters, and my great objective is to give them a normal rearing in a tranquil home, but three months ago Paul went unquestionably insane. This climaxed weeks of strain, wonderment and anxiety for me, before I called his mother and a psychiatrist, who immediately advised institutional care. Paul is a paranoid schizophrenic with a persecution complex and has been in the state hospital since.

Man's Mother Fumes at Wife

FOR THE PRESENT we are financially secure, as we had money saved to buy a home and Paul receives health insurance payments from the company; but the critical problem, from my viewpoint, is Paul's family, or rather, their attitude. I am self reliant and fairly well adjusted to the new responsibilities, but his folks were here recently for three days, and in that time managed to make me miserable against my will and better judgment.

They visited Paul while I was at work and later spoke about him defensively. They said he looked well, talks only of me and the children, is anxious to come home to take care of us, doesn't giggle as before, etc.; and several times "Ma" said I shouldn't desert him now,—I think because I said I couldn't consider resuming our marriage while he is insane.

I have done and will do everything possible to help Paul, but I am terrified at the idea of being with him again. Why can't his mother realize this without my telling her? In the event (remote, I'm told) that he should be released, on trial, as it were, should I try again to make this marriage a success? Right now I am floundering, and I beg your help.

E. C.

Mother Isn't Able to Lead

DEAR E. C.: It were an instance of the blind trying to lead the blind, when Paul's mother presumes to tell you how to do right by him.

She has no remedial insight into the anatomy of emotional difficulties, no illuminating understanding of life to give, hence merely projects her own muddled fears, carrying doleful solicitude to distracting excess, when she tries to help, thus sabotaging the mental health of whomsoever she dominates.

The problem of sharing one's life or one's home with a schizophrenic personality calls for specialist instruction, obviously, and on your behalf I have discussed your anxiety with a specialist who has done much extraordinarily successful work with schizophrenic patients.

Assuming that Paul's illness has been correctly diagnosed, that he is suffering schizophrenic confusion of mind and nursing the conviction that he is cruelly misused and misjudged by a stupid society, without a kindred soul to see his viewpoint, then his condition is neither hopeless nor in any sense dangerous, says the specialist. And it is not to be confused with real paranoia, a chronic serious progressive malady characterized by raging violence in later stages.

Man's Condition Isn't Dangerous

Miss Kremer, R. E. McCally Are Married

Miss Constance Scott Kremer and Robert English McCally were married at 8 o'clock last evening at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Franklin B. Gillespie officiating. The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Suel Kremer of Chevy Chase, was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert English McCally of this city.

For her wedding Mrs. McCally wore ivory satin made on old fashioned lines with a deep bertha of Chantilly lace and a hooped skirt. Her veil of illusion was caught to a tiara of Chantilly lace and seed pearls. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Bert Steuer was matron of honor and Miss F. E. Polizos was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Barbara Newlin, Ann McConnell, Edith Lillycrop and Rose Vasco.

Charles T. McCally was best man for his brother and the ushers were David Kindleberger, Dean McKinnon, Burrell Marsh, Walter Siciak and Wilbur Haase.

A reception was held at the home of the bride after which the couple was to fly to Bermuda for a honeymoon stay. They will reside in Washington.

The bride attended Marjorie Webster School for Girls and the bridegroom attended George Washington University and American University.

Miss Beatrice Moore Married To Torsten Forsberg of Sweden

Miss Beatrice Violet Moore of Washington became the bride of Torsten Forsberg of Gottenberg, Sweden, and New York City yesterday at the Augustana Swedish Lutheran Church of this city. The Rev. Carl Nelson officiated at the ceremony at 4:30 in the afternoon.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Edward Moore and the late Mr. Moore. Her husband is the son of Prof. and Mrs. Leonard Forsberg of Malmo, Sweden. Professor Forsberg, now retired, was president for 20 years of Alnarp, the University of Agriculture of southern Sweden.

George M. McKee gave the bride in marriage. She wore a rose-toned silk shantung street-length dress fashioned with a V neckline, modified puffed sleeves and a full skirt. Her picture hat was of bronze French straw with a soft yellow veil tied under the chin. Her accessories were of bronze and her corsage was white orchids. The couple had no attendants.

A small reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Norment, jr., at their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel after the wedding. Present were a few close friends of the bride and bridegroom and members of the Swedish Embassy staff and their wives.

The couple left afterwards for a motor trip through Canada and Nova Scotia and on their return will reside in New York until November when they will take a house in Greenwich, Conn.

The former Miss Moore attended school in Europe and was graduated from La Casita in Luzanne, Switzerland. She made her debut in Stockholm at the Amaranten Ball. A talented pianist, she has studied at conservatories in Berlin and Rome and has given recitals in this country and abroad. Her mother is Swedish and she has spent much of her life in Sweden.

Mr. Forsberg was graduated from the Royal Swedish Military Academy in Karlberg and is a captain in the Swedish army reserves.

In August Bridal Procession

Miss Mary Geraldine Namminga, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry J. Namminga of Washington, and Marion Crosby Ford, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Ford of Fairhaven, Md., were married August 21 at St. Ann's Church. The Rev. Vincent Cieri officiated.

Mr. Namminga gave his daughter in marriage. She wore white marquisette fashioned on princess lines with a bertha edge in pleated marquisette. Her veil of illusion and lace was held by a cap of seed pearls. She carried a white prayer-book topped with white orchids.

Mrs. Jo Anne New was matron of honor, Miss Sue Maegher was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Brewer, Miss Jean Geissenhimer, Mrs. Wendel Kiefer and Mrs. A. Hutchinson. Little Peggy Ann Jones was flower girl and her brother, Francis, was ring bearer. Henry Ford acted as best man for his brother and ushering were Leonard Ford, Oregon Crosby, Eugene Hardesty and Thomas Brewer.

Following a reception at 2400 16th st., the couple left for a wedding trip to Canada. On their return they will reside in Maryland.

Levy—Robins

Miss Audrey Ernestine Robins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Robins of this city, became the bride of Irvin Jack Levy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Levy, also of Washington, on August 22. The wedding took place at the Jewish War Veterans' Home with Rabbi Metz officiating. A reception followed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore white crepe with a matching hat and veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white roses.

Mrs. Marion Wagner was matron of honor for her sister and Miss Doris K. Schwartz was maid of honor. Michael Tempchin was best man and Max Ratner was usher.

The couple will reside in Washington. The bridegroom attended George Washington University.

Not An Ounce, Wrinkle Older!

Astaire-Rogers Team Taps Together Again to Delight Of Nostalgic Movie Fans

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 26.—Among the older generation of movie-goers, those over 20 that is, the most nostalgically exciting happening is the re-pairing after nine long years of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. They're together again in "The Barclays of Broadway." The play kaleidoscopes around Broadway's No. 1 musical comedy team, a continually squabbling married couple who bust up temporarily, of course, when Mrs. B. takes a stab at serious drama. On the verge of flopping she's saved by knowing friend husband who, imitating the enamored dramatist's voice over the telephone, coaches Ginger in her new role. They're finally brought together again at a benefit show and presumably continue to tap through life snapping and snarling affectionately. The last Astaire-Rogers picture was "The Story of Irene and Vernon Castle."

After nine pictures together they separated only because no one in moviedom could figure a new angle for them. Astaire relaxed into what he termed "mental retirement" and La Rogers zoomed to new heights and an Oscar via "Kitty Foyle."

Two years ago the flood of fan mail demanding their joint return became so insistent they huddled with Irving Berlin and Dore Schary, but nothing came of it. When "Easter Parade" went into rehearsal the dancing star, Gene Kelly, broke his ankle and Astaire stepped into his role. The present picture was planned originally for Fred and Judy Garland, but Miss Garland fell ill and Ginger was paged.

Astaire has created a number of complex new numeros, one a boogie-woogie, a fast tap designed to thrill the hepcats, and there are lots of, to quote Miss Rogers, "lush" dances.

Miss Rogers to Dazzle

GINGER'S going to knock feminine fans cold with 28 "changes," all designed by Irene, who has assembled most of her overwhelming wardrobes, including those bizarre jobs worn in "Weekend at the Waldorf." To mention a few, there's a new look sharkskin tennis dress, some trickily tailored suits and one absolutely killerdiller evening gown of gun metal gray chiffon embroidered in geometrical design with thousands of bugle beads. According to Irene, bugle beads, back after wartime scarcity, are going to be a necessity for anyone equipped with anything like a complete wardrobe!

Sidney Guilaroff, the hairdo artist, has whipped up some new effects for the star. Though her hair has been chopped 6 inches it is still almost shoulder length because, in Guilaroff's opinion, short cropped heads don't go with new look skirts.

One of the scenes which was being shot when we were out at MGM was Astaire and Rogers strutting their stuff in glamorized rehearsal clothes—slacks and sweatshirt for Fred, ditto and neat blouse for Ginger. Both, incredible to say, look not a wrinkle, not an ounce older, their step skippy as a happy heart beat.

Feathered and Furred Stars

SECONDARY flutter at MGM is preparation for "The Secret Garden" which will go into production in a couple of months. Margaret O'Brien and Dean Stockwell, most recently in "The Boy With Green Hair," are the leading lights in the charming story of a wasted garden which the kids work on and make bloom. The picture involves all sorts of animals—a robin, squirrel, baby fox, raven and, originally, a lamb.

To corral a few cinematically unknown animals talent scouts descended on Los Angeles annual show of children's pets given last Saturday in the main square. They picked up Sammy, a coon who drinks out of a nursing bottle, and three love birds, one green, one yellow, one blue, who sit on their young owner's shoulder and perform an amazing variety of tricks.

Since the picture is to be filmed black and white then burst into Technicolor when the garden blossoms, the birds should be effective. Anyway the delighted owners are being paid a real salary while their pets undergo movie tests.

The professional animals are being supplied by Curly Twyford who owns some thousand trained pets including the notorious Jimmy, the raven, who smokes cigarettes, writes his name on a typewriter, unties shoe laces and as a veteran of 15 years' acting has amassed a sizable bank account.

The robin, who is to play in the picture, has been hanging around studios the past four years snatching at the worm of bit parts. If he puts on a good show in "The Secret Garden" it will "make him," as they say out here. Since in Hollywood, eagles, macaws, rabbits and even an occasional skunk is so highly paid, we are considering returning to corral the cat which flips off our trash barrel top with such consummate skill, bring him or her back and permanently relax in cool Hollywood breezes.

Reception Honors Jas. P. Parks Following Wedding Yesterday

WHITE FLOWERS decorated tables in the garden and there were pink and orange gladioli throughout the house for the wedding reception yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. James Preston Parks. The couple were married earlier in the day at a quiet ceremony at which the Rev. W. B. Waters officiated.

Mrs. Parks is the former Mrs. Grace Waggaman Pulver, daughter of Mrs. Alexander B. Legare, at whose Georgetown house the reception was held. The bride wore a green satin suit with matching hat and carried a muff of gardenias. Her mother wore black taffeta and diamond necklace.

Miss D. Virginia Parks, aunt of the bridegroom, wore a tan and black print dress and black hat. Only members of the family and a few intimate friends attended the reception. A wedding supper was served in the garden, and Sydney's orchestra played.

After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Parks left for New York City. They will remain there a few days and then go to Falmouth, Mass. On their return, the couple will reside in Washington.

Daughter to Claxtons

Mr. and Mrs. Philander P. Claxton, jr., announce the birth of a daughter, Elizabeth Argyle Gettys Claxton, on July 29 at Georgetown University Hospital. Mrs. Claxton is the former Miss Mary Ann Elizabeth Watkins, daughter of Mrs. Morgan Watkins and the late Colonel Watkins of Ingleside Farm, Athens, Tenn. Mr. Claxton is assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State, Charles Saltzman.

U. S. Officers to Visit Guatemala

A group of United States military officers have been invited by the Ambassador of Guatemala, Ismael Gonzalez-Arevalo, to visit in Guatemala. The Ambassador and the Guatemalan Military Attache, Col. Salvador Bercian, will accompany the officers to Guatemala, leaving today by plane from the National Airport.

Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Military Aide to the President, and Col. Robert B. Landry, Air Aide to the President, are among those who will make the trip. Others are Col. Louis Huber Renfrow, Col. Cornelius J. Mara and Lieut. Col. Jacob L. Brause. The party will return to Washington in a week.

Mrs. McAdoo Honored at Party Before Sailing for Netherlands

MRS. ELEANOR WILSON McADOO will leave Saturday for the Netherlands, where she will represent President Truman at Queen Wilhelmina's Golden Jubilee celebration beginning August 30 and the investiture of Princess Juliana as Queen on September 6. Yesterday Mrs. McAdoo was honored at a small cocktail party given by Mrs. India Edwards at the Mayflower Hotel. The hostess is executive director of the Women's Division of the Democratic National Committee.

Among the guests were Mme. Van Kleffens, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador; Mrs. Jesse M. Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General; Mrs. Julius A. Krug, wife of the Secretary of the Interior; Mrs. Kenneth Royall, wife of the Secretary of the Army; Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Paul Porter, Mrs. Julian Fant and Mrs. John Murray Begg. Both Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. McAdoo were gowned in black as they received the guests.

Daughter of the late Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. McAdoo will serve with rank of ambassador on her mission to represent the President whose duties at home prevent him from accepting his invitation personally. She will be accompanied at the ceremonies by John F. Watson and United States Ambassador to the Netherlands, Herman B. Baruch.

three crack-ups and shows no profit from previous hospitalization simply means to the specialist that he's never had adequate attention from a competent therapist during these emotional crises, at which time he could be most readily "reached" and profoundly helped, if skilled help were available on a liberal regular-hour basis,—and it usually isn't in understaffed prison-type state hospitals.

The schizophrenic personality, when in balance, is the most sensitive, discerning and creative of all; and it has been suggested that the schizophrenic's crisis refers to a dynamic struggle to grow beyond the state of rational awareness previously consolidated, an experience which may plunge him into great confusion and a sense of isolation if he engages it without basic self assurance or an educated acceptance of "what goes on."

Your panic-feelings of this time call for remedial education, too; and the logical adviser is a good psychiatrist in a position to study the picture close up. Six to a dozen sessions ought to be sufficient—and a sound investment, regardless of cost. M. H.

Where to Find Rose Jars

I came across a wonderful recipe for an "Old-Fashioned Rose Spice Jar," and I would like to know where I can buy the jars to make it. H. R. Q.

Almost any jar with a cover can be used as a rose jar. The old-fashioned pot pourri jars can often be found in antique shops. One which has several of these jars of different types can be reached by telephoning Alexandria 0576.

Just recently I read in your column where E. A. had asked about the Forbes Silver Co. In my scrapbook of antiques is the following information that may be of interest to her:

"Forbes Silver Co. used the marking of a double circle and an eagle in the center and the name 'Forbes Silver Co.' According to the references in 'A Century of Silver, 1847-1947,' by Earl Chapin May, the Forbes Silver Co. of Meriden, Conn., was established in 1894 and was taken over by the International Silver Co. in 1898."

Then, too, there was a marking of "I. W. Forbes" in a rectangle. This mark was used by John W. Forbes, who was making silver at 415 Pearl st., New York City, in 1802. Forbes became a weigher and measurer for the Government in 1835 and was making silver up to that time and perhaps later.

Another silvermaker used the clear mark of the name "W. G. Forbes" in script in a rectangle. William G. Forbes was first listed as a silversmith in the New York City directory in 1786 at 88 Broadway, and his name continued to be listed until 1796. G. C. W.

In answer to the request from L. L., if she will phone me at OLiver 6159, I will be glad to give her information about making wood fiber flowers.

I have a lovely Mah-Jongg set made of ivory and bamboo which has been in the family since I was a child. Since we no longer play the game, I would like to sell the set; however, I do not know the market value. Could you advise me where I can have the set appraised or sold? A. M. D. Jr.

There is a shop in Alexandria which sells all sorts of articles for its customers. They tell me there that they have recently sold several Mah-Jongg sets. They are in a position to appraise it and possibly sell it for you. They can be reached by calling Alexandria 0649.

I have had the good fortune to fall heir to a complete fall wardrobe. I am most grateful, but—the clothes have a most offensive odor. I had them cleaned and asked the cleaner to remove the perspiration odor but he was unsuccessful. The clothes are new. Many have been worn only once and none had been cleaned before. I will appreciate any suggestions you can give me for removing the odor. B.

Sponge the underarm or other perspiration-laden areas with warm water to which a few drops of vinegar has been added. Sprinkle powdered pepsin or a good deodorant powder over the stain and work it well into the cloth. Let stand one to two hours until thoroughly dry and brush off the powder. Repeat, if all the odor is not removed at the first treatment.

Airing the clothes on sunny, breezy days will also do much to freshen them. Here's another thought: the liquid which can be sprayed into upholstery, etc., to prevent mildew is also a deodorizer, and can be purchased in the housewares departments of most department stores. Since you write from an out-of-town address, the personal shopper of one of the Washington department stores could probably get it for you if you do not find it in your town.

Is there something else I can use on a rusty porch screen beside black screen paint? H. N. S.

You could use a good quality spar varnish or a pure shellac on the screen. First remove all rust by brushing with a stiff or wire brush and washing the screen with benzine. If you use shellac, thin it by adding one half as much denatured alcohol.

JUST like new is the doll which handicapped workers in the Doll Shop at Goodwill Industries have created from an old and battered plaything which some child discarded. Mrs. Mary Garrett Brown, left, new occupational therapist at the organization's headquarters, shows it to Miss Mary Pittman who has learned sewing and invisible weaving at Goodwill classes

Mrs. Brown Joins Goodwill Staff

Handicapped Gain New Helpmate

By Peggy Preston

THE physically handicapped workers at Goodwill Industries have a new helpmate this year. She is pretty, blonde Mrs. Mary Garrett Brown, occupational therapist, whose job it is to help these victims of accident and disease to help themselves.

Approximately 175 such men and women are now at the workbenches at Goodwill Industries headquarters on New Hampshire ave. They receive an average wage of $27 a week for jobs that range from carpentry to doll making. A staff of trained instructors is maintained to teach them the crafts and now Mrs. Brown has arrived to give them additional aid in their struggle to adapt themselves to the normal workaday world.

Trim little Mrs. Brown is qualified to cope with a variety of problems that distress disabled persons and prevent them from taking part in an active, useful life. Amputees, heart patients, polio victims, deaf mutes, and others equally afflicted are among her charges.

"A TRUCK DRIVER, for instance," she explains, "comes to us for help after he has lost a leg in an accident. Testing him for job ability we discover that he would be efficient and happy working with electrical appliances. In due time, after a training period, this man can go out into the competitive field, equipped with knowledge of a trade that will earn him as much money or more than he made before."

In cases where fractures or injuries have left an arm or leg impaired, it is Mrs. Brown's job to give instruction in particular crafts and exercises that will strengthen muscles. Best work for these persons is block printing, finger printing, woodwork and specialized carpentry.

For polio cases, where the patient must work from a wheel chair, she sees to it that special equipment is available in order that they can work with ease and comfort.

Mrs. Brown's main work at present is in the doll shop where many of the workers are in wheelchairs or have serious eye afflictions. "But see what they accomplish," she points out. "They can take the most battered doll and transform it into a pretty plaything which any child would love to own."

MRS. BROWN comes to her present post from the University of Pennsylvania Hospital where she was in the department of occupational therapy. She received her degree at the same university and because there is a great demand for her type of work she has never had an idle day since her graduation.

W. Harold Snape, director of Goodwill Industries, had been searching for a full time occupational therapist for three years before he found Mrs. Brown. Now that she is on the staff he is ready to go ahead with the Homebound Program which he has planned for the past several years. This program will bring help right into the home of those persons who are so severely handicapped that they cannot come to headquarters for training. Approximately 500 persons in Washington are in need of this service, and Mrs. Brown will have the job of screening them for the type of work they can be taught to perform.

Funds for the payment of workers, instructors and for the entire operation of Goodwill Industries comes from the sale of products at the Goodwill Stores. Contributions of used and discarded wearing apparel and household furnishings are received at headquarters and completely renovated by the handicapped and disabled workers.

Right now, at headquarters they are preparing for fall housecleaning. Not their own, but that of Washington's restless population which traditionally clears out its closets each spring and autumn. Such behavior is grist in the mill of Goodwill Industries. For that old broken chair, baby buggy, icebox or coat which you discard as worthless can come to a worthy end in the workshops of this organization. It can bring in additional dollars for a program that seeks to prove to disabled persons their value to society and to themselves.

Cookbooks in Review

New Guide Stresses Thrifty Recipes

Housewives grimly hanging on to their vanishing food dollars will find first aid for stretching meals to please inflated appetites in the Encyclopedic Cookbook, the newly published equivalent of 30 cookbooks in one.

High among the money-saving suggestions for better eating at less cost are 300 unusual and easy to follow recipes for converting leftovers—bread, cereals, cheese, eggs, meats, fowl, fish, vegetables, fruits, jellies, or beverages—into delicious attractive dishes.

In addition, purchasing guides, menus for every day in the year, tables of weights and measurements, calorie, vitamin and mineral charts, kitchen hints and tips on care of equipment, show how to make the most of every bit of food that is purchased, every dollar that is spent.

Career girl cooks will welcome the section devoted exclusively to dinners that can be prepared quickly, find a raft of new ideas in another section containing menus and recipes for two.

Edited by Ruth Berolzheimer of the well known Culinary Arts Institute (which has tested every recipe in the book), the Encyclopedic Cookbook contains over 10,000 recipes, food facts and ideas, and more than 1000 how-to-do-it illustrations, many in color. Its 1100 pages are thumb indexed for quick reference.

Special sections on pressure cooking, deep freezing, canning and preserving, entertaining, serving, plus dozens of charts, diagrams and blue prints make it one of the most comprehensive and easy-to-use basic cookbooks available today.

Included in its list of contents are such items as: 700 menus for every day in the year; 500 ways to prepare meats; 600 ways to serve potatoes and vegetables; 500 delicious salads; 250 delicious cakes, and 2000 facts about foods.

The volume will go on sale in Washington bookstores around September 15.

Too Particular

The wise mother does not take her housekeeping so seriously that the children are allowed no privileges that would prove the least bit upsetting to the house routine. These youngsters will soon spend their extra time in the homes of their friends and mother will have a perfect house—but a lonely one.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Now You, Too, Can Be a "Pronounced Success"

Hal Feyling of 812 K st. se. brings up an interesting question: "How do radio people decide which of conflicting pronunciations they will use—especially with regard to place names?"

To anybody in radio, that's a lively topic for debate, Hal. Because, regardless of how we pronounce 'em, somebody invariably calls up to complain.

Most announcers are very conscientious about pronunciations. On proper names, we try to check the man himself. The quickest way to anger Senator O-MAH-hah-nee is to call him O-mu-HO-nee.

And Congressman A-bear is hard to get along with when "Hebert" is pronounced as it's spelled.

On place names, radio people check Webster or some other standard work, and then try to double-check by asking somebody who has lived there. Washington's legations and embassies get a constant stream of such calls of inquiry.

For example, in Egypt its KY-ro, but in Illinois its KAY-ro. Why? Because that's the way the people who live in Cairo, Ill., pronounce it.

I'll never forget the time I tried to buy a bus ticket to Versailles, Ind., and gave the name my very finest French-menu pronunciation.

"Ain't got no such town on the line," replied the Hoosier ticket seller as he calmly directed a stream of tobacco juice into a handy spittoon, "but I'll be glad to sell you a ticket to Ver-SALES."

When there is equal authority for two varying pronunciations, most announcers use the one that's most familiar to the audience. The newsreel mugs may speak of the Ku-RIB-be-an, but most of us still call it Ka-rib-BE-an.

But that does not hold true for such colloquialisms as DEE-troit. The accent is still on the last syllable, just as it is in the frequently mispronounced word cig-ar-ETTE.

If there's a way to summarize, the best rule for public or private speech would seem to be: Avoid colloquialisms, but be yourself—(pronounced "natural").

MISCELLANY

Mrs. M. Wilker of 911 C st. ne. tells me that she found a Canadian nickel on the street the other day—and it occurs to me that, while I've been handed many a Canadian dime, I've never seen one of their nickels. Didn't know they had such an animal . . . Metropolitan Police Inspector Smith is currently patrolling the beach in front of Atlantic City's Hotel Dennis . . . Mrs. R. W. Daniels of Route 3, Alexandria, Va., gets a chuckle out of my recent announcement that "Give-Aways must be submitted by mail." She says she can just picture the mailman bringing in another load of Give-Aways which have been submited by mail, and poor Bill trying to write a column while hip-deep in kittens . . . She's right. Don't submit the Give-Aways; just the Give-Away items . . . Vivian Pear of 1358 Perry pl. nw., joins my crusade against more complicated telephone numbers . . . And Gertrude Mensh of 2022 Klingle rd. nw., lifts an eyebrow at the recent headline which stated, "Inventor Achieves Writing That Smells." Gertrude hopes that the inventor does as well financially as the many authors who have achieved the same goal.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

There's just enough space here for a quickie; it's old, but still good. Mama and her small daughter are saying goodby as daughter starts for Sunday School. The conversation goes like this:

Mama: And here's your quarter for the collection plate.

Daughter: Yes, mother.

Mama: By the way, dear, I hope you'll be sure to put your money in the plate when it's passed.

Daughter: Yes, mother.

Mama: Do you know where little girls go who don't put their money in the collection plate?

Daughter: Yes, mother—to the movies.

NEW YORK.—The United States Navy's "Super-Mars," the largest flying boat ever built, will make its inaugural flight Sunday. It will be a nonstop flight from Honolulu to Chicago, with more than 100 passengers aboard . . . During the flight the passengers will be shown a preview of the new Navy film which MGM may release. The movie is "Secret Land," which was made by Admiral Byrd, for the United States Navy, at the South Pole.

Sarah Churchill, daughter of Winston Churchill, made her first trip to Venice a few days ago. She toured the canals and the city, and seemed overwhelmed by its beauty. "I'm glad father worked so hard," said Miss Churchill. "It would be awful not to have been able to come here."

Melvyn Douglas has bought the movie rights to a pulp-magazine story and will make it in France . . . Ben Hecht completed writing his sixth screenplay this year, and will leave Hollywood for New York next week. "I have enough money now," said Hecht, in spurning the other movie offers, "to finish my autobiography."

Jack Kapp, head of Decca Records, received an invitation from La Scala Opera to confer with the opera officials in Milan. Kapp went to Milan and listened to a proposal for Decca to record an album of La Scala music . . . "I'll record it, if you'll let me do it my own way," Kapp told the officials of the oldest and best known opera company in the Old World. "If I can record La Scala in my own way, I'll do for you what I did for 'Oklahoma!'."

William Saroyan took his 4-year-old son Aram to the Center Theater to see the Ice Show. The boy was fascinated by the colorful spectacle, the trick skating acts and the line of skaters doing precision routines . . . "Poppa," Aram Saroyan beamed at the distinguished playright, "I'm glad you wrote this show."

A discredited Tammany Hall politician, who once held high office in New York, met Mayor O'Dwyer at the ball game and started to discuss the possibilities of a political comeback for him. "I once polled a big vote in this city," he said to O'Dwyer. "Do you think, if I ran again, I could be elected?" . . . "No, you couldn't be elected," replied the Mayor. "They don't catch dogs that way anymore."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Clay Keeping Data for Memoirs

(While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen).

When Gen. Lucius Clay quits as U. S. Commander in Germany, the memoirs he intends to write will be very pungent reading.

CLAY

He has no present thought of leaving either his job or the Army. Clay intends to stick until relieved by Washington. But he is carefully preparing for the day when he will be free to tell his story.

And when he does, certain high-placed knuckles are due for caustic rapping.

Intimates of the hard-working occupation chief say he is keeping a detailed account, including documents, of what is happening at his end and in Washington. They report Clay is doing this for the express purpose of making his record clear on certain major policies for which he has been widely criticized.

These friends represent Clay as deeply hurt by this criticism. He is taking it in silence because he does not feel this is the time to rap back. But he considers the attacks unfair and, apparently, aimed at making him the goat for policies that backfired.

Boomerangs

Chief among these policies are:

1. Introduction of the new United States currency in Berlin.
2. Setting up of a new government in western Germany.

Both projects have been hotly assailed. Foreign affairs experts in the United States, Britain and France have denounced the measures as needlessly provocative and tactically and economically unsound.

According to Clay's intimates, he has documentary proof to show that he opposed both these policies, that he foresaw and warned against their consequences, and that they were imposed over his objections.

One item in Clay's files is a cable from Secretary of State Marshall ordering him to set up a separate government in western Germany. Clay got this order after the abortive Moscow Conference of Foreign Ministers.

Clay strongly urged an alternative plan he had worked out with the Russians, and which they had assured him would be agreeable to them. Marshall flatly rejected this plan. Clay was ordered to put the State Department's plan into effect.

This plan is credited with being the root cause of the siege of Berlin.

Similarly, Clay's friends say he has proof to show he was overruled on the question of introducing the new United States mark in Berlin. He wanted this currency confined only to the Allied zones. Using it in Berlin, he held, would be sure to lead to Russian retaliation.

Clay presented his arguments to the State Department, and its economic experts agreed with him. They wrote a memorandum backing Clay. But the political division of the department overruled the economists and quashed their memo. Instead, Clay was ordered to send the new money into Berlin.

Stripped

The homey witticisms of former Undersecretary A. Lee Wiggins are missed around the Treasury Department. Although one of the most successful bankers in the country, there is nothing stuffy about the shrewd, genial South Carolinian.

On one occasion he was asked the difference between a deflation and a recession.

"A deflation," he said, "is a condition where people have to tighten their belts, while a recession is a case of losing your belt and having to hold up your pants with your hands."

"What about a depression?"

"That," said Wiggins, "is when you have a belt but no pants."

Hot Potato

Privately, Republican leaders make no bones about sweating over the displaced persons issue.

The failure of the special session to revise the D. P. Admittance Act, denounced by President Truman as "anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic," may cost the GOP one Senator and a lot of votes in key States.

That's why Senator Alexander Wiley, Wisconsin, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, issued his assurance that the law would be liberalized by the new Congress. There will be more such promises.

Both Governor Dewey and Governor Warren will make similar pledges during forthcoming electioneering speeches.

Dewey is already on record for liberalizing the law. He tried to get the special session to do that. But one Senator blocked it. He was Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., W. Va.), coauthor of the law. He stubbornly refused to permit the measure to be reconsidered.

Revercomb's obdurance may cost him his seat. Already facing tough opposition from former Senator Matt Neely, Revercomb's recalcitrance on the DP issue is sure to cost him a lot of otherwise friendly votes.

Economics

The Public Affairs Institute is being swamped with requests for its latest brochure, titled "Facts on Inflation," an analysis of the current economic situation . . . The steel industry is roaring toward a new production record this year. In the first six months it turned out over 33 million tons of steel. If this pace is kept up for the remainder of the year, the total will top the 53,251,000-ton record in 1944 . . . If gold imports continue at their current rate and the amount of currency in circulation continues to decrease as it has been doing this year, the United States within 18 months will have $1 of actual gold for every $1 in circulation. Present currency in circulation is $27,900,000,000; present gold stock $23,400,000,000 . . . The rediscount rate of Federal Reserve banks is headed for a boost. This is the rate these banks charge other banks that borrow money from them . . . The Federal Security Agency has over 925,000 names on its rolls eligible for old age and survivors pensions, but who are not drawing them because of failure to apply. Anyone over 65 who has paid social security taxes and is earning less than $14.99 a month is entitled to such payments. But the initiative is up to the individual. Last year, FSA paid out 483 million dollars to 1,975,000 beneficiaries.

State of mind

Some people look for happiness . . . In prominence and wealth . . . And some are satisfied to have . . . The blessing of good health . . . Some want a mansion and the best . . . Of jewelry and cars . . . While others long for time . . . To dream beneath the stars . . . And so it does not matter if . . . The day is dark or bright . . . As long as more important things . . . Appear to be all right . . . As long as human beings are . . . Contented in their souls . . . And they are not denied the right . . . To seek their separate goals . . . However great or small its hopes . . . The world will always find . . . That, after all, true happiness . . . Is just a state of mind.

says Pat Young

Washington's Newly Elected Teen Queen

Honestly, Pat on the prowl for dresses in our Teen Circle did set us up! For Pat Young, Washington's new "Teen Queen," is a young lady you'll hear from . . . and you'll agree her judgment is but good! It was the audience itself which chose her . . . that exciting night of August 18 when the Loew's Capitol Theatre-Hecht Co. contest was staged. Pat, need we say (just look at her photos) is picture-pretty, in that very NOW look way! We snapped these pictures of her in four of her favorite dresses and suits from our big, beautiful Teen Circle. Like 'em? U-m-m-m, we thought so! Better come on down!
